Pomona School Board holds special session

31 portable classrooms approved; bond issue proposed

By DAN NIEBRUGGE
PB Staff Writer

Speculative discussion of a bond issue for Pomona schools as early as next March arose Friday evening as the Pomona school board — in a special meeting — approved the purchase of 31 relocatable classrooms for the 1977-78 school year on a 3-2 vote.

District Supt. Charles Carpenter recommended the purchase of the classrooms despite what had been fairly broad support on the board for looking into the possibility of constructing permanent buildings at the now overcrowded Pomona and Ganesha High School campuses.

In a memo to the board, however, Carpenter recommended the purchase of the 31 buildings as opposed to the earlier request for 33. Carpenter recommended that the board concurrently direct the superintendent to devise a five-year master plan for district building needs. He said that a campaign directed toward the passage of a bond measure to finance the proposed building be "mounted" for the spring of 1978. He said that as permanent structures are built with bond money, the new portables be used to replace deteriorated portables now in the district.

Trustee C. Allen Braswell expressed a semantic concern that the bond election not be "mounted" for next spring, but be "held" next spring saying that between now and the end of September the district should decide just what it wishes to include in the bond election.

"A campaign should be decided upon and we should have it underway by Jan. 15," said Braswell. "On a strategy basis a short 45 to 60-day campaign would be best."

While this is the first serious public mention of a bond election, rumors have persisted for weeks that the district will go for a bond measure worth anywhere from $15 to $30 million calling for construction of a high school in Diamond Bar, one or two elementary schools in the Phillips Ranch and massive additions and upgradings of already existing facilities which are suffering maintenance problems. The measure could come before the voters — twice if necessary — by next June with hopes resting on an April or March passage.

Key to the passage would be the groundbreaking of the approximately 2,500 homes in the Phillips Ranch.

Carpenter said he made his recommendation for the purchase of the portables based on the overwhelming need at Pomona and Ganesha High Schools and because of increased special education needs.

He said permanent structures are not feasible for any of these needs and noted that cost differences between permanent buildings and relocatables are excessive. He said to use current district owned portables to effect temporary relief would seriously disrupt ongoing programs.

Carpenter told the board in his report that the district now owns 161 relocatables. In May, he told the Progress Bulletin the district owned 75 portables.

Trustees Eugene Whitlock and Frances Livingston voted to oppose the $1.2 million relocatable purchase with Whitlock stating he felt the district presently had 27 portable buildings which are not being used to their full potential. These, he said, could fill in this year along with rented trailers to provide space while permanent structures are being built.

Carpenter said architectural estimates for permanent buildings ranged anywhere from $630,000 to $674,000 while a comparable number of relocatables would cost $415,000.

Whitlock complained that the staff had not brought back the necessary information telling how many hours each portable is used. He said that in the absence of that information he was forced to vote against the proposal.

Judge nixes Nazi parade in Skokie

WASHINGTON (AP) — Supreme Court Justice John Paul Stevens refused Friday to permit Nazi demonstrators to parade with swastikas in Skokie, Ill., a Chicago suburb in which about 7,000 survivors of World War II death camps reside.

Stevens rejected an application by the National Socialist Party of America for a stay that would have cleared the way for such demonstrations while a lower-court order banning them is being appealed.

The Illinois Supreme Court has set arguments on the appeal Sept. 20.

"I am confident that the Illinois Supreme Court will make its decision without any unnecessary delay," Stevens said.

"Considering ... that the entry of the stay would be tantamount to a decision on the merits in favor of the applicants, it seems clear that a stay should not be granted."

The party, represented by attorneys of the American Civil Liberties Union, is appealing a ruling by the Illinois Appellate Court that under the circumstances, the display of the Nazi emblem would be "an epithet of racial and religious hatred."

The party and its leader, Frank Collin, have argued that the state court order is an unconstitutional interference with "symbolic speech."

The party originally planned to parade in Skokie on April 30, but the demonstration has been held in abeyance by court orders.

In the meantime, local ordinances have been passed in Skokie requiring $350,000 insurance for public demonstrations and imposing other restrictions.

'HATCHET JOB' SAYS BEAME

Mayor Abraham Beame of New York speaks to newsmen Friday at Police Headquarters in New York as he comments on a Securities and Exchange Commission report critical of his role in the city's fiscal crisis. Beame termed the report a "hatchet job" and a "shameless, vicious political document." The report claims Beame misled the public in order to sell a record $4 billion in short-term city securities to keep New York afloat in 1974 and 1975.

Victims were young; shot near jogging path

HACKETTSTOWN, N.J. (AP) — The son of a former town councilman shot and killed six persons Friday on a bicycle path, then killed himself as officers and bloodhounds closed in on him, police said.

The gunman, identified by a local policeman as Emil Benoist, died of wounds from a .44-caliber rifle at Community Hospital in this usually quiet town of about 11,000, in northwest New Jersey near the Pennsylvania border, state police said.

Identities of the victims, most of them in their teens or early 20s, were withheld pending notification of relatives.

There was no known motive for the shootings, police said.

Three of the victims, each shot several times, were found about 300 yards behind an abandoned tannery here after police received a call at 5:36 p.m. about a shooting near the bicycle path adjacent to railroad tracks.

Ten minutes later, three other gunshot victims were sighted in adjacent Mansfield Township — about a half-mile away — by the crew of a westbound ConRail train, police said.

The suspect apparently hid behind bushes near the railroad tracks and popped out to shoot persons he encountered along the route, police said.

The railroad bend is used by residents for jogging, bike riding, walking dogs and as a shortcut.

"It appears he kept darting back into the bush, working his way to Mansfield, periodically jumping out to ambush another victim," a state policeman said.

The gunman shot himself in the head at about 9:10 p.m. as he was about to be captured, state police said.

One resident told reporters she heard 15 shots.

The gunman also took random shots at passing cars along Rock Port Road but there were no injuries, police said.

Benoist's friends said his father was Pierre Benoist, who they said had been a Hackettstown councilman.

One friend, who asked not to be identified, said Benoist, who was in his 20s, liked to hunt and served with the U.S. Marines at Parris Island.

"That really messed him up," his friend said.

Benoist also boxed recently in the Golden Gloves tournament, his friend said.

"He was bottled up and no one would try to understand him. No one would listen to what he had to say," the friend said.

Benoist worked for New Jersey Department of Transportation.

A state police helicopter, hundreds of police officers from neighboring communities, about 30 state troopers and bloodhounds from the Morris County Sheriff's office were used in the search, police said.

Lack of water to combat fires may curb Chino building

By BOB SWETNAM
PB Staff Writer

Building activity in the Chino area — already slowed because of inadequate sewage treatment capacity — may come to a stop in some areas due to a lack of water for fire protection, said fire officials.

County Fire Marshal Leo Beeson of the Chino Rural Fire District said some Chino Valley areas lack adequate water for fire protection.

Noting that San Bernarino County supervisors have adopted an ordinance requiring land developers to get letters from water agencies which certify adequate service capacities exist before granted building permits, Beeson said development in some areas may be stopped completely until enough water can be provided.

Areas affected are the Sleepy Hollow area of Carbon Canyon, the Mountain View area east of Carbon Canyon, and an area of the Chino Hills near the Corona Expressway.

Other potential problem areas are the north and west areas of the City of Chino.

"The problem is not that there isn't enough water, but rather getting water to certain areas," said Beeson.

A Public Utilities Commission rule requires minimum fire control water flow standards for all residential, commercial and industrial properties.

And the areas cited by fire department officials currently don't meet the state standards, said Beeson.

Until water mains are increased in size or water storage facilities are built, no more construction will be allowed in the shortage areas, he said.

Beeson estimates the number of building permits that might be affected by the state mandate would amount to only 2 per cent of all building activity in the Chino Valley.

"This is basically a short-term problem that can be remedied by developers," he explained.

Nixons hurt by hints they kept foreign gifts

WASHINGTON (AP) — Former President Richard Nixon was described Friday as angry and Mrs. Nixon as deeply hurt by implications that they intentionally kept some valuable foreign gifts that belong to the government.

"Right now she is going through stuff in the house, like the boss's jewelry, to see if there are cuff links or stuff like that," Nixon's aide, Jack Brennan, said in a telephone interview from San Clemente, Calif.

Another aide, Ken Khachigian, spoke of "the really crummy implication that they have broken the law in a sense, taking things that belonged to the public."

Nixon's lawyers asked a court Wednesday to bar the government from rummaging through storage boxes for photographs, lists or other clues about foreign gifts presented to Nixon and his family while he was president. The law requires that any gift worth more than $50 be turned over to the State Department and such items usually end up as displays in presidential libraries.

A federal judge refused to halt the search, which will begin next week.

On Monday, the Washington Post said some government officials believe some gifts are in the Nixons' custody. The newspaper listed some "missing" items as a carpet, watches, antiquities, an oil painting, a silver box, a gold necklace and bracelet, several other bracelets.

The value of state gifts to Nixon and his family in the 5½ years he was president has been estimated at $2 million and there have been published allegations that the value of "missing" items may be as much as one-fourth of that.

Any allegation that the Nixons purposely kept such valuable gifts "is utterly false," Khachigian said. He would not rule out that some items may have been packed in crates sent into storage in San Clemente.

"If it turns out that any state gifts were inadvertently sent to San Clemente, then we'll return the damn things as soon as we can," he said.

Voyager II 'does its own thing'

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — Voyager 2 used a mind of its own Friday and refused to obey a command from Earth, so scientists still don't know whether the craft's scientific instruments are ready for a nine-year probe of the outer solar system.

With a stubbornness not unlike that of Hal, the rebellious computer in the movie "2001: A Space Odyssey," Voyager 2's computer abruptly canceled an order to eject a dust cover from the end of a 7½-foot arm loaded with scientific equipment.

Spokesmen at Jet Propulsion Laboratory said they had no idea why the computer, known as HYPACE for Hybrid Programmable Attitude Control Electronics, balked at the command.

"They're still scratching their heads trying to figure it out," said JPL's Voyager spokesman, Don Bane.

But they still trust the computer, he said.

"I guess I'd have to say it did the right thing. We just haven't figured out why it was the right thing," Bane said.

Blaze breaks out on 3 floors of U.S. Embassy in Moscow

MOSCOW (AP) — Soviet firemen and U.S. Marines battled a fierce and stubborn blaze on the top three floors of the U.S. Embassy Friday night and early today. No injuries were reported but a Marine security guard was treated for smoke inhalation.

Twenty Soviet firetrucks rushed to the scene at the first report. Three hours after the fire began at about 10:30 p.m. — 3:30 p.m. EDT — the embassy said it was "superficially under control," then flames flared on parts of the roof for the first time and the Russians sent in more units.

The building is a 10-story mustard-colored structure built in the early 1950s. An embassy official said there had been a routine fire inspection recently.

"I would say without really being there that the eighth and ninth floors are pretty gutted," U.S. Ambassador Malcolm Toon said.

Toon, who arrived in formal clothes from a dinner at the Romanian Embassy, told newsmen the embassy building, which also contains 40 residential apartments, had been completely evacuated. The ambassador has a separate residence.

The Marine who suffered smoke inhalation was identified as Cpl. Wayne Ekblad. His home town was not known.

Asked about a possible security risk from Soviet firemen inside classified areas of the building, Toon said: "We're taking all the appropriate steps that are required."

Marines wearing gas masks, members of the embassy's security force of about 15 people, slowed the fire at the outset with their own equipment.

Brown's plan to halt rising hospital costs setback

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Gov. Edmund Brown Jr.'s plan to regulate rising hospital costs suffered a setback Friday when the measure's author angrily dropped the bill and criticized another legislator.

The Democratic governor responded to the development by lambasting the hospital industry's opposition to the bill and saying he would fight to curb "runaway hospital costs."

"The hospital industry is addicted to unlimited spending. This industry is reaching into the pocketbooks of Californians to a degree that is out of control," Brown said in an interview.

Assemblyman Barry Keene, D-Eureka, announced his move dropping the bill in a sharply worded letter to Ways and Means chairman Dan Boatwright, D-Concord, who was the target of his anger.

Keene, the chairman of the Assembly Health Committee, told Boatwright he had been "totally lacking in objectivity" during an Aug. 16 Ways and Means hearing on the bill.

Both the California Hospital Association and the California Medical Association opposed the bill at that hearing.

On Friday Jack Smith, a California Hospital Association spokesman, denied the CHA ever "tried to kill the bill" and said it was waiting to see if a federal bill on the issue wins passage.

At the Aug. 16 hearing, where the bill was sent to interim study until January, Boatwright called the legislation, which had been approved by Keene's Health Committee, a "schlock" measure.

Keene's measure would create a Public Utilities Commission-style regulatory commission to regulate hospital rates. The commission would be appointed by the governor.

Hospital costs in California are 16 times higher than they were in 1950.

Boatwright said through an aide he hoped to work out something with Keene. Brown said he had tried to persuade Boatwright to vote for the measure and had failed.

Approval given to transit service between airport, Orange County

But West End will supply no funds

By MAE TATE
PB Staff Writer

West End officials gave a final nod to a transit service line between Orange County and Ontario International Airport this week, but made it clear no funds would be given to the service.

The general consensus of the West Valley Transit Service Authority (WVTSA) board was that the line would primarily benefit Orange County by relieving congestion at the Orange County Airport, getting the pressure off the Board of Supervisors about curtailment of activities at the airport and providing an alternative airport service to north and central Orange County residents.

"I don't see this (service) as of any particular benefit to San Bernardino County residents. It's a convenience for Orange County people to get to the Ontario airport," said Mayor Harold Hayes of Montclair.

Supervisor Joe Kamansky of Upland reiterated previous remarks by his colleague Bob Townsend which opposes any allocation of funds within San Bernardino County for the airport service line.

Wes McDaniel, executive director of the San Bernardino Associated Governments (SANBAG), reported final steps for implementation of the service route are underway. The Airport Transit Co., a private operator with the Public Utilities Commission rights for such an inter-county service and with considerable previous experience in the field, has been selected as the logical operator for the route.

The private company quoted a backup guarantee figure of $300,000 annually to operate the line, and said that figure represents a 25 per cent passenger load factor per basis in order to break even. The owner is asking that if he is able to go beyond that breakeven point, that the $300,000 need not be paid by the county.

Kamansky was quick to ask "which county?"

"The Orange County Board of Supervisors is in the driver's seat," McDaniel responded. "They agree that the hand to be played is theirs initially, and are willing to pick up the total tab. They agree that they should pay out the first funding and then evaluate the service later."

McDaniel said two alternate routes had been suggested. One goes from the Orange County Airport to the Saddleback Inn in Santa Ana to Disneyland to the Orange Freeway to Brea Shopping Center and into San Bernardino County.

The routing for the portion in San Bernardino County is broken into two alternatives. One travels along the Pomona Freeway to Central Avenue to Euclid Avenue and up to Holt Boulevard and the downtown Ontario Civic Center before going eastward to OIA. It takes 60 minutes.

The other route in the West End — and the one given first priority by the WVTSA board — would take the Orange Freeway to the San Bernardino Freeway, stop at the Montclair Plaza, go back on the freeway to Vineyard Avenue and south to OIA.

Councilwoman Eileen Carter of Chino said the San Bernardino Freeway route was the "logical linkage for Omnitrans, Southern California Rapid Transit District, Amtrak and other services in the West End. It also serves more people."

McDaniel said the second route takes only three minutes longer and is "easier and smoother for the rider." He added that it also meets the interconnect point at the Montclair Plaza bus terminal.

The service will be implemented following action by the Orange County Board of Supervisors on the funding.

League of Women Voters issued mandate

Court rules on water bond election

By JACK BURSON
PB Staff Writer

The Claremont League of Women Voters Friday was granted an alternative writ of mandate in Pomona Superior Court which ordered either that its argument in oppositon to an upcoming $26 million water bond election issue accompany the sample Nov. 8 ballot, or that reasons it should not do so be presented to the court Sept. 2.

The action was ordered by Judge Roberta Ralph and concerns a special election which seeks money for a water project endorsed by the Pomona Valley Municipal Water District. The league opposes the project. A similar bond issue, seeking $35 million, was defeated in 1975.

William C. Leech, PVMWD president, said the money would be used for the construction of new treatment, storage and transmission facilities to provide eight member agencies with an adequate supply of improved quality water for the next 10 years.

The argument in support of the issue, which will accompany the sample ballot, reportedly was written by four members of the board of directors.

The argument in opposition was written by another board member, C.H. Thatcher, according to the petition.

It is that argument which the league feels is improper and for which it seeks to substitute its own. The league, through Claremont Attorney Stephen I. Zetterberg, claims in its petition that on June 7, 1977, at a regular meeting of the board, Thatcher said he was behind the board's choice (for relocation of the water plant) 100 per cent and would actively support the decision. The league claims that a copy of the board's minutes shows that Thatcher said at that meeting, "I'm for the whole enchilada."

The league's petition named the district, individual board members, William Leech, president, and Los Angeles County Registrar-Recorder Leonard Panish as respondents.

Youth with knife who stalked shoppers jailed

A 16-year-old Pomona youth put a Bowie knife with a 12-inch blade to the throat of a woman shopper in the parking lot of Buffums in Pomona Friday noon and ordered her from her car.

Immediately the car was surrounded by members of the East Valley Burglary Investigation Team and the youth was placed under arrest.

He was taken to Pomona Police Department where he was held in custody before being transferred to Juvenile Hall, Los Angeles.

Pomona Det. Ronald Kelly and Officer Charles Rosales made the arrest at 12:40 p.m.

Team members had been watching the juvenile, who had been reported as a possible suspect stalking victims in the parking lot after leaving the store, with a possible robbery motive.

The surveillance began at noon.

Detective Kelly said he and Rosales watched as the youth moved about the parking lot and customers walked between the lot and the store.

They saw the victim come out of the store, walk to her car, get in and turn on the key.

The youth "stalked" her in the lot, Kelly said. As she started the car, he pulled the knife, placed it at her throat and demanded the keys. She got out of the car on the passenger side, and the officers moved in.

The East Valley Burglary Investigation Team is a federally-funded program which involves police from all cities in the San Gabriel Valley, including Pomona, and the Los Angeles County Sheriff's Department.

For speeding

'Tickets' run in the family

An Ontario couple had something in common Friday, and it wasn't just the family laundry.

Both were cited for speeding by the same radar traffic officer at the same location — only 17 minutes apart.

John Valdez, owner of the J & J Tire Co., Ontario, was driving to work and going over the Mountain Avenue overpass near Holt Boulevard about 8 a.m. when the officer stopped him and gave a citation.

The officer then returned to his location. A short time later, Mrs. Valdez drove over the overpass and was also stopped.

When checking her driver's license, the officer almost apologetically asked, "What's this, a family affair?"

The officer, Bill Smith, then explained he had just written a citation for her husband on the same violation.

Husband and wife met a short time later, without a need for explanations.

Chino man critical after car accident

A 21-year-old Chino man remains in critical condition this morning in Chino General Hospital with injuries suffered in a single-car traffic accident on Carbon Canyon Road near Peyton Drive in Chino.

California Highway Patrolmen said that a car, driven by David Bernard Baca of 16825 Hay Drive, Chino, went out of control after passing another vehicle on Carbon Canyon Road about 8:30 p.m. Thursday. The car began fishtailing and plunged over an embankment before rolling over. Baca was the most seriously injured and admitted to the Chino hospital. His three passengers, Sidney Cox, 16, of 13075 Oaks Ave., Chino; Toney Gallegher, 17, of 13225 19th St., Chino; and William Rogers, 18, of 16780 Hay Drive, Chino, were also injured, but treated and released from San Antonio Community Hospital in Upland.

Patrolmen said the driver may have passed one vehicle and was forced to swerve right to avoid hitting several oncoming vehicles before losing control of the car.

Citrus College's oldest employe keeping busy

By VONNE ROBERTSON
PB Staff Writer

Citrus College's oldest employe is also one of the school's most enthusiastic boosters.

She's Mae Kime, whose 90th birthday in May turned into a one-week celebration involving the college band, city and college officials and as many as 400 guests at one party.

Mrs. Kime, who says "Just call me Mae," was asked to join the college's community services staff in the spring when her enthusiasm caught the eye of President Robert D. Haugh.

Best described as the valley's "Mother Dexter," Mrs. Kime stands less the 5 feet tall, has an infectious laugh and sparkling eyes and more energy than most of her co-workers.

Her introduction to the campus came last spring when she joined a tour comprised of fellow residents in a senior citizen community in Duarte.

"Thirty of us signed up, but only 15 appeared when the bus came to get us," says Mrs. Kime. "Then some of those attending were so lazy they didn't want to see half of the campus.

"There seemed to be as many guides as tourists. Fortunately, I got Dr. Haugh as my guide. Imagine — the college president — how about that!

"I was absolutely intrigued with all I saw — tennis courts, a planetarium, a theater, a cosmetology department and so much more."

College officials, on the other hand, were fascinated with the 90-year-old woman's enthusiasm and intelligence.

John Andrews, community services coordinator, suggested the college investigate the legal aspects of placing someone her age on the staff on a part-time basis. She was interviewed and hired.

"When I got a phone call that the college wanted to talk to me, I was sure I'd done something wrong during my visit," relates Mrs. Kime.

"One of my jobs had been to talk with people in senior citizen centers and invite them to the campus and encourage them to enroll in classes," Andrews says. "But I'm 22 years old, and sometimes felt I wasn't getting through to the senior citizens.

"But I knew that Mae could."

Mrs. Kime now spends her time visiting all of the senior citizen clubs, community centers and residential areas in the cities of Azusa, Claremont, Duarte, Glendora and Monrovia.

She is paid for 10 hours a month, but puts in many more, Andrews says.

"I encourage senior citizens to sign up for the college's Gold Card program which offers reduced-price or free admission to many events on campus.

"I also encourage older people to enroll in courses on the campus," continues Mrs. Kime.

"The first time I approach a group, I may appear as a stranger, but when I go back, it's like I'm a life-long friend."

She says the college sends buses to centers to pick up groups for tours of the campus and for attendance at performances if 15 adults are signed up.

Andrews and Mrs. Kime are enthusiastic about the new programs at the college which cater to the senior citizens in the district.

The board of trustees voted to waive the fees for persons over 60 enrolled in classes on the campus.

In addition, if 15 or more persons request a special class off the campus, it can be set up and a professor arranged.

Among the special courses for senior citizens being offered on the campus is "Psychology of Retirement," taught by a former college president.

The college has already presented "Great Religions of the World," a three-unit credit course at a Duarte resident center. It was so well received by the 15 students — none of which dropped — that two other courses, in Spanish and psychology, will be offered at the same location this fall.

Working is nothing new to Mrs. Kime. She's been a career woman most of her life and intends to continue her activities for a long time.

Born May 19, 1887, in St. Louis Mo., she spent 25 years working for Burroughs Adding Machine Co. in St. Louis before moving to California and continuing in the same line of work.

"I flew all over the country teaching salesmen to sell the adding machines. Then I went to companies and taught their employes how to use them," she says.

"I've always worked with men and find them much more interesting than women. Women, especially older ones, just want to be entertained and spend too much time fighting with each other."

Mrs. Kime's birthday party featured the college's special marching band unit, the Citrus Serenaders, who came parading up the street to entertain her.

"That sure shook up the rest of the people where I live," she laughs.

The delightfully witty woman confesses to two "vices." She has a passion for attending mass at various Catholic churches, usually two or more each Sunday.

She also likes to sip margueritas, but is unhappy because she hasn't been offered a strawberry one yet.

New hot meal program

Senior citizens to join children

By JON MORRIS
PB Staff Writer

Elderly residents and school children will be eating lunch together under a new hot meal program to be launched in the San Dimas area on Oct. 3.

The noontime meal — sponsored by the City of San Dimas and the Bonita Unified School District — will be served at Ekstrand School, 400 N. Walnut Ave., Monday through Friday.

Residents over 50 years old may pay $1.25 for a meal, which includes an entree, vegetable, salad, bread and butter, dessert and beverage.

A key part of the program is that senior citizens will be sharing their lunch tables with children in first through fifth grades.

"The association is vital for the senior citizens and the children," said Pat Gore, city administrative coordinator. "Older people enjoy the conversation and children are seeking a grandparent."

The program will provide "soul food" through the special contact, added Mrs. Gore.

Through the joint effort of the city and school district, the meals for senior citizens are offered "at cost."

The city had attempted to obtain federal funds for the project but was unsuccessful because of the small number of elderly residents involved and the "high economic level" in the area, she noted.

With federal funds not involved, senior citizens do not have to "qualify" for the meals.

The city and school district will operate the program on a non-profit basis and will absorb overhead costs, said Mrs. Gore. The school district is providing the facility, equipment, personnel and utilities. The city will offer "staff time."

Menus will be provided in advance, and senior citizens will be encouraged to make reservations for the lunches.

The new program is different from the already successful San Dimas "Meals on Wheels" project which is geared mainly to those confined to their homes.

"This program is for the persons who can walk, drive or be pushed to the school in a wheelchair," said Mrs. Gore.

Persons wanting to help with the program or want more information may phone Mrs. Gore at 599-6713.

SUMMERTIME FUN

About 30 junior aides from the Claremont Red Cross will earn themselves a trip to Disneyland by compiling 50 hours of volunteer time in helping tiny tots to swim in Claremont's summer swim program at El Roble swimming pool. Enjoying the pool are, from left, Chad Keegan, 12, Allan Markham, 4, Kelly Carter, 15, aide, Clay Weaver, 3½, Shelley Grant, 15, and Ricky Muehlich, 3. Five aides at the Crippled Children's Society on Indian Hill Boulevard, Claremont, also earned themselves a trip to Disneyland.

Rotary Club members drumming up support for Tokyo convention

Two Claremont Rotary Club members have been visiting some of the 46 clubs in District 530 to stir up support for Rotary International's convention in Tokyo May 14-18, 1978.

Oliver (Jolly) Batcheller, district governor-nominee, and John Ilsley don "On to Tokyo" headdress and kimonos and invade local Rotary meetings from Pasadena into Southern Nevada to spur the membership to plan to attend the worldwide organization's convention next year.

Batcheller said that Rotary International has 800,000 members in 153 countries, and that 26,000 delegates are expected to attend the Tokyo convention.

The pair said they have enjoyed attending other Rotary Club meetings to push the convention, and hope to cover all clubs.

Both said that they are planning to go to Tokyo in 1978.

Public hearings on voluntary legal aid begin

The State Bar of California will hold a series of public hearings beginning Tuesday on proposals for a voluntary program of donated legal assistance for persons in need.

The hearings, which will be held in six cities throughout California, were ordered by the bar's board of governors. The board set the hearings during its June meeting after receiving a report on unmet legal needs. The report was the result of a year-long study by the board committee on legal services and a special committee of the bar's legal services section. The report recommended creation of a state-wide voluntary program for state lawyers.

The committee study was aimed at seeking a voluntary alternative to mandatory service proposed to the state Legislature last year. State Bar President Edward Rubin issued a statement urging participation in the hearings.

"As many attorneys and interested members of the public as possible should attend and make their wishes known so that an effective voluntary program can be devised and put into effect," he said.

The hearings will be held in Los Angeles Tuesday at 1 p.m. at the state bar office, 1230 W. Third St.; in San Bernardino Wednesday at 1:30 p.m. at the at 303 N. E St.; in Fresno Sept. 14 at 1:30 p.m. at the Hilton Hotel; in Sacramento Sept. 20 at 1:30 p.m. at the Community-Convention Center; in Oakland Sept. 21 at 1:30 p.m. at the Oakland Airport Hilton; and in San Diego Sept. 25 at 3 p.m. at the Convention Center.

Harvey-Mudd students to reveal the results of conservation study

Ever wonder about some practical and economical ways to use and conserve valuable energy?

Scientists and engineering students at Harvey-Mudd College in Claremont have for several months been exploring methods that the homeowner, local government and businesses can use to reduce their energy consumption.

The results of their energy conservation study will be made public Sunday at 10:30 a.m. in the Unitarian Society of Pomona Valley church, 9185 Monte Vista Ave., Montclair.

Two Claremont professors and a team of students from the Harvey-Mudd College Engineering Clinic — under contract to the City of Claremont — will present their findings on how local citizens can conserve energy.

Information will be presented to let residents know how to better insulate their homes, plan their use of utilities, build or rennovate their homes to maximize energy conservation and how to change their energy consumption habits.

Jean F. Kaufman, chairman of a social concerns committee for the Unitarian Society, says the program will be the first public presentation by the engineering clinic of its suggestions.

A written report by the engineering group will soon be submitted to the Claremont City Council, which funded the study through city redevelopment project funds.

Over a period of several months, Professor Thomas Woodson, director of the engineering clinic at the college, had met with Claremont City Manager Norm King to discuss ways that the group could be of benefit to the city and its citizens.

Help sought to find man

An Ontario family has made a public appeal for help in locating 29-year-old Jim Ferrell, who has been missing since last Sunday.

The man requires care, suffers blackouts and is on medication, his family said. They emphasize that he is not an alcoholic or drug user.

They say Ferrell undoubtedly is confused and does not know where he is.

Ferrell was wearing plaid Bermuda shorts, a yellow tank top and his glasses when he walked away from his home. He had no money and no identification on him.

He is Caucasian, 6 feet tall, 190 pounds with brown, curly hair about ear length.

Anyone seeing Ferrell, or knowing his whereabouts, is asked to call the Pomona Police Department at 620-2155 or the Ontario Police Department at 986-6711.

Supervisor wants L.A. County to train its own physicians

By BOB NAGEY
PB Staff Writer

Incensed over the $550,000 paid last year to nine doctors for testifying at Municipal and Superior Court trials, Los Angeles County Supervisor Kenneth Hahn wants the county to train its own courtroom physicians.

Hahn claims the doctors go from courtroom to courtroom from Santa Monica to Pomona serving as expert witnesses in medical cases, mostly involving psychiatry and narcotics.

He said one physician was paid $145,000 last year, $101,763 in 1975 and $68,275 in 1974.

Another physician received $112,000 last year. Seven other physicians collected court fees ranging from $27,400 to $60,500 in 1975.

The supervisor pointed out that the average salary for a district health officer for the county is $48,000 a year.

"The county presently has classifications for psychiatrists, surgeons, mental health director and district health officers," he said. "Perhaps we should create a new classification of courtroom doctor instead of employing private physicians to be expert witnesses in court cases."

He said the persons designated as courtroom doctors could receive some special training in court procedures and legal matters and then could be hired by the county at the same rate and hours as other physicians.

But Douglas Steele, assistant administrative officer of the county, told Hahn that it was cheaper in the long run to use the nine doctors than to train specific ones for witness work.

He said the nine doctors are generally considered to be "career court doctors" who devote most, if not all, of their practice to court work.

"They are available to give testimony when needed, are accepted by both the defense and the prosecution, are at ease in the courtroom situation and know their their ways through the court bureacracy," Steele said.

This results in savings of witness fees and in quicker and more efficient trials, he claimed.

Hahn contended that the county could hire and train 10 of its own doctors more cheaply than the cost of court fees.

"They (the career doctors) go from court to court at lightning speed," he shook his head. "They don't even carry the traditional little black bag with them."

Hahn tried to gain passage for a resolution Tuesday that would implement his courtroom doctor idea, but the rest of the supervisors tabled his motion.

Hahn vowed to bring it back again.

'Rest home' owner jailed

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A woman charged with falsely imprisoning 13 mentally and physically disabled persons in Texas was arrested Friday at a relative's home in the Watts area of Los Angeles, authorities said.

Lillian Gobert, 42, who also operated a boarding house in Van Nuys, Calif., had become the subject of a multi-state search after Wharton, Tex., lawmen raided a filthy, roachinfested "rest home" and found mentally disabled persons locked in a garage.

Miss Gobert was arrested at a sister's home and was held in lieu of $120,000 bail on 12 Texas warrants charging false imprisonment.

Texas authorities alleged that Miss Gobert had transported the victims — some of them war veterans — between California and Texas and cashed their government pension checks while holding them prisoner.

She was scheduled to appear in Municipal Court Monday.

Pony survives 4 years in hell

By Associated Press

DURHAM, N.H. (AP) — Veterinarians are laboring to repair the deformed hooves and legs of a Shetland pony confined for four years in a nailedshut stall piled high with manure.

"I've seen a lot, but that still shocked me," said Peter Saunders, an investigator for the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty (SPCA) to Animals, who examined the pony shortly after he was found two weeks ago in the town of Plaistow, near the Massachusetts border.

"The pony's hooves are enormous, about a foot and a half long and curved back until they almost touch his knees," Saunders said.

The deformity is called laminitis, and some veterinarians said they had never seen such a severe and painful case. The pony's legs were also damaged because of the distortion of the hooves.

In addition, the pony had "hay belly," a distension caused by a diet of all hay and no grain.

"That pony must have one hell of a will to live," said Saunders.

King, a 10-year-old gold-colored pony with a light mane, was found in a garage after an SPCA investigator received a tip that some type of animal was being kept in the building.

"I couldn't believe what I saw," said Plaistow Animal Control Officer Don Sargent. "I looked into a small window and saw a pony standing on top of a pile of manure as high as the window.

"I can't believe that anything could live in that filth. We pried the boards off the stall so we could get the pony out and the maggots and flies just swarmed out."

The pony was owned by a woman named Barbara Reed, but police and the SPCA are refusing to say where the woman lives or why she locked up the animal because of distress over the incident in the town of about 5,000 persons.

They fear that publicity might prompt some "overzealous animal lover to take some rash action against the woman." The SPCA now owns the pony.

At the stable, King balked at being led into a stall. Saunders said he could understand why the horse didn't want to enter the building, but after several minutes of gentle prodding the pony limped into his new home.

New cancer detector

NEW YORK (AP) — A medical researcher at the Downstate Medical Center in Brooklyn says he has developed a technique for detecting cancer by radio frequency scanning.

Dr. Raymond Damadian says it would eliminate the need for X-rays or conducting a surgical biopsy.

However, he admitted at a news conference Wednesday that he has not used the technique on a cancer patient, and other cancer experts are skeptical of the technique.

Dr. Damadian's technique is based on medical evidence that the water content of cancerous body cells can be as much as 90 per cent, while normal cells are about 66 per cent water.

The doctor said that results of his latest studies involving tests on 1,000 specimens of cancerous and non-cancerous tissues would be published in forthcoming issues of three magazines — the British Journal of Cancer, Cancer, and Physiological Chemistry and Physics.

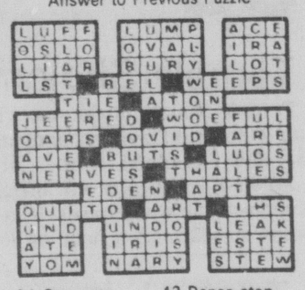
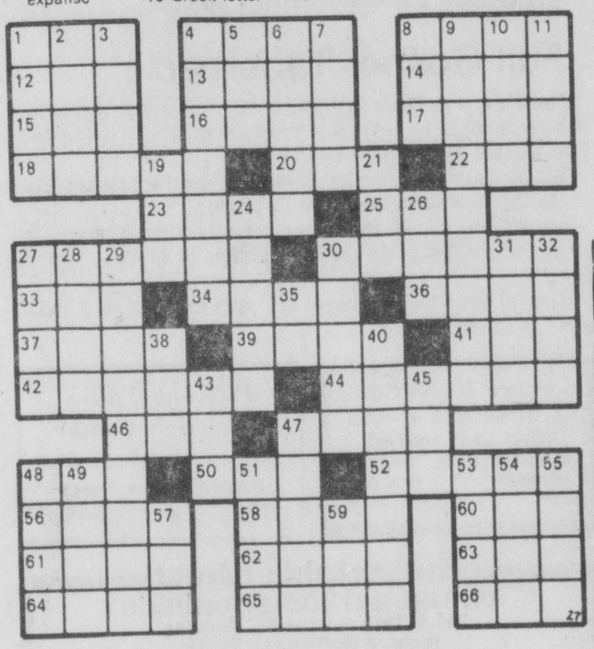
Answer to Previous Puzzle





Astrographs

By Bernice Bede Osol
For Sunday, Aug. 28, 1977
Your Birthday, Aug. 28, 1977

Large organizations, clubs or groups will be very lucky for you this coming year. If you don't belong to any, you'd be wise to get a few application blanks.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) You're on very shaky ground when you deal with others on a one-to-one basis today. Be extremely careful not to be arrogant or dictatorial. Learn more about yourself by sending for your copy of Astro-Graph Letter. Mail 50 cents for each and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to P.O. Box 489, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019. Be sure to specify your birth sign.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Should there be something that you're bound to do today by honor or duty, don't neglect it. It could crop up later and cause a real brouhaha.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) You'd be smart to let others share the stage with you socially today. Allow all the characters to have at least a few lines.

SAGITTARIUS (Noc. 23-Dec. 21) Outsiders and in-laws are outlaws today where your family affairs are involved. They might well try to tell you how to run the show.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Someone with a forceful personality might attempt to downgrade your ideas today. Don't be intimidated just because this guy has a big mouth.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Don't be outmaneuvered today when it's time to pay the check. Have another cup of coffee and wait until the staller picks up his share.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Your mate may think he has all the answers today and must make all the big decisions. Let him know you, too, are entitled to a voice.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Don't put any extra strains on your health today. Observe sensible eating and drinking habits and avoid overindulgence.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Complications with friends could develop today if one or both is too insistent on having his or her own way. If a pal is rigid, you should be flexible.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) You can be led today, but not pushed. Unfortunately, someone is prodding you to do something that'll benefit them more than you.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Be careful that a friendly discussion on philosophy or politics doesn't turn into a fracas with both parties getting hot under the collar.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Joint ventures could pose a problem for you today if you feel the other party is not contributing equally, financially or intellectually.

SEC report on N.Y. ills criticizes Beame

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Securities and Exchange Commission's report on New York City's finances, which is being released less than two weeks before the city's Democratic mayoral primary, heavily criticizes Mayor Abraham D. Beame and other officials, published reports said today.

The study being released this afternoon is the product of a 20-month investigation. It had already become a hot campaign issue before announcement that it would be released today.

The New York Times quoted administration officials as predicting that the 800-page report would say that Beame and other city officials knowingly failed to inform investors of the city's perilous financial condition when the city was selling a record amount of short-term securities in 1974 and 1975.

In another development, a top official of Chemical Bank in New York was quoted in the New York Daily News as having told the SEC that the bank tried to sell off city securities it held one month before the city's credit line was cut by local banks.

That was the move, in early 1975, which brought to public attention a financial crisis which nearly resulted in the city's bankruptcy.

Beame, 71, worried that the report could damage his reelection chances in the Sept. 8 primary, questioned the impartiality of the SEC in its conduct of the investigation and in its timing in releasing the report.

He charged the SEC with meeting "a political deadline" by announcing its findings so close to the primary.

The Times said irregularities alleged in the SEC report include failure to disclose relevant facts relating to the issuance of securities and a considerable understatement of the city's debt.

The newspaper quoted one administration official as saying that some investors bought short-term city notes without knowing that before the notes became due the city would be refused further long-term borrowing.

This official said the city went on selling these short-term notes even though it knew that the banks had decided against underwriting any further long-term borrowing by the city.

The Chemical Bank official, Vice President Herbert Charbonneau, reportedly told the SEC that the bank decided to sell its city securities because it feared it would be unable to sell them if the city's true financial condition became known.

The SEC investigation was said before its release to focus on possible misleading statements in material given potential investors that could prevent them from knowing the true soundness of bonds sold by the city and the Municipal Assistance Corporation. The MAC was created to ease the city's financial plight.

Preliminary reports suggested there could be a case of fraud if the SEC found that city officials, its banks or bond underwriters tried to make the securities appear more attractive than they were.

The agency also had looked into the city's accounting practices and its ability to meet financial obligations.

Hoping to blunt the report's impact, Beame said there may be a conflict of interest in the investigation because an SEC lawyer, Robert J. Haft, once worked for a law firm Beame said actively supported one of his six primary opponents, New York Secretary of State Mario M. Cuomo.

Cuomo accused Beame of using "tawdry, McCarthy-like smear tactics" and denied that Haft had ties to his campaign.

SEC Chairman Harold M. Williams, appointed by President Carter, accused Beame of maligning the commission's integrity out of political motivation.

The release of the report was in part the result of a lawsuit filed by Joel Harnett, a longshot rival of Beame and Cuomo for the nomination.

Federal Judge Vincent L. Broderick in Manhattan then ordered the SEC to give him its material. While that ruling was under appeal, the commission decided to make the report public.

The Sept. 8 primary will determine the Democratic nominee for the November general election only if one candidate gets at least 40 per cent of the primary vote.

The other Democratic primary candidates are former Rep. Bella Abzug, the apparent frontrunner but by a narrow margin; Reps. Edward L. Koch and Herman Badillo, and Percy E. Sutton, the Manhattan borough president.

Postal Service delays decision on ending Saturday deliveries

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Postal Service, which seemed ready to end Saturday mail deliveries a few months ago, is taking another look at whether the public would accept the cutback.

Postmaster General Benjamin F. Bailar said that before any decision is made to reduce service, "We intend to do a comprehensive study of what the public wishes."

The Postal Service still is considering the cutback, but will delay its decision until a new public opinion survey is completed, Bailar said.

Last spring, the Commission on Postal Service recommended that Saturday service be eliminated, saving the financially troubled Postal Service an estimated $400 million a year.

Bailar praised the study group at the time and said the service was considering the move.

Then, in late June, the agency put the proposal on its agenda for a July meeting of the Postal Service's governing board. But when the meeting was held, the item was passed over.

Bailar's speech to a convention of the National League of Postmasters in San Juan, Puerto Rico, was the first public explanation of the delay.

A survey conducted by the A.G. Nielsen polling organization for the study commission found 79 per cent of the public would be willing to forego the sixth delivery day if it would help hold down postal rates.

But now the Postal Service is having second thoughts about that study.

"The results of subsequent surveys ... have differed enough with the Nielsen figures to make us want to more thoroughly analyze the public's acceptance of this move," Bailar said Thursday.

A spokesman, explaining the "subsequent surveys," said results from a new poll commissioned by the Postal Service are confusing.

The speaker has been an evangelist for the past several years, preaching in Southern California.

He will be joined at the services by Mike Trenton, a singer who appears on television channel 40 with "Spirit Song."

Revival services will begin at 7:30 p.m. on Sept. 2 and 3 and 6 p.m. on Sept. 4.

Labor Day picnic at Drive-in

The third annual Christian Labor Day Picnic will be held Sept. 5 at 11:30 a.m. at the Valley Community Drive-In Church, San Dimas.

Old-fashioned games, sack races and three-legged races will be held. Prizes will be awarded for the best decorated bikes in three age categories: 3 to 6, 7 to 10 and 11 to 14.

Softball and volley ball games will be played. A frisbee-throwing contest will be judged for style, accuracy and distance. Winners will be awarded prizes.

The day will begin with a picnic lunch at 11:30 a.m. Families are invited to bring their own picnic basket to eat on the lawns, or they may purchase food from some of the many booths serving hamburgers, hot dogs, melons, Chinese food and soft drinks.

Other booths will invite browsing. They will have antiques, rummage and books.

An assortment of children's rides will be operated. At 4 p.m. a talent contest will be held. Persons interested in entering the contest are invited to contact the church office at 599-6767. At 7 p.m. a full-length family film will be shown in the drive-in area.

Teen-ager to report on work

Diana Griffiths will report on her summer in India under Teen Missions, Inc., Sunday at the 11 a.m. worship service at Bonita Avenue Church in La Verne.

Miss Griffiths spent eight weeks in Pallawokkam, a village near Madras, India, as part of a 30-member team constructing a church building for a new congregation.

A Bonita High School graduate and daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Griffiths of Wrightwood, formerly of La Verne, Miss Griffith is assistant superintendent of the Sunday school at the church.

Teen Missions, Inc., is a missionary service organization which sends hundreds of teen-agers each summer to various parts of the world to work on mission projects. Each team member raises his own support and takes two weeks of intensive camp training at Merritt Island, Fla., before being sent abroad. Miss Griffiths' team, the first ever sent to Asia, constructed the Pallawokkam church under the auspices of the Advent Christian Conference of India and the Department of Missions of the Advent Christian General Conference of America.

Aparteid rejected

DAR ES SALAAM, Tanzania (AP) — The Lutheran World Federation, representing most of the Lutherans around the world, has urged its white member churches in southern Africa to work for universal suffrage in South Africa, and "publicly and unequivocally reject the existing apartheid system."

At its assembly, the inter-Lutheran body also sharply protested the "continuing threat to human dignity and the manifold violations of human rights by the white minority in South Africa, Namibia and Zimbabwe (Rhodesia)."

Serving size

With so many styles of steak for the barbecue it's easy to match up all tastes and budgets with just the right cut of beef. Whether buying deluxe individual steaks or economical family size steaks, figure amount to purchase on lean edible beef — usually ¼ to ⅓ pound per serving depending on individual appetites and the menu.

Samaritans stave off extinction

TEL AVIV (AP) — Since Joseph begat Ephraim and Manasseh, history has been an ingrate to the Samaritans, caught in a free-fall toward oblivion. The hint of a respite from the dark line downward is appearing only now.

The descendants of the sons of Joseph and the Biblical Good Samaritan, who Jesus revered for his rescue of a wounded man ignored by priests and Levites, have barely managed to set up camp on this side of extinction.

One hundred twenty-six generations ago, according to their chronicles, there were 750,000 Samaritans in what is modern Israel. Today, four families, the Danfis, Cohens, Marchivs and Tsedakas, 470 people in all, maintain the sect's rites and traditions, half of them living in a grubby Tel Aviv suburb called Holon and the others in Nablus, near the Samaritan holy site of Mount Gerizim where Joshua blessed his people.

Nablus is in occupied Jordan and in the 10 years since the Six Day War, the Samaritans have fallen on the windfall of free passage between the formerly separated communities to meet, marry and beget. Since the war, 102 Samaritan children have been born, increasing the world's Samaritan population by almost a quarter. But for the sect's historian, the births are barely a jot on a graph of precariousness 20 centuries long.

Benyamin Tsedaka, a 125th generation descendant of Manasseh who runs a bi-weekly Samaritan newspaper, takes the development without much excitement. "We shall see," he says, a man with little trust in stability.

"It took about 19 centuries for the Christians to get interested in what had happened to us," he said, referring to a British consul in Palestine who tried to assist the Samaritan community when it numbered 146 near the turn of the century.

"The good Samaritan story never did us a bit of good. Between the fourth and sixth centuries the area was under Byzantine Christian rule.

"They wanted us to become Christians and we were destroyed. Then there was pressure to convert to Islam.

"More died. Many more. It is not a story that builds your trust in anything."

Tsedaka maintains that the Samaritan Community, described by a chief rabbi in Jerusalem as a "branch of the Jewish people" was equal in size to the Jews—descendants of the tribe of Judah for the Samaritans — at the time of Jesus.

He interprets Jesus' fondness for the Samaritans as based on similar differences with the Jews on matters of law and religion. The Samaritans assisted Jesus in Samaria, Tsedaka said, "but Jesus' disciples didn't understand the situation, thinking he wanted us to be Christians. We wanted to remain ourselves and they turned against us."

The Samaritans believe in one God and the prophet Moses, but differ from the Jews in considering Holy writ to be composed of only the first five books of Moses. Talmudic law is excluded and Mt. Gerizim rather than Jerusalem is the central holy place.

Church nearing 100th birthday

After researching the archives and drawing on members' memories, the Rev. and Mrs. Ray Coatney, pastors of Echoes of Calvary Christian Center, Montclair, have determined the church is nearing its 100th birthday.

It began as Narod Union Church, remembers Lonnie Jones of Montclair, who said one pastor picked up children in a horse-drawn buggy. For many years the church was dependent upon traveling ministers.

Later, it was known as the Little White Church, then Montclair Pentecostal Church and recently, Echoes of Calvary Christian Center.

Long-standing members of the church will be recognized during the 10 a.m. service Sunday when the congregation observes Old Timers Day.

Wanda Learned, of the First Baptist Church in Dallas, Tex., will speak at 4 p.m.

2 valley rabbis get lectureships

Two valley rabbis will be among 10 participants in resident lectureships which have been endowed by the Jewish Chautauqua Society in Southern California for the 1977-78 academic year.

Rabbi Irving Mandel of Temple Beth Israel in Pomona will teach a course in honor of J. Robert Arkush at Chapman College in Orange.

Rabbi Melvin Sands of Claremont Men's College will teach at the Claremont Colleges and at Southern California School of Theology.

Four courses endowed by the Jewish Chautauqua Society in honor of Rabbi Edgar F. Magnin will be taught at Cal State campuses at Fullerton, Los Angeles and Riverside.

Other courses will be presented at the Hebrew Union College in Los Angeles, Loyola-Marymount College, and Occidental.

The society, the educational project of the National Federation of Temple Brotherhoods, endows accredited courses in Judaic Studies for the purpose of promoting a better understanding of Judaism among people of all faiths.

Founded in 1893, the society to date has endowed 206 courses, enlisted the services of 600 rabbis who lecture at 2,208 colleges, donated 90,000 Jewish reference books to college libraries, and produced 40 films for network and private broadcastings.

Bishop will judge TV series

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (AP) — "Soap," ABC's controversial new comedy series, will be previewed by the Catholic bishop of Providence before the local affiliate decides whether to run the show.

WPRI-TV, ABC's affiliate here, agreed to let the Most Rev. Louis E. Gelineau watch the first three episodes, which include an attempted seduction of a priest in a confessional.

Edwin W. Pfeiffer, WPRI-TV's vice president and general manager, said his station probably will run the series but he is withholding final judgment pending the bishop's comments.

"I don't see anything that would justify keeping it off the air," Pfeiffer said. "But, of course, the bishop has his own responsibility to make his views known."

Bishop Gelineau said he asked for a chance to preview the show "so I will be able to express my views after seeing the program firsthand."

ABC said it was toning down some of the opening episodes of "Soap," which drew criticism from the United States Catholic Conference for alleged irreverence toward the Eucharist as well as their treatment of sex, homosexuality and ethnic and racial themes.

Some affiliated stations have refused to carry some episodes of the series and at least two advertisers have withdrawn plans to sponsor the show.

Pfeiffer said the previewing would be held at the diocesan chancery office, which has a video cassette player, "whenever they give me the word."

Diocesan officials said they were trying to find a time for viewing the show in the schedules of both Bishop Gelineau and the Most Rev. Kenneth A. Angell, auxiliary bishop.

Korean evangelist starts tuna fleet

MAGNOLIA, Mass. (AP) — Korean evangelist Sun Myung Moon has launched a small tuna fishing fleet off the New England coast. A spokesman for his Unification Church says the catch is sold to Japan, where raw tuna costs $8 a pound.

A church spokesman says the enterprise is the start of a long-range attempt to solve the world's food shortage with fish.

"We view the ocean as being very important," said Adrian Barry, director of the church's operations in New England. "It contains the main food resources to actually feed the world for the next 20 to 30 years."

He said 60 to 100 tuna, which are shipped to the Unification Church in Japan, have been caught this summer.

The fish, which often weigh more than 500 pounds, are a delicacy in Japan and bring premium prices, according to the fishermen. No American taxes are paid on the catch, because the religious organization is tax exempt.

Moon often accompanies the crew, who are church members, as they land their valuable catch on Middle Bank between Gloucester and Provincetown.

The largest of the church's boats is the 48-foot New Hope.

Barry said the fishing serves a spiritual as well as financial purpose.

"The Rev. Moon considers this excellent training for our leaders in our church, to actually have this kind of experience, to work together, to wait together, to pray and meditate a long time and finally to try to land a fish when it is caught," said Barry. "It's a very exciting process."

Barry said Moon has spent several weeks this summer at the rented house, which was recently put up for sale by its owner for $285,000.

JEWS FOR JESUS — Moishe Rosen of San Rafael is the leader of Jews for Jesus, a movement interlocking traditional Jewish practices with a belief in Jesus. Its ranks have swelled to some 15,000 to 30,000 believers in the past five years, most of them reared and educated in Judaism. "Because of their belief in Jesus, they feel more Jewish than ever, more loyal to Judaism and more committed to Jewish causes," explains Rosen.

The Covenant Players have done chancel drama in all parts of the United States. The Rev. David Lull will conduct the liturgy.

Barnard brothers in death pact

CAPE TOWN, South Africa (AP) — Dr. Christiaan Barnard, who perfomed the world's first human heart transplant, says he and his brother Marius have agreed to a pact that if one becomes terminally ill and despondent, and suicide is impossible, the other will "help him to die."

Marius Barnard also is a surgeon.

'Marius and I decided that we would never let the situation happen where we became terminally ill and lost the will to live but could do nothing about ending our lives," Barnard said, according to the South African Press Association. "Our agreement is that if that happens to either of us, the other will help him to die."

Christiaan Barnard, 54, made his comments Wednesday in a speech at a publication luncheon for his new novel. He is co-author with Siegfried Stander of "In the Night Season," a book dealing in part with euthanasia, or mercy killing.

Christiaan said earlier this year that he and Marius gave doctors permission to let their 92-year-old mother "die peacefully."

Mrs. Maria Elizabeth Barnard, who had a stroke 10 years ago, died in Cape Town last February. Barnard said that shortly before her death his mother could no longer feed herself, although her life could have been prolonged by pushing feeding tubes down her throat.

The surgeon has said previously he does not support "active euthanasia," but believes people whose conditions are beyond hope should be allowed to die in peace.

Church group takes on multinationals

World Council calls for strikes, boycotts

GENEVA (LENS) — The World Council of Churches wants Christians to take on the multi-national companies. On Aug. 6 the WCC's central committee adopted a resolution in Geneva calling on its members to oppose the multinationals' "controversial" policies in the West and in the Third World. No mention, uncuriously, of the communist world, whose governments tolerate no protesters, churchy or non-churchy, against the capitalist multinationals with whom they do excellent business.

The World Council of Churches is against multinational companies on the ground that they are accomplices of "repressive states, predatory local elites and racism" and thus pillars of a system that "oppresses, excludes and exploits."

The Geneva churchmen are working on something called a "theology of liberating change." Until that has been got on the road, the WCC's 293 member churches — which do not include the Roman Catholic one — are urged to exert moral pressure on Christians working for the multinationals and help strikes and boycotts against the companies. The withdrawal of church funds from some of the companies may be recommended by the WCC's permanent staff in Geneva when its new study of the problem is complete.

How effective would a WCC-led anti-multinational crusade be? To judge by its previous campaign against racism, not very. Since 1970, it has disbursed about $2 million to various guerrilla movements and militant groups — mainly in Africa — under the heading of humanitarian aid. A further $530,000 was allocated in Geneva last week to 35 bodies in 14 countries: the biggest slice to Swapo, the guerrilla movement in South West Africa.

Neither this financial help nor other measures, such as withdrawal of church funds from firms operating in or trading with southern Africa, seem to have had much effect in Africa, though they have irritated some western churchmen.

All the same, some of the multinationals could be hurt by a concerted campaign of the sort the WCC seems to have in mind. In Third-World countries, the campaign could encourage local hostility and discourage locally recruited members of the staff. That was probably why representatives of four large multinationals — Nestle, Philips, Shell and Unilever — turned up at a WCC discussion on the subject in Geneva in June. The WCC is said to have needed some prodding to invite them to attend; and at least one of the multinationals' representatives came away feeling that it wanted to provoke a confrontation with the companies, not work out an agreement on how to make them work better.

Many people, not all of them left-wing, have serious reservations about some aspects of the multinationals' work, and believe these huge and powerful bodies need to be kept under close scrutiny. But a generalized onslaught of the WCC kind is unlikely to help its intended beneficiaries. There is already far too much underemployment in many of the world's poorer countries; a crusade against the multinationals is liable to mean less investment and therefore cause even more unemployment.

An Irish churchman said in Geneva last week that Ireland — unemployment rate 9-10 per cent — would be reluctant to push that figure even higher by militancy against multinationals.

Unliberated timidity, in the view of the WCC's Geneva activists. But the component churches of this body contain 1.2 billion people, and it would be interesting to know how many of them agree with the campaign the Genevites are asking them to join.

Dodgers hold off Cards

By DON BRADLEY
PB Staff Writer

LOS ANGELES — Rick Rhoden worked his magic Friday night and the Dodgers hung on to edge the St. Louis Cardinals, 5-4.

The win enabled the Angelenos to maintain their 8½ game lead over the Cincinnati Reds who defeated the Phils, 4-2.

Going into Friday night's contest, Rhoden had made 25 starts this year and the Dodgers had scored 123 runs. That averages to 4.92 runs per game.

So it adds up to an average outing for Rhoden (15-8) and the Dodger hitters.

Johnny Oates launched the Dodgers with his third homerun to lead off the home third.

But it was Ron Cey who supplied the big punch. He slapped a two-run roundtripper in the fourth. It was his 24th homer and 96th and 97th runs-batted-in.

The little third baseman, who has averaged under .200 since July 4, also had a single.

"It's been very aggravating, very frustrating," he said of his experience. "I've hit the ball well, but I haven't gotten many hits.

"I've never gone through a period like this before. It's quite unique. I'd hit a line drive to leftfield, a line drive to rightfield, a two-hopper to third and a two-hopper to short . . . just pound the ball all day and have nothing to show for it.

"It was really frustrating."

Rhoden departed after yielding nine hits and four runs in 5&1/3 innings.

But he kept the Redbirds away from the plate the first three innings while giving up only one hit.

Oates' blast in the last of the third gave Rhoden a 1-0 lead. The Cards tied it in the fourth on Jerry Mumphrey's single, a walk and Keith Hernandez' double.

The Dodgers came back with three in their half of the inning.

Reggie Smith walked and Cey picked on a 1-0 pitch by Eric Rasmussen (10-12) and smashed a towering drive into the stands down the leftfield line.

The third run of the inning came on singles by Steve Garvey and Rick Monday and Dusty Baker's infield out.

Lee Lacy provided the heroics for what was actually the winning run.

Lacy beat out an infield hit to lead off the Dodger half of the inning. Gary Templeton made a great play on the ball on the first base side of second, but threw wildly allowing Lacy to advance to second.

When Bill Russell faked a bunt and Cardinal third baseman Kenny Reitz took a couple of steps toward the plate, Lacy broke for third and beat the throw from catcher Ted Simmons who had to wait for Reitz to get back.

Smith's sacrifice fly then scored Lacy.

"It was good to see Penguin (Cey) and Garv (Garvey) hitting the ball," said manager Tommy Lasorda. "Monday is swinging better, too. If we get Monday, Garv and Cey going, we're going to score some runs.

"That was a real heady play by Lee Lacy. Not every ballplayer is smart enough to do that."

DODGER DATA — Tonight is Hollywood Stars Night. The Stars will face a media team at 6:30 p.m. with the Dodgers-Cards game following at 8 p.m.

Among the luminaries listed for the event are Bob Newhart, Telly Savalas, Walter Matheau, David Soul, Ed Asner, Mike Connors, Glen Campbell and Dick Benjamin, to name a few.

Burt Hooton (9-7) and John Denny (7-5) will do the pitching tonight. In Sunday's series finale, Don Sutton (11-8) and Bob Forsch (16-5) will go head to head again.

Irwin's 62 gives him big lead

PINEHURST, N.C. (AP) — Hale Irwin had a feeling things were going to change.

"I'd felt for a long, long time that I wasn't playing as poorly as my record would indicate," Irwin said, "and my record indicated poor play."

To that feeling he added a generous dash of grim determination and spiced it with his trademark, a career domination of the toughest golf courses this country has to offer.

The result was a spectacular, nine-under-par 62 on famed No. 2 at the Pinehurst Country Club, a 36-hole total of 127 that's the best in more than a decade of tour competition and just one stroke off the all-time record, and an imposing, five-shot lead halfway through the $250,000 Hall of Fame Golf Classic.

"I came in here with a must-win situation," Irwin said Friday after posting his incredible 15 under par total on the 7,007-yard layout in the Carolina sandhills that has long been known as one of America's premier courses.

"It's very, very gratifying to go out and play the kind of golf I've played, not just today, but for two days."

He paused and added, "This tournament has a special meaning to me."

It means a spot in next week's prestigicus World Series of Golf. It's a sore point with Irwin, and a considerable embarassment to the PGA Tour. Irwin was told he'd gained a place in the World Series after the spring portion of the tour closed with his victory in the Atlanta Classic May 29.

Irwin, content in that knowledge, arranged his schedule accordingly, taking some time off. Six weeks later he was told there had been a computer error in compiling statistics. He hadn't made it. Graham Marsh was in, and he was out.

Now he has to win here to make it. And he took a major step in that direction with his effort that matched the course record for 18 holes set in 1973 and was just one stroke off the all-time tour mark for two rounds set in 1948.

Bonds' 31st HR gives Halos win

DETROIT (AP) — Bobby Bonds drilled a two-run homer into the lower right field seats in the 11th inning Friday to give California a 7-4 victory over the Detroit Tigers.

It was the 31st homer of the season for Bonds, tops in the American League.

The Angels addded an insurance run later in the inning when Don Baylor scored on Gil Flores' two-out double.

The Tigers had tied it in the ninth when John Wockenfuss scored on Aurelio Rodriguez' two-out double.

Angels second basemen Jerry Remy also had a homer, a fifth inning blast off the facing of the upper deck in right field.

Dave LaRoche, working in relief of starter Frank Tanana, got his eighth victory against five defeats. Steve Foucault, 45, took the defeat. He was the fourth Detroit pitcher.

Detroit got on the board first when Ron LeFlore led off the Tigers' first with a single, went to second on Dave Chalk's wide throw to first and scored on Tito Fuentes' sharp double to left. The run was unearned.

California evened it in the second when Tony Solaita singled, took second on a groundout and scored on Rance Mulliniks' double.

The Angels got two more in the third. Thad Bosley, who had three singles for the night, was forced home when Morris issued a bases-loaded walk to Solaita, then Baylor's forceout got Remy home.

The Tigers narrowed it to 4-3 in the eighth when rookie Bob Adams, pinch hitting for shortstop Tom Veryzer, hit his second home run of the season into the lower leftfield seats. Staub then hit a two-out double and scored on Kemp's single to short left.

Teddy Martinez lost for year

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Dodger reserve infielder Teddy Martinez will have surgery on his left knee sometime next week and will be lost for the rest of the season, a spokesman for the National League team said Friday.

Martinez was hurt in a collision at second base in Thursday's game at Pittsburgh, suffering torn ligaments in the knee.

To replace Martinez on the Los Angeles roster, the Dodgers called up Rafael Landestoy from their Albuquerque, N.M., farm club. Landestoy was batting .277 for the Dukes in 131 games, and had stolen 58 bases. He was slated to join the Dodgers for Friday night's game against the St. Louis Cardinals.

May records another first

SOFIA, Bulgaria (AP) — Darlene May, who is also the womens' athletic director for Cal Poly Pomona, continued to make basketball history Friday as a referee.

May became the first woman to officiate a men's international basketball game when she worked the Italy-France encounter. The Americans emerged victorious, 85-69, in their contest.

American men's and women's basketball teams shoot for their own spot in basketball's record books today, the final day of competition at the World University Games.

Although U.S. men's basketball teams have long dominated world tournaments, American women have never won a major international title. Victories by both would be a rare gold medal double.

While the U.S. men rolled over Czechoslovakia, the U.S. women upset Bulgaria, 87-84, to reach the finals against teams from the Soviet Union.

The Soviet men edged Canada 73-68 to set up a rematch with the U.S. team that beat them in the semifinal round of the 31-nation tournament. The Soviet women stayed undefeated by routing Cuba 93-45. They beat the U.S. women earlier this week.

American swimmer Bonnie Glasgow celebrated her 18th birthday Friday by winning her third gold medal of the student games in the women's 200-meter medley.

Although Miss May's officiating of the men's consolation round basketball match between Italy and France didn't earn her a medal, it was perhaps the most remarkable female performance of the day.

Last week, the brunette ended an all-male monopoly on refereeing at major amateur basketball competitions by calling the fouls in a women's game. Some doubted that she could contend with male players, but on Friday she dispelled all skepticism.

"When I walked out on the court, some of the guys from the Italian team gave me that 'Is she going to do our game?' look," Miss May said. "But they didn't question it. I just drew back a bit. I thought it was kind of funny."

Sharing officiating with a Danish man, Miss May immediately established her authority over both male teams. The 5-foot-7 woman started the game by tossing up the ball at the opening jump, and less than a minute later she whistled down a Italian player for fouling a Frenchman under his own basket.

The Italian team, one of Europe's best amateur squads, won the game.

"It was a clean game and easy to call," Miss May said. "The only thing difficult to contend with is that they are bigger and get down the court much quicker than women.

"The guys argued with me on a couple of calls, but I pointed and explained to them and they understood. They're out to fight for their case, and I for mine. But there were no serious complaints."

Miss May was the first American woman to be sanctioned by the International Basketball Federation to officiate at the international level. She earned the classification in 1975 but didn't have a chance to show her ability until this tournament.

Does she consider her officiating a breakthrough for women's equality?

"That's what I feel," she said. "I think we've now proven that there are some women capable of refereeing at the international level. We do have some qualified people."

Four other American women also have the international classification, and there are several from other countries waiting in the wings.

Antonoplis in Jr. net finals

PORT WASHINGTON, N.Y. — Maria Fernandez, 16, of Torrance upset second-seeded Sheila McInerney of Rome, N.Y., Friday to advance to a showdown with Glendora's Lea Antonoplis in today's finals of the International Young Masters Tennis Tournament.

The fifth-seeded Fernandez scored her upset when she scored 6-2 and 7-5 victories over McInerney.

Antonoplis advanced to the finals by defeating No. 3 seed Barbara Hallquist of Arcadia, the women's U.S. Intercollegiate champion from Southern California, 6-2, 6-2.

Shoemaker rides Teller to victory

DEL MAR, Calif. (AP) — Teller coasted to a 3-length victory in the $11,000 San Diego Convention and Visitors Bureau Purse at Del Mar Friday.

Teller, ridden by Bill Shoemaker and carrying 113 pounds, covered 1 1-16 miles in 1:41 3-5 and paid $7.20, $5 and $4.60. Kaskee, with Thomas Chapman up, finished second and returned $5.60 and $4.60. Trust Up, with Marco Castaneda aboard, paid $6 to show.

Nine horses entered the event for 3-year-olds and up. Favored Master Elbow, ridden by Fernando Toro, finished fourth.

Teller led nearly all the way, holding a 6-length advantage at one point in breezing to the easy win.

Shoemaker, Castaneda and Chuck Baltazar rode two winners apiece Friday before a crowd of 12,983.

Violence in NFL secondaries will not change: Elmendorf

FULLERTON, Calif. (AP) — Los Angeles safety Dave Elmendorf, a six-year National Football League veteran, says violence is the name of the game in the defensive secondary. The commotion over the George Atkinson-Lynn Swann incident will not change that.

"That thing was really blown out of proportion," said Elmendorf, dean of the Rams' defensive backfield. "People seem to suddenly forget how many times receivers come out and nail guys in the secondary with crack-back blocks. You're out there as opponents, guys hitting each other."

Elmendorf particularly disagreed with Pittsburgh Coach Chuck Noll's comment about there being "a criminal element" in football after Swann, a Pittsburgh wide receiver, received a concussion when hit by Oakland defensive back Atkinson during a Steelers-Raiders game last year.

"That was a stupid statement," Elmendorf said. "All of a sudden I'm a criminal element. Defensive backs are criminals. It's guilt by association.

"There have been other shots to the head, other concussions in pro football; that was not the first time it happened nor will it be the last."

Elmendorf added that he believes the rules on a football field differ from the rules off it.

"If the same thing happened to me," he said, "a blocker hit me like that, I wouldn't make a big deal out of it. To me it's a football game and that's the way it is."

Despite crack-back blocks and all the other physical punishment defensive backs are subjected to, Elmendorf said he loves his work.

A Texas A&M graduate who was a scholar—3.84 average out of a possible 4.0—as well as a talented baseball and football player, the 28-year-old Elmendorf said he likes playing football now even more than he did in his earlier years with the Rams.

"I really enjoy it more now than I used to," he said. "I know I'm getting to the point where I can see the end of my career, another four or five years, and I know I have to get the most out of it while I can."

Elmendorf, who has 19 career interceptions, said his six years of NFL experience is both a blessing and a curse.

"You pick up a few new things each year, and it all adds up. You get to know the receivers, get to know each team's keys better. When they're up to something different, you can smell a rat.

"But on the other hand," Elmendorf continued, "you have to be careful not to get too confident when you've been around for a while. You begin to take some things for granted—what the other team will probably do in a given situation, for instance—and lose your concentration, get lackadaisical.

"If you're a safety and you do that, the next thing you know there's some guy behind you catching the football."

Van Winkle leaves Cal Poly position

Allen Van Winkle recently resigned his position as assistant basketball coach at Cal Poly Pomona to take a similar position at West Texas State.

ALLEN VAN WINKLE

Van Winkle's resignation, effective Aug. 15, ended a four-year stint as assistant to Bronco head coach Don Hogan. During that time, the 29-year old coach played a key role in recruiting athletes for the Cal Poly program.

He will perform in the same area for West Texas State as well as working in the promoting the Buffalo basketball program, which is headed by Ron Ekker.

One of seven interviewed for the post and one of the 40-odd applicants, Van Winkle impressed Ekker, according to an article in a Texas newspaper, "with his ability to sell himself, but not oversell. He did a good job of communication. I liked his knowledge of recruiting. He'd sell the school well. He's persistent."

By joining Ekker and fifth-year assistant Rick Starzecki, Van Winkle's contract is for a reported $16,500.

No information was available as to a possible successor to Van Winkle at Cal Poly.

Mickey Thompson suffers injury

RIVERSIDE, Calif. (AP) — Mickey Thompson, already ailing from a crash six days ago in which he broke three ribs, fractured a finger Friday in an accident during qualifying for the SCORE Off-Road World Championships at Riverside International Raceway.

Thompson was involved in another accident later Friday but was uninjured and said he planned to race today.

The Long Beach, Calif., driver came off a jump in his MT Challenger dune buggy and banged into another car that had rolled going over the jump. The other driver was unhurt and Thompson returned to the course and drove more laps in the vehicle after having first aid for the swollen and bloody hand.

He was making a qualifying run again when he bounced hard in a rough section of the two-mile dirt course, and the wheel was wrench out of his weakened hand. The car then rolled over but Thompson was unhurt.

Thompson is entered in the $18,000 Challenge of Champions, an invitational event that has drawn 18 other top off-road drives, including Parnelli Jones, Rick and Roger Mears and Fritz Kroyer.

Rams to start Namath

KANSAS CITY (AP) — The Los Angeles Rams and Kansas City Chiefs will go with their big guns tonight as both teams try to even their preseason records in the National Football League.

The Chiefs, 1-2, were expected to stick with their No. 1 quarterback, Mike Livingston, for the entire game, while the Rams, also 1-2, will counter with Joe Namath in the first half and their No. 1 signal caller, Pat Haden in the second half.

Namath, acquired in the offseason from the New York Jets, complained in the wake of the Rams' 23-14 loss to San Francisco last weekend that he was rusty and needed more action. Haden also asked for more playing time.

Coach Chuck Knox apparently agreed, leaving rookie quarterback Vince Ferragamo from Nebraska watching from the bench tonight against the Chiefs.

Tom Bettis, defensive backfield coach for Kansas City, said he sees Namath as a potent passing force against the Chiefs.

"One thing we can be assured of in playing against Namath. He's not going to scramble with those knees," Bettis said.

The Rams have been experimenting with attention on the tight end as a primary receiver, and it's paid off so far with tight end Terry Nelson leading the club in receptions in three preseason games. Playing behind Bob Klein the past three seasons, Nelson had caught a total of five passes. In three preseason games this summer, he's caught eight passes for 146 yards.

Rams running back Lawrence McCutcheon, who has missed previous preseason action with a pulled hamstring, will see his first action of the summer tonight, lining up with John Cappelletti in the Rams' backfield.

The Chiefs will counter with veteran Mac Arthur Lane and rookie Tony Reed, a No. 2 draft pick from Colorado, in the backfield.

One of the highlights of the game for Big Eight Conference football fans will be their first look at Nolan Cromwell as a professional. Cromwell, a record-setting quarterback his last two years at Kansas, is expected to see a lot of action in a backup role at strong safety and free safety for the Rams.

Kickoff is 7:35 p.m. (CDT).

Navratilova slays Austin

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — Martina Navratilova beat 14year-old Tracy Austin 6-1, 6-2 in the Womens Tennis Classic Friday.

Miss Navratilova moved to the net at will to place smashing passing shots out of the diminutive Miss Austin's reach. Miss Austin won the sixth game of the first set and refused to give up while down five games in the second in the 55-minute match.

"She is so strong and just overpowered me," she said afterward. "I see how much I have to learn."

Miss Navratilova advances to Saturday's semifinals against JoAnne Russell, seeded fifth, who breezed by Bridgitte Cuypers 6-0, 6-1.

Ackermann sets new HJ record

BERLIN, Germany (AP) — Rosemarie Ackermann of East Germany set a world record for the women's high jump Friday at a track and field meet at West Berlin's Olympic Stadium, jumping exactly two meters—6 feet, 6¾ inches.

The Olympic champion, 25, bettered her own world record of 1.97 meters—6-5½ — she had set only two weeks ago in Helsinki.

Turner's Courageous continues dominance

NEWPORT, R.I. (AP) — Courageous, skippered by Ted Turner, continued her domination of the America's Cup final defense series Friday, defeating Ted Hood's Independence by 48 seconds.

The victory gave Turner a record of 8-1 in the final series, while Independence, Courageous' sister yacht, slipped to 3-5. Enterprise, skippered by Malin Burnham, had the day off to do some bottom work and was at 2-7.

Enterprise and Independence were scheduled to race today, giving Courageous a day off.

Independence, with new tactician Steve van Dyck aboard, took the start of the morning race by 11 seconds. But Turner caught a lift on the first, windward leg, tacked twice, found a line to the mark and suddenly was 100 yards ahead of Hood.

Turner, owner of baseball's Atlanta Braves, led by 1:25 rounding the first mark after both boats changed to lighter jib sails in winds that diminished to five knots and shifted almost 180 degrees from northnortheast to southsouthwest before the race.

Racing over a 24.3-mile, sixleg course, Independence made up some time on Courageous over the first reaching leg and, at one point, Hood had closed the gap to about five boat lengths. Independence trailed by 1:09 at the second mark.

Under spinnaker on the second reach, Independence closed the gap to several boat lengths, trailing by 43 seconds at the third mark. Hood forced Turner into a tacking duel on the second beat to windward, but Courageous covered her tack for tack and led by 1:35 at the fourth mark.

On the run, Independence and Courageous got into a gybing duel. This time, Hood came out with the advantage, and by the fifth mark he had cut almost a minute off the deficit, trailing by 40 seconds.

Sverige of Sweden and Australia, the new 12 meter from Perth, had a day off in their best-of-seven final series for challengers. Australia won the first race in the series that will determine which foreign boat will be in the cup series against the United States beginning Sept. 13.

Taiwan to go with ace

WILLIAMSPORT, Pa. (AP) — The powerful Liteh Little League, which has already breezed past two opponents in the 31st annual Little League World Series, brings its ace out of the hole in Saturday's championship game.

He is 5-foot-5, 143-pound Chiang Chen-jung, who has already given a good impersonation of a 12-year-old Hank Aaron, with three home runs, eight RBIs and an .875 batting average for the tournament.

In the title game, Chen-jung will do his Tom Seaver impression against the Western Little League of El Cajon, Calif.

"We will win because he is our number one pitcher. He is very strong and throws a very hard fastball," said Taiwan Manager Hsu Chun-chuan through an interpreter.

"He lost one game last year and worked to improve himself. He is always playing baseball, even in the morning. He works very hard," the manager added.

El Cajon Manager Scotty Ampleton is well aware of Chen-jung's physical abilities. "He's built like a 25-year-old man," he said.

Led by Chen-jung, the Taiwan team is heavily favored to capture the Far East's ninth title in the last 11 years. The Li-teh team has outscored two teams 28-2, outhit them 29-5 while compiling a team batting average of .425 and committing just one error.

"The most important reason for our success is that the players always concentrate on baseball. They listen to what the manager and coaches tell them," said Chun-chuan.

"If we tell them to do something, they do it. If we tell them not to do it, they would never do it," he added.

El Cajon's chances rest on the strong right arm of John Osborne, a 5-foot-6, 130-pound fireballer. Osborne struck out 15 batters and allowed only three hits in an opening-round game. He also whacked a home run.

And Taiwan's strength provides plenty of incentive for the U.S. West champions.

"We came to play Taiwan— that's what we're here for. That's what I told the kids July 1, the first day we practiced," said Ampleton.

"There is no question the Chinamen are extremely strong. They are machine-trained. They do everything letter-perfect. But this is still an American game, and I can't concede to them," he added.

The title game will be televised by ABC-TV.

Youngsters key Viking win, 33-7

BLOOMINGTON, Minn. (AP) — Rookie quarterback Tommy Kramer threw his first professional touchdown pass and second-year players Duck White and Sammy White each scored touchdowns as the Minnesota Vikings overwhelmed Miami 33-7 in a National Football League exhibition game Friday night.

The experienced Minnesota defense, which had allowed over 1,000 yards and 79 points in its first three exhibition games, dominated the game which snapped Miami's string of 11 straight preseason victories. The Vikings intercepted four passes and recovered one fumble in the one-sided contest, which was nationally televised.

Miami's frustration climaxed in the final seconds of the game when the Dolphins failed to score in four plays from two yards out.

Defensive tackle Duck White, the Vikings' No. 1 draft pick a year ago, scored on a 31-yard fumble recovery. Wide receiver Sammy White caught a Fran Tarkenton pass for a touchdown early in the second period to give the Vikings a 14-0 lead.

Minnesota, 3-1 in preseason play, scored on Rick Danmeier's 43-yard field goal in the final play of the half and then opened a 24-0 lead early in the third period on Robert Miller's one-yard scoring plunge.

The Dolphins, who defeated Tampa Bay, Washington and Dallas earlier this season, scored their first points midway through the third quarter on Bob Griese's 15-yard touchdown pass to Loaird McCreary.

Smith buried by Connors barrage

BROOKLINE, Mass. (AP) — Jimmy Connors outclassed Stan Smith with a barrage of groundstrokes Friday and earned a berth in the quarter finals of the $125,000 U.S. Pro Tennis Championships.

Connors, the tournament's top seed, played loosely throughout and even let Smith break his serve twice in the first set before he took over and won 6-4, 6-3.

The first set was tied twice before Connors won the last two games handily.

Connors, the top seed who narrowly escaped defeat Thursday against Wimbledon whiz John McEnroe, broke Smith in the third and ninth games of the deciding set as the veteran's game began falling apart.

Throughout the match, Connors appeared to be playing his best tennis only when he wanted. The 30-year-old Smith even broke his serve in a love game.

"We had some good points out there tonight," Connors said. "I thought I moved pretty well. The other day, (against McEnroe) I played when I had to. But tonight I played most of the match the way I wanted to. I'm pretty happy."

Connors added that one of his objectives was to keep Smith pinned in the backcourt so the lanky right-hander would be unable to control the net with his expert volleying.

Andretti sets record

ZANDVOORT, The Netherlands (AP) — With last-minute steering adjustments to his JPS-Lotus, American Mario Andretti shattered the lap record Friday in the first day of trials for Sunday's Dutch Grand Prix.

The 37-year-old Formula I driver from Nazareth, Pa., clocked 1 minute 18.85 seconds at 119 miles an hour on the winding 2½-mile Zandvoort circuit.

U.S. takes Walker Cup lead

SOUTHAMPTON, N.Y. (AP) — Scott Simpson, winner of the NCAA championships in 1976 and again this year, was involved in a pair of lopsided victories Friday to lead the U.S. to a 9-3 advantage over Great Britain in the 26th Walker Cup.

NHL announces rule change

TORONTO (AP) — The National Hockey League's rules committee, in a move it hopes will speed up the game, approved Friday an alteration to the regulation governing onside passes.

Under the new rule, a forward pass from inside the blue-line and across the center line may be successfully completed by a player legally on side at the center line or a player who is preceded by the puck across center.

BRISTOL, Tenn. (AP) — Cale Yarborough, driving a Chevrolet, and Dodge-driving Richard Petty, who rank 1-2 in the NASCAR point race, qualified for the front row Friday for Sunday's Volunteer 400 at Bristol International Speedway.

Sayers has tumor removed

CARBONDALE, Ill. (AP) — Gale Sayers, recently inducted into the Pro Football Hall of Fame, underwent surgery this month for a benign tumor in his chest, he revealed today.

"It's no problem," said Sayers, who is athletic director of Southern Illinois University.

"I had it taken care of and— again—it's no problem."

Green leads Irish Open

PORTMARNOCK, Ireland (AP) — U.S. Open Golf Champion Hubert Green fired a three-under-par 69 Friday and grabbed a one-stroke lead over three players after two rounds of the Irish Open Championship.

Green, who shot a first round 70, was five-under-par at 139 on this 72-par course followed closely by Australia's Greg Norman, South Africa's Andries Oosthuizen, and Ireland's Jimmy Kinsella at 140.

ACC cage diplomas slipping

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) — Atlantic Coast Conference basketball coaches are worried about a disturbing trend among their players: a declining number end their college careers without a diploma.

The coaches cite a number of reasons:

—Players can't keep their grades up.

—Intense publicity creates an unreal atmosphere in which academic achievement is difficult.

—Professional basketball offers big money to a talented few before they graduate.

—Freshman eligibility brings many students to college with unrealistic expectations of how much they will play in their first year.

Whatever the reason, the statistics for the past 15 years show a marked decline in the number of players who graduate on time and play out their college eligibility.

In the six-year period from 1962 to 1967, the seven ACC-member schools recruited 208 players on basketball scholarships. A total of 125, 60 per cent, both graduated and played out their eligibility. Meanwhile 161, or 77 per cent, eventually got their degrees.

From 1968 through 1973, the ACC recruited 203 players; 106, or 52 per cent, graduated and completed eligibility while 125, or 62 per cent, eventually graduated.

Since 1973, there have been 81 ACC basketball recruits and 26, or almost one-third, already have left campus. Of the 20 incoming freshmen in 1974, only 10 will be entering their senior years next month.

The graduation figure for ACC basketball recruits over the last 15 years is 266 out of 433, or 66 per cent.

North Carolina's Dean Smith has the best record of active ACC coaches in terms of keeping players on campus. He says coaches need to stay in better touch with their players off the court.

Smith, whose tenure spans the 15-year statistical period, has compiled a 332-104 record while graduating 40 or 73 per cent of 55 recruits and coaching 34 or 62 per cent of the 55 through four years of eligibility.

"From the time we start recruiting a player, we hammer away at the importance of academics,' Smith said. "We consider grades as part of a player's responsibility. In one-on-one conferences, I spend more time talking about academics than basketball. Players are encouraged to set academic goals for themselves, even to predict their grade-point averages. And if I get word that a player hasn't been attending class, he rides the bench for a while."

The statistics were compiled by The Greensboro Daily News.

The figures show that Virginia, which has graduated 41 of 53 recruits in the last 15 years, leads the ACC with a 77 per cent graduation score. Duke is second with 75 per cent, followed by Carolina's 73 per cent, Wake Forest's 65 per cent, Clemson's 61 per cent, Maryland's 59 per cent and N.C. State's 57 per cent.

N.C. State's Norm Sloan and Maryland's Lefty Driesell both cite the influence of professional contract opportunities for college standouts, despite the odds against actually cashing in big.

"A total of 700,000 youngsters play high school ball," said Sloan. "And 18,000 of them go on to play college ball. But there's only room for 264 players in the NBA. So we try to point out to players that those are unbelievably bad odds and that they'd better concentrate on getting an education to enter some other field."

Driesell said the freshmen eligibility rule has contributed to the problem.

"Most young players expect to come into a college program and get their share of playing time right off the bat," he said. "And when it doesn't happen, they become disappointed and eventually disenchanted."

Kings get home opener

INGLEWOOD — For only the third time in 11 years, the Los Angeles King open the regular season at home meeting the Cleveland Barons Wednesday, Oct. 12 and Detroit Red Wings Saturday, Oct. 15.

The Kings started their franchise at home in 1976-77 with a 4-2 win over Philadelphia and lost the 1973-74 season opener 3-0 to Chicago.

This year's 40-game schedule is almost a complete reversal of earlier years for new coach Ron Stewart. Whereas in the past, long home stands were the rule, they now become the exception. The Kings play seven one-game home stands versus two last season; four two-game, one three-game, two four-game and three five game home stands.

The Kings have 16 scheduled home games on Saturday nights, plus nine on Wednesday, eight on Thursday, five on Tuesday and one each on Sunday and Monday.

Broken down by month, the Kings play four home games in October, eight in November, eight in December, four in January, seven in February, six in March and three in April. The National Hockey League starts a week later this year.

The Kings play their Norris Division rivals — Montreal, Pittsburgh, Detroit and Washington — three times each and the same for Cleveland and Toronto. All other NHL teams come to The Forum twice.

There is a new playoff format this season that will increase the importance of every game. The first and second place finishers in each division qualify for the Stanley Cup Playoffs along with the four teams that earn the highest number of points among third and fourth place finishers. Last season, the top three finishers in each division qualified for post-season play.

Face-off time remains the same with all games beginning at 8 p.m. The lone exception is the Sunday New Year's Day game with Colorado which will begin at 7 p.m. Tickets are priced at $5.75, $7, $8 and $10 and will go on sale the last week of September.

'TWO-TON' TONY — Tony Galento, former heavyweight boxer who nearly upset Joe Louis, is recuperating after part of his left leg was amputated. Galento, 67, now lives in Orange, N.J.

'Two-ton' Tony Galento fighting toughest bout

ORANGE, N.J. (AP) — "Two-ton" Tony Galento, once a top contender for the heavyweight championship of the world, is fighting the toughest bout of his life.

The 67-year-old former boxer had part of his left leg amputated below the knee last June.

Doctors performed the operation on Galento, also a diabetic, to halt a circulatory problem. He will be fitted with an artificial limb in about two weeks, according to a doctor at the New Jersey Rehabilitation Hospital in East Orange. Meanwhile, he is revuperating at his home here.

"Tony's been a real inspiration to everyone here," said Dr. Terry Carle. "He's always laughing and joking with the other patients. Visitors often will come up to him for an autograph or to talk about his famous bout with Joe Louis" at Yankee Stadium in June 1939.

Louis was the heavy favorite to retain his title. Few expected Galento to last the first round against the champ's vicious lefts and rights. But Galento brought the stadium crowd to its feet in the third round when he caught Louis on the jaw with a sweeping left hook that sent the "Brown Bomber" sprawling to the canvas.

Louis came back in the next round to defeat Galento by a technical knockout. But a legend was born that night.

A stocky, beer-guzzling bartender from Orange, N.J., held his own with Joe Louis and came close to winning the upset of the century.

Galento was an unorthodox boxer. He trained on beer and cigars, never watched his waistline and weighed in at a pudgy 234 pounds.

He didn't have much finesse in the ring but his punches were so powerful he won most of his bouts by knockouts.

"I remember one time in Detroit," Galento said in a recent interview. "I knocked out three fighters in a row. I was 21 then and could have gone a few more rounds if need be."

Galento once flattened an opponent in just four seconds.

"I belted him across the chops with my first punch and down he went like a sack of beans," Galento said. "I fought the best of them like Lou Nova and Max Baer. I kayoed Nova, but busted my left hand on Baer's thick skull and lost by a TKO in the eighth round."

Galento, who hopes to teach area youths the fundamentals of boxing once he recovers, is not too impressed by the current crop of prize fighters.

"Where did they dig these guys up?" he asks. "What happened to fighters with class, like Jack Dempsey, Gene Tunney, or my old friend Rocky Graziano? The fighters today are a bunch of cream-puffs. Why Jimmy Young — he's a big joke."

But Galento saved his most scathing comments for heavyweight champion Muhammad Ali.

Asked how he might perform against Ali, Galento replied with his characteristic candor: "Why I'd moider da bum!"

Mt. Baldy run scheduled

Over 100 of the best distance runners in California will tackle the problems of steep grade, thin air and precarious footing in the 12th annual Mt. Baldy-to-the-Peak Race on Labor Day, Sept. 5.

Starting at 10 a.m. at the parking lot of the Mt. Baldy Ski Lift, the runners, after a brief downhill stretch, will climb 4,000 vertical feet in the next 7½ miles. They will finish at Mt. San Antonio Peak, known locally as Old Baldy, towering a little over 10,000 feet above sea level.

The over-all record for this extremely difficult run is held by Chuck Smead of Oxnard, who won the race in a little over 62 minutes in 1972. Smead has won the race every year since 1971, with the exception of 1974, when he did not run. Smead is the obvious favorite to win the event again this year.

Last year's running saw the breaking of a number of class records. New records were set in the womens' open class, mens' 40-49 years class, mens' 50-59 class, and the boys' 15 and under class. Trophies will again be awarded in these classes, and in the open division, the mens' 16-18 class, the girls' class and the women veterans' class (30 and over). A new class has been added this year, the mens' submasters, for men 35 to 39.

The race, sanctioned by the AAU and supported by the Mt. Baldy Fire Department, is one of the most difficult and demanding races in California, as well as one of the most scenic for runners and spectators. Water and first aid stations are provided by the Fire Department at several points along the course, which runs from the Ski Lift Parking Lot to San Antonio Falls, to the Notch, the Devil's Backbone and finishes at the peak of Mt. Baldy.

The Fire Department has asked that casual joggers avoid attempting this race since the course is very demanding and rescues are difficult in the steep and isolated terrain. Even experienced racers with a solid foundation of conditioning find the race very demanding.

Spectators who are willing to do some waking can find places to view several miles of the race from one location. An extra this year is an offer from the Mt. Baldy Ski Lifts for spectators to ride the lift for $2 for adults and $1.50 for children. Since the regular prices are $4 and $3, this will encourage spectators to watch the race from points high on the course. The Ski Lift is also offering all competitors a free ride down.

While Smead is the favorite to win the race outright, there are other favorites of the crowd. There will be strong representation from the many fine women runners, including Vickie Cook, who set the womens' record last year, and Donna Sanchez, former record holder. In the mens' 50-59 class, Ed Almeida, who knocked 7 minutes off the old class record, is expected to return and try to smash his record. John Montoya, over 60, is expected to return to the mountain for the race. Montoya beats many runners half his age, and runs the shale slopes of Mt. Baldy in a pair of bedroom slippers.

The race is also a favorite of local high school and college runners. Strong representatives from Upland, Ontario and Alta Loma highs are expected to be on hand.

Duran will defend title

NEW YORK (AP) — Roberto Duran of Panama will defend the World Boxing Association lightweight championship against Edwin Viruet of New York in the Spectrum at Philadelphia Saturday Sept. 17, promoter Don King said Thursday.

ABC announced the fight will be televised live on its Wide World of Sports program, beginning shortly after 5 p.m. EDT.

Duran met Viruet in a 10-round nontitle fight Sept. 30, 1975, in Uniondale, N.Y., and won a unanimous 10-round decision.

ABC also said it will televise live King's promotion of Alfredo Escalera's defense of the World Boxing Council junior lightweight championship against Sigfridio Rodriguez of Mexico.

Bullfight card features Arruza

TIJUANA — One of the most important bullfight cards of the summer season in Tijuana is expected to attract the largest crowd of the year Sunday to Major Lepez Hurtado's "Bullring by the Sea."

Carlos Arruza, Jr., the brilliant, young Rejoneador whose horsemanship and personality captured the enthusiasm of the crowd during his appearance of July 31, will open the afternoon's festivities.

Matadores Curro Rivera, Adrian Romero, and Fermin Espinosa "Armillita" will follow, alternating with a herd of six bulls from the well-known Las Huertas ranch.

Rivera, the charismatic Mexican who has spent most of the summer season competing in some of Spain's most prestigious bullfight fairs, was gored, Aug. 12, during a corrida in Palma de Majorca. Yet, he was back in the ring only nine days after the incident.

Romero is a courageous, fiery type of Matador who can boast of a large following amongst Southern California aficionados. Noted for his spectacular placement of banderillas, Romero sometimes allows his enthusiasm to place himself in grave danger. He was painfully gored while placing banderillas during a Tijuana corrida in 1975.

The third sword on the card, Fermin Espinosa "Armillita," is a youngster who has risen swiftly in the world's most dangerous profession. He has impressed aficionados throughout Mexico and Spain. He, too, places his own banderillas, which should inspire some heated competition with Romero.

No less a draw are the bulls of Las Huertas, which have been exceptionally well presented during the past few Tijuana seasons.

In the Los Angeles area, tickets are sold through Murray's Tickets and at Murray's Tickets and at Mission Jewelry. California, tickets are available through Ticketron agencies.

Lakers broadcasts will be aired on KLAC (570)

LOS ANGELES — KLAC Radio (570 AM) will serve as the 1977-78 flagship station for the largest radio network in the history of the Los Angeles Lakers, it was announced jointly today by Laker President Jack Kent Cooke and KLAC Vice-President and General Manager Bill Ward.

The multi-year agreement makes KLAC the focal point of a 14-station network that covers a whopping 160,000 square miles and reaches a potential listening audience of over 12 million. The network will reach North-South from Fresno to San Diego and East-West from Las Vegas, Nevada to the Pacific Ocean. In addition, the Lakers will again be carried by KHVH in Honolulu, Hawaii. Never have so many people in so large an area been able to follow Laker basketball.

"It is with great pride that the Lakers join KLAC for this season and the years to come," said Cooke. "This association gives the Lakers physical coverage that greatly exceeds any that has existed the past few seasons."

Ward, whose station is the number one country music station in all of Southern California, also expressed his great pleasure over KLAC's new association with the Lakers. "Fans throughout Southern California can now enjoy the best in NBA basketball and country music on the same station," he said. "The Lakers will be right at home in 'California Country'."

As usual, all Laker home games will be carried live, while all weekday away games will be aired no earlier than 6 p.m. in order to allow people time to return home from work and hear the complete game.

D.B. has new soccer team

A new youth soccer team is being formed in Diamond Bar, the Patriots. The Patriots will be playing in the Coast Soccer League (CSL) in the under-10 age bracket.

Coach of the Patriots is Dan Worley. The team will be playing its home games at Chaparral Intermediate School in Diamond Bar on Saturdays starting in October. Opponents will include other CSL teams from Orange County.

Team members include Michael Anderson, Brian Barnes, Anthouy Elwart, Issac Garcia, Donald Harshfield, Jason Judge, Craig Lamantain, Ronny Mulder, Brent Robinson, Spencer Rose, Steven Seibert, Tommy Vetlesen, Greg Wood and Brad Worley. Team mothers are Judy Anderson and Lucy Rose.

For further information on the Patriots, contact either Rick Anderson at 595-1526 or Mike Rose at 595-3068.

Baseball attendance hits high with five weeks left

NEW YORK (AP) — Major league baseball's attendance reached 31,384,689 Tuesday, giving the sport its highest total ever with still five weeks left in the season.

The figures released Wednesday by the Commissioner's office have baseball surpassing last year's record total of 31,318,331.

Expansion clubs Toronto and Seattle figured into the increase, but the 24 established clubs still show a 12 per cent boost over last year and an 18 per cent over two years ago.

Major league crowds are averaging 20,702 for every opening. Last season's per-date average was 17,409.

Los Angeles and Cincinnati already have gone over the two million mark at home while 16 other clubs have reached one million.

Sooners ready to run

By J. LEE CARRIER
AP Sports Writer

NORMAN, Okla. (AP) — The 1977 University of Oklahoma football team is hoping it can run its way to a sixth national championship.

The offensive backfield is loaded with speed burners who also happen to be big, and the tentative starting 11 on defense average a stunning 4.67 seconds in the 40-yard dash.

The Sooners' wishbone attack could field a quarterback and two backs who hit 4.5, and another back who has dipped to 4.35. But that's the second string.

The starting backfield will be composed of three 4.4 sprinters and one slow guy who'll trot along at 4.5. They're led by junior Thomas Lott, a 5-foot-11, 200-pounder who became the No. 1 quarterback midway through last season.

Coach Barry Switzer calls him "the best we've ever had." That includes such company as Jack Mildren and Steve Davis. Dean Blevins, a senior, is Lott's backup.

The only concern about Lott is his passing. A true halfback, Lott simply did not know how to pass last year and his statistics bore that out: 12 attempts, two completions, three interceptions.

"But I've worked hard in spring practice and this summer," Lott says. "I'm confident I can get the job done." If not, Blevins is a proven passer and probably will get the nod in obvious passing situations.

ONE OF A SERIES

Besides Lott, there are two other 4.4 sprinters in fullback Kenny King, up from 190 to 210, and left half Elvis Peacock, 205. King, a junior, was the team's leading rusher last year, and Peacock, a senior, had an excellent spring. He may be set for the super year everybody was predicting when he came to OU as a Florida prep star.

At right half, sophomore Bill Sims and junior Jim Rogers will fight it out. Sims is bigger, 210, but Rogers, 190, has the edge in experience.

"I figure by the third game one of us will take over," Rogers says.

The only loss the Sooners sustained out of the backfield last year was Horace Ivory, who was drafted by the New England Patriots.

The offensive line is a plus. Only one starter is gone—AllAmerican tackle Mike Vaughan. His backup, Sam Claphan, a 6-6, 284-pound senior, will take over.

The rest of the line is intact, including tight end Victor Hicks, a 6-3, 250-pound junior who has started since his freshman year. Switzer says he's "the best in the Big Eight."

The major problems come on defense. The end slots are a shambles. Out of the top three prospective starters, two are injured and one fell victim to grades. Whoever starts there when the Sooners open at home against Vanderbilt on Sept. 10 will be inexperienced.

"We're going to take a look at a lot of people there," Switzer says, including Reggie Mathis, a tight end who is almost as good as Hicks.

The secondary is another problem. The starting four will be good, but behind them are freshmen and untested sophomores.

Linebacking should be a strong point, though, with All-Big Eight Daryl Hunt returning. He'll probably team with converted fullback George Cumby, the surprise of spring training. Behind them will be proven seniors Bill Dalke and Obie Moore.

Cumby was recruited as both a linebacker. Injuries have hampered his play on offense since arriving at OU and last year he received a hardship ruling after suffering a broken collarbone. With King solid as fullback, Switzer decided to shift Cumby to linebacker this spring. It was an excellent move.

Cumby quickly shoved Hunt to the other side and the pair could give OU its best duo of linebackers in many years.

"The down linemen should be big, and that'll help," Switzer said.

Reggie Kinlaw should be healthy. A knee injury felled him last year, and he set out spring training to make sure it healed.

Switzer says Kinlaw, a 240-pound junior, "could be our next great defensive lineman."

On either side of Kinlaw will be Paul Tabor, 255, and Richard Murray, 260. Murray is the slowest man on the starting defensive squad, but still manages to trundle through the 40 in 4.9 seconds.

So the assessment is an excellent to possibly great offense, but a questionable and problem-plagued defense that, if injuries stay away, should probably be good enough.

Baseball playoffs will begin earlier

NEW YORK (AP) — Baseball fans won't have to wait long between the end of the 1977 regular baseball season and the start of the best-of-five league championship series.

Since the inception of the playoffs in 1969, the post-season games began the Saturday after the end of the regular season. The last two years, and three of the last four years, the season ended on a Sunday, which left five full days between the end of the regular season and the start of the playoffs.

In order to shorten the break and take advantage of suitable weather, baseball officials announced this week there would be only brief intervals between the end of the regular season and the playoffs, with the World Series starting Tuesday, Oct. 11.

The best-of-five playoff to determine the National League champion will begin Tuesday, Oct. 4. The American League playoff will start a day later.

The schedule was announced at the annual playoff-World Series planning meeting attended by a record 14 clubs. The unusually high number of teams attending was due to close pennant races in three of the four league divisions. American League teams represented were Baltimore, Boston, California, Chicago, Kansas City, Minnesota, New York and Texas. Attending from the National League were Chicago, Cincinnati, Los Angeles, Philadelphia, Pittsburgh and St. Louis.

The first two National League playoff games will be held at night Oct. 4-5 at the home of the Western Division winner. After a travel day, the series will switch to the city of the Eastern Division winner for a day game Oct. 7—and if necessary—a night game Oct. 8 and a day game Oct. 9.

A day game Oct. 5 at the home of the Eastern Division winner will open the AL playoffs. A night game also will be held in the Eastern city Oct. 6. Then the action switches to the Western winner's park for a night game Oct. 7, and, if necessary, a day game Oct. 8 and a night game Oct. 9.

The Saturday, Oct. 8 National League game will be changed to a day game if the Chicago Cubs are the Eastern Division winner because Wrigley Field, the Cubs' home park, has no lights.

In addition, the night game Thursday, Oct. 6 in the American League will be switched to the afternoon if travel to the West Coast is necessary.

The World Series opens the night of Oct. 11 in the American League city and Game 2 will be played at the same site the next night. After a travel day, Game 3 will be played Friday night, Oct. 14, and Game 5 Saturday afternoon in the National League city. If a fifth game is necessary, it will be played Sunday afternoon, Oct. 16, in the National League city.

Games 6 and 7, if necessary, will be played in the American League city the nights of Tuesday and Wednesday, Oct. 18-19.

If the Cubs represent the National League in the World Series, the Friday night, Oct. 14, game will be switched to the afternoon.

NBC will televise all league playoff games, while ABC will televise the World Series games. CBS Radio will broadcast all playoff and World Series games.

RIDING SENSATION — Steve Cauthen, the 16-year-old jockey from Walton, Ky., quietly sits in a corner of the jockey's dressing-room at the Saratoga Race Course. He is studying racing program.

Cauthen—from bust to hero in one year

SARATOGA SPRINGS, N.Y. (AP) — Steve Cauthen was a bust when he visited Saratoga Race Course to pursue his career as a thoroughbred horse racing jockey last August.

Things are different this year for the soft-spoken 16-year-old from Walton, Ky.

Although he's second — a close second — to veteran standout Angel Cordero, Jr. this year, Cauthen very well could be the reason the New York Racing Association's upstate New York outpost appears en route to its best season ever.

Last year at Saratoga, Cauthen had only two rides. And as he puts it, "I beat only one horse each time."

But that's how he started his career on May 12, 1976 at Churchill Downs. In that race he also finished next-to-last.

Things started to pick up for the modest youngster, however, when the NYRA's traveling road show ended its four-week stand at Saratoga last year and returned to the downstate New York tracks—Belmont and Aqueduct.

Cauthen started winning races in bunches, at times four and five on a single program. And the winning ways picked up as 1977 began.

With the current racing season just past the halfway mark, Cauthen had already won nearly 350 races, with 225 seconds and 200 thirds. He has ridden about 1,350 horses so far this year.

The youngster has won races with purses totaling more than $3.8 million.

How does Cauthen feel about his success?

"Just great," he says.

How about his other career — as a country and western singer?

Cauthen characterizes his record album as more a publicity stunt than anything else and says he has "no interest" in pursuing that line of work in the future.

Asked about the biggest thrill of his career to date, Cauthen says "everything."

He does not elaborate, apparently preferring instead to savor all of the good things that have happened so far.

Cauthen says he had the advantage of having the best possible teacher — "my dad."

His father is a blacksmith in Kentucky.

Does his dad have hopes of coming to the big New York tracks and achieving the kind of success his son has found?

Emphatically, "no," young Cauthen says.

After he was seriously hurt in a racing accident in New York earlier this year, Cauthen was on the shelf for about a month.

During that time, he returned to Walton.

Asked if his childhood friends treated the conquering hero any differently, Cauthen says "they treated me just like they always did.....and I liked that."

As the interview ended, Cauthen perused the day's racing program.

By day's end, he had added two more riding victories to his total for the season.

Steve Cauthen is a giant in a sport dominated by men noted for their diminutive size.

Bradshaw won't 'erupt'

LATROBE, Pa. (AP) — Terry Bradshaw marched into training camp eight years ago, touted as a man with a golden arm, tabbed as savior of the hapless Pittsburgh Steelers.

Bradshaw has lived up to the billing as well as anyone could. He has led the Steelers out of pro football's wilderness and helped them win five division titles and two Super Bowl championships.

What more could be expected of this blond cowboy from Louisiana who loves to sing, fish, raise cattle—and play football?

Bradshaw knows: When is Terry Bradshaw, the hot-shot quarterback from Louisiana Tech, going to pass for 3,000 yards, become All-Pro and finally live up to his ability?

"Everybody is waiting for me to erupt," Bradshaw said Tuesday at St. Vincent College, the Steelers training camp. "Everybody is waiting for me to get 3,000 yards and 28 TDs like Kenny Stabler (of Oakland). But that's not going to happen. I don't think it can happen and us win."

Bradshaw guides the offense, calls the plays. But the Steelers, under Coach Chuck Noll, are not a pass-oriented team. They do not rely on the pass to win.

And that means Bradshaw plays a different kind of role than Stabler or Fran Tarkenton of Minnesota, who use the pass as a primary weapon.

"I'm not the nucleus of this team," said Bradshaw. "The defense and the running game are. It took me a while to get used to the idea but now I like it.

"I think it's even more of an accomplishment to have 50 per cent completions, have two running backs run for 1,000 yards and win the Super Bowl. If they're waiting for me to erupt ... heck, I may have erupted five years ago."

Then he launched into the Bradshaw grin, looked at his roommate, punter Bobby Walden, and said: "Watch me. I'll probably have a 4,000-yard year and 30 TDs. Wouldn't that be something?"

Bradshaw had his best personal statistics five years ago, passing for 2,259 yards and 13 touchdowns.

"Yeah, and we were 6-8 that year," he said.

In 1975, Bradshaw nearly matched that season with 2,055 yards, but he also threw 18 touchdown passes and the Steelers won their second straight Super Bowl.

Bradshaw has looked extremely sharp in preseason games this year. He completed 13 of 16 passes against the New York Jets last week. He has a 65 per cent average in three games while playing about half the time.

The 6-foot-3, 215-pound Bradshaw attributes his fine start to peace of mind, experience and a change in his passing style.

"I'm excited about this year," he said. "I'm throwing the ball better because I'm taking it up to my shoulder after the snap and not whirling it around like a pitcher like I used to. I'm not throwing it as hard, but I'm throwing it better."

Bradshaw, who went through a divorce several years ago, now is married to ice skating star Jo Jo Starbuck.

"I'm happy. I'm happily married. We don't have much in common, but we have important things in common. We go to church three times a week, we pray together and we love each other. But she doesn't tag along with me and I don't tag along with her.

"She finally went to a cattle sale with me, but then slept through the whole thing. I don't think she'll go again. And I went skating with her one night. She couldn't believe it."

Bionic horse winning

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (AP) — Usually when a horse suffers a broken bone in his leg, he is fortunate to survive—much less compete again. But Mi Marzo Amigo has come back from such an incident to become one of the finest pacers at the current Western Harness Racing meeting at Hollywood Park.

Last October, Mi Marzo Amigo cruised to a five-length victory in a one-mile race with a lifetime-best clocking of 2:00 1-5. But instead of going to the winner's circle, the chestnut 5-yearold had to be taken away in an ambulance with a broken leg suffered during the race.

The injury was diagnosed as a split pastern—the bone connecting the foot and ankle on a horse.

Owner Richard Allen of Torrance, Calif., had risked the horse in a $20,000 claiming race that night but said "I didn't really want to lose him.

"In fact I was so afraid someone would claim him I spread the word around that Marzo had a bad right leg," continued Allen. "But there was nothing wrong with him, at least there wasn't before the race.

"To this day I'll bet some people think I was levelling when I said he had a bad leg before that race."

After examination, veterinarian Robert Rose suggested surgery to insert screws to hold the broken bones together.

Mi Marzo Amigo has won five of his first nine races this year, including a pair of swift 1:563-5 efforts at Golden Gate Fields.

Hudson gains ground on Roth in PBA money race

AKRON, Ohio (AP) — Tommy Hudson gained a bit of ground this week on leader Mark Roth in the Professional Bowlers Association money earnings race.

Hudson of Akron picked up $2,000 earlier this week by finishing fifth in the PBA event at Trenton, N.J. Roth was eighth, earning $1,600.

Roth of New York has won $81,048 for the year, compared with Hudson's $75,608. They are followed by Earl Anthony of Tacoma, Wash., with $63,940; Marshall Holman of Medford, Ore., $51,240; Mike Berlin of Muscatine, Iowa, $40,515; Ed Ressler of Allentown, Pa., $38,638; Steve Neff of Sarasota, Fla., $37,165; George Pappas of Charlotte, N.C., $33,990; Mike Durbin of Chagrin Falls, Ohio, $31,708, and Pete Couture of Windsor Locks, Conn., $31,650.

The $7,000 Steve Westberg of Cottage Grove, Ore., picked up in winning last weekend's PBA tournament gave him $21,000 for the year, well behind the top 10.

RESOLUTION NO. 1710

A RESOLUTION OF THE CITY COUNCIL OF THE CITY OF WALNUT FIXING THE RATE AND LEVYING TAXES FOR THE FISCAL YEAR BEGINNING JULY 1, 1977

WHEREAS, the City of Walnut previously elected to assume financial responsibility for services provided by the Consolidated Fire Protection District and for the County Free Library pursuant to Section 43073 (a) of the Government Code of the State of California.

NOW, THEREFORE, THE CITY COUNCIL OF THE CITY OF WALNUT DOES RESOLVE AS FOLLOWS:

Section 1 That for the purpose of raising the sum of money necessary to be raised by taxes upon the taxable property of the City of Walnut as revenue to support its departments and to pay for the government and other business of the City, as well as other indebtedness of the City, except the cost of the Fire and Library Services as set forth in Section 2 of Resolution NO. 1709 for the fiscal year beginning July 1, 1977, the rate of taxes for the City of Walnut is hereby fixed, and the taxes are hereby levied on all taxable property in all portions or parts of the City of Walnut in the amount of forty-five cents ($.45) upon each $100 of the assessed valuation of said property assessed by the County Assessor and equalized by the State Board of Equalization.

Section 2. Pursuant to Section 43073 (b) of the Government Code, the tax rate of the City of Walnut shall be increased by an amount equal to the amount of the tax rates set by the Board of Supervisors of the County of Los Angeles for the Consolidated Fire Protection District and the Los Angeles Free Library for the 1977-78 fiscal year.

Section 3. The County Tax Collector, County Assessor, or County Auditor, as the case may be, is hereby authorized to raise by taxation upon the taxable property of the City of Walnut the amount of revenue necessary to support the departments and to pay for the government and other business of the City, as set forth in Section 1 of this Resolution plus the amount of revenue necessary to pay to the District as defined in Section 43073 of the Government Code for Fire and Library services, and is therefore authorized and directed by this Resolution to fix and levy a total City of Walnut tax rate on all taxable property in all portions or parts of the City for the fiscal year beginning July 1, 1977, in the amount set forth in Section 1 of this Resolution plus the amount authorized to be determined under Section 2 of this Resolution, upon each $100 of the assessed valuation of said property assessed by the County Assessor and equalized by the State Board of Equalization.

Section 4. The City Council hereby declares it would have passed this Resolution sentence by sentence, paragraph by paragraph, and section by section, and does declare that the provisions of this Resolution are severable, and if for any reason, any sentence, paragraph or section shall be held invalid, such decision shall not affect the validity of the remaining parts of this Resolution.

Section 5. The City Clerk shall certify to the adoption of this Resolution and shall cause the same to be published as required by law.

Section 6. This Resolution shall take effect immediately upon adoption. The City Clerk shall, prior to September 1, 1977, transmit to the Los Angeles County Auditor a statement of the tax rate so fixed, and a certified copy of this Resolution.

PASSED, APPROVED AND ADOPTED this 10th day of August, 1977
R.A. Laughter

Dick Rogers

Pollen is the dusty yellow grains that can be seen in most flowers. The flowers use it in making the seeds that will grow into new plants.

Plants make pollen in the saclike anthers of their flowers. Pollen grains are so small that they look like tiny specks.

With a microscope, you can see that some are smooth, and others are covered with spines or knobs. But all pollen grains are alike in the same plant.

Before a seed can form, a flower must be pollinated. This means that a grain of pollen must get into a part of the flower called the pistil.

Flowers are often pollinated by insects. They land on the flower, seeking nectar or pollen.

Pollen sticks to the insect's body. At the next flower, some rubs off the insect and on to the flower's pistil.

The pistil contains tiny ovules, the beginnings of seeds. The pollen grains join with the ovules to grow into seeds.

Asthmatic benefit

A variety and fashion show to benefit asthmatic children will be presented at 1 p.m. Sunday at Taylor Hall, 1717 N. Indian Hill Blvd., Claremont, by Beth-Ann's School of Modeling and Dance in Upland.

The proceeds of "A Breath of Fall" go to the Lung Association of San Bernardino County's "SCAMP Camp" fund. The fund provides camperships for asthmatic children, ages 10 through 14. The camp has special medical staff, program, and diet for young asthmatics.

Admission for adults is $3.50, and $1 for children. Free dessert will be served during the show. Tax-deductible tickets may be purchased from Beth-Ann's, at 1033 W. Foothill Blvd., Upland. The telephone number is 985-6444.

Awareness workshop

How to deal effectively with human sexuality, death, depression and anger will be discussed at a free, 10-week workshop in Upland and Ontario in September.

The workshops, sponsored by Chaffey College Adult Education, are being taught by Hugh Pendleton. Classes at the Ontario library will begin Sept. 12 and will be held on Mondays from 6 to 9 p.m. Classes at the Upland library will begin Sept. 15 and will meet on Thursdays from 6 to 9 p.m.

Off-peak power rates

Time-of-day pricing of electricity rates for the Southland's large industrial customers has been approved by the California Public Utilities Commission (PUC) in a major effort to effect further conservation of energy.

Under plans approved for both Southern California Edison and San Diego Gas and Electric, electricity will be priced lower for large industrials when used during off-peak periods and higher during peak periods.

The pricing policy is designed to shave peaks by offering financial incentives to use electricity when demand is relatively low and in the long run to reduce the necessity of building new generating units.

Family films

The Ontario City Library continues with its Wednesday night free movies at 7 in the downstairs multi-purpose room.

The following will be shown during September:

On Sept. 7, "The March of the Wooden Soldiers," a full-feature film with Laurel and Hardy as apprentice toymakers; "Huelga!" (Spanish for "strike"), Sept. 14, to coincide with Mexico's Sept. 16 holiday; Sept. 21, Laurel and Hardy in "Any Old Port" and "Chickens Come Home;" and "We are Women," Sept. 28.

Powder permit

The Fire Prevention Officers' Section of the California Fire Chiefs Association is concerned with the changes in federal regulations which allows an individual to possess 50 pounds of black sporting powder without a permit from local authorities.

State regulations allow an individual to possess five pounds. There are indications that attempts will be made to increase the allowable amount, without permit, to 50 pounds in California.

Attempts were made by the fire services to have these increased amounts rejected at the time the legislation was introduced. However, their efforts were defeated primarily due to the lack of documentation of the hazards of possession, transportation and volatile nature of these larger amounts.

Park parking plan

Responding to the problem often experienced by owners of recreation vehicles in finding an attractive, safe place to park overnight, Herbert Rhodes, director of the state Department of Parks and Recreation, has announced a new overnight parking plan.

Overnight parking permits at $25 each are available now for use beginning Thursday at three state beaches in Southern California and one on the Northern California coast.

The parking will be available only to "self-contained" recreation vehicles with a special permit, which will be good only from one hour before sunset to 9 a.m. and will not be good during summer months.

The four parks at which the permits may be used are Torrey Pines and Carlsbad state beaches in San Diego County, Huntington State Beach in Orange County, and Half Moon Bay State Beach in San Mateo County, south of San Francisco.

Best speakers

Dick Johnson of Pomona won the top award for his speech, "The Drill Instructor is Out to Win Your Heart" at the Pomona Toastmaster Club 12 program held recently.

Wilson Gillingwaters of Claremont and Pat Nicholson of Pomona tied for "tall tales." Don Remer of Claremont was the table topics winner.

Dodger night

Pomona Jaycees will sponsor Dodger Night Tuesday at 7:30 p.m. for the Los Angeles Dodgers vs. the Chicago Cubs game.

In promoting this game, the Jaycees provide a chance for needy boys in the Pomona area to attend the game and cheer the team.

Weavers at plaza

The Basket Weavers, young adults who perform as a basketball team challenged by a skateboard team, may be seen at Montclair Plaza Wednesday through Sept. 3.

A halftime exhibition features the Basket Weaver Cycling Band and Stunt Riders.

An announcer and a referee are part of the show.

Show times are flexible. Shows may last from 15 minutes to an hour.

Annual breakfast

Pomona Valley AZA will hold its annual breakfast Sunday morning at Temple Beth Israel, 3033 N. Towne Ave., Pomona.

The AZA, a chapter of B'nai-B'rith Youth Organization, will start the day at 10 a.m. and end it at 1 p.m.

Paul O'Leary, a licensed clinical social worker, will conduct a program on child abuse at 11 a.m.

Interested persons may attend. Breakfast will be served buffet style. Donations of $2 for adults and $1.50 for children under 12 will be accepted.

Hospital trying to stop nurses picketing

Administrators at San Antonio Community Hospital said they will take all available "legal, judicial and administrative" remedies to halt striking nurses from the Kaiser Hospital from picketing the Upland hospital on Monday.

"The United Nurses Association of California has filed notice of their intent to picket this hospital along with 12 others commencing Monday at 7 a.m.," said John Howard, San Antonio Hospital's administrator.

"This action is being taken to bring maximum attention to their negotiation problem with Kaiser Hospital. They have no grievance with this hospital except that a few critically ill patients that would have been hospitalized in Fontana are being cared for here because of the strike conditions there."

Howard said legal counsel for the Upland hospital has advised the nurses association its proposed action is illegal and should picketing occur, the hospital will pursue all available remedies.

"It is not anticipated if the pickets, should they appear, will cause any disruption of our ability to continue to provide care for our patients," he said.

JOSEPH C. ASHER

Chino meat market opens

Joseph C. Asher, owner and operator of the Meat Cleaver in Garden Grove, has opened a Meat Cleaver market in the County Fair Shopping Center, 12071 Central Ave., Chino.

Asher said butchers will custom-cut choice meat orders in the old-fashioned way.

He stocks an assortment of local and imported fresh and frozen fish and seafood.

A delicatessen section includes lunch meats, imported and domestic cheeses and features a take-out-sandwich section.

Asher also offers a line of freezer budget packs.

Another section specializes in catering party trays.

Lawyers opposed to advertising, according to poll

A majority of attorneys in the East San Gabriel Valley and the Pomona area say they would lose respect for lawyers who advertised their services, fees or expertise, according to a West Covina advertising agency owner.

Micheal Stover, the agency owner, revealed the results of a questionnaire during an address presented before the Eastern Bar Association, a group of attorneys who practice in that area.

"The Supreme Court's decision allowing lawyers to advertise has been greeted by stiff opposition by the legal profession," Stover said. "Almost half of the lawyers we surveyed reject outright the possibility of ever advertising," he said.

Stover said six out of 10 attorneys he contacted disapprove of advertising their services, fees or specialties. Two-thirds disagree with the legal basis cited by the court to permit such advertising, he said.

Stover said he sent questionnaires to 100 attorneys listed in the yellow pages of the Covina and Pomona telephone books. More than half responded.

According to Stover's findings, there is widespread disbelief in the inevitability of advertising by a majority of lawyers; almost two-thirds fear that advertising will adversely affect their net income by increasing the cost of doing business without winning new clients; and legal clinics will gain from such advertising and the speciality areas of personal injury and family law will be advertised the most.

Political arena

ASSEMBLYMAN BILL MCVITTIE, D-65th Dist., Upland, has pushed his bill cracking down on the child pornography business through the Assembly.

It now is being considered in the Senate and, being an urgency bill, would take effect upon approval by the Governor.

The measure makes it a felony to employ or use any person under the age of 18 in the production of smut.

It also bans the sale, distribution, exhibition, publication or printing of pornographic material featuring juveniles engaged in specified sexual activities.

"The pandering of filth and the willingness of pornographers to degrade and exploit youngsters in the pursuit of a buck is indefensible," said McVittie.

"We are flatly not going to condone this kind of activity in California.

"There's a very clear difference in my mind between child abuse and the right to free expression. The people who lure kids in front of a camera to perform sexual acts are going to go to state prison."

REP. JOHN H. ROUSSELOT, R-26th Dist., San Marino, said the federally-funded Re-Employment Action Committee (REAC) is placing 120 persons a month into jobs from offices at 130 E. First St., Pomona; 12010 Ramona Blvd., El Monte; 266 E. Angeleno Ave., Burbank; and 515 N. Azusa Ave., Azusa.

Rousselot said open house would be held Thursday from 2 to 4 p.m. at REAC offices in El Monte.

SEN. WILLIAM CAMPBELL, R-33rd Dist., Hacienda Heights, will chair a meeting of the Senate Select Committee on Fire Services to look into costs of suppressing the Marble Cone fire at Big Sur.

Date and place of the hearing will be announced later.

The Marble Cone fire blackened nearly 187,000 acres of forest land. It was the second largest fire in California's history. Fireman fought 18 days to control the fire which caused serious damage to valuable watershed, timber and recreational areas in the Los Padres National Forest.

The hearing is being held at the request of Sen. Robert P. Nimmo and Assemblywoman Carol Hallett, Republicans from Atascadero.

Shooting, beating didn't occur at Los Olivos Housing Project

A related shooting and beating incident reported Monday in the Progress Bulletin as occurring in the Los Olivos Housing Project of Upland was incorrect.

The shooting incident that left a 22-year-old Upland man hospitalized with a gunshot wound of the back and the beating that left a 34-year-old Cucamonga man in San Bernardino County Hospital actually occurred about two blocks north of the Los Olivos Housing Project, according to housing project officials.

Upland police said one man from Upland is now in custody in the case and three others, one from Upland and the other two from Chino, are being questioned. Police said there was no apparent motive for the two incidents.

Seamen killed

Over 6,000 merchant seamen were killed and over 600 merchant vessels were sunk during World War II.

Ontario man beaten, robbed in his home

A 20-year-old Ontario man was attacked, beaten with a rock and robbed in his home by two men claiming to be undercover officers Thursday night in the 1100 block of west Holt Boulevard.

The victim told police that two male Latins had followed him home about 9 p.m. He said as he got to his door the two men suddenly grabbed him and one said, "We're undercover officers . . . where's your stuff?"

The victim told officers the men then pushed him inside his home, took his wallet and keys and then began ransacking the rooms.

He said the men took a quantity of heroin he had in the home and then struck him over the head several times with a four-pound rock.

Police said the victim was treated for head injuries at Ontario community Hospital and later released.

Police said there were no undercover officers working in that area that night.

The victim was not placed under arrest pending further investigation, police said.

Fraudulent statements result in conviction

Samuel J. McPhail, 56, San Gabriel, has been convicted on three felony counts of making false and fraudulent statements to the Social Security Administration.

A. Lorraine Brannen, Pomona district manager, said McPhail's statements enabled him to unlawfully receive $6,000 in Supplemental Security Income (SSI) payments.

McPhail pleaded guilty Aug. 15, before U. S. District Court Judge William P. Gray in Los Angeles to a charge of concealing income from a union pension of approximately $336 a month, and assets of several thousand dollars in a savings account.

He faces a maximum sentence of 15 years in prison, and $30,000 in fines, or both. He will be sentenced by Judge Gray on Sept. 6.

The SSI program pays benefits to needy aged, blind or disabled persons who have little or no income and very limited resources, said Mrs. Brannen.

The investigation and referral to the Department of Justice of potential SSI fraud cases is an ongoing effort of the Social Security Administration. It is aimed at assuring proper eligibility for SSI payments, said Mrs. Brannen.

Burglar hunt on

Chino police this morning were contiuining their search for burglars who broke into Porter Equipment Co., 5052 F St. in Chino Friday and made off with several thousand dollars worth of business machines and power tools.

The burglars gained entry to the business by forcing open a door on the south side of the building.

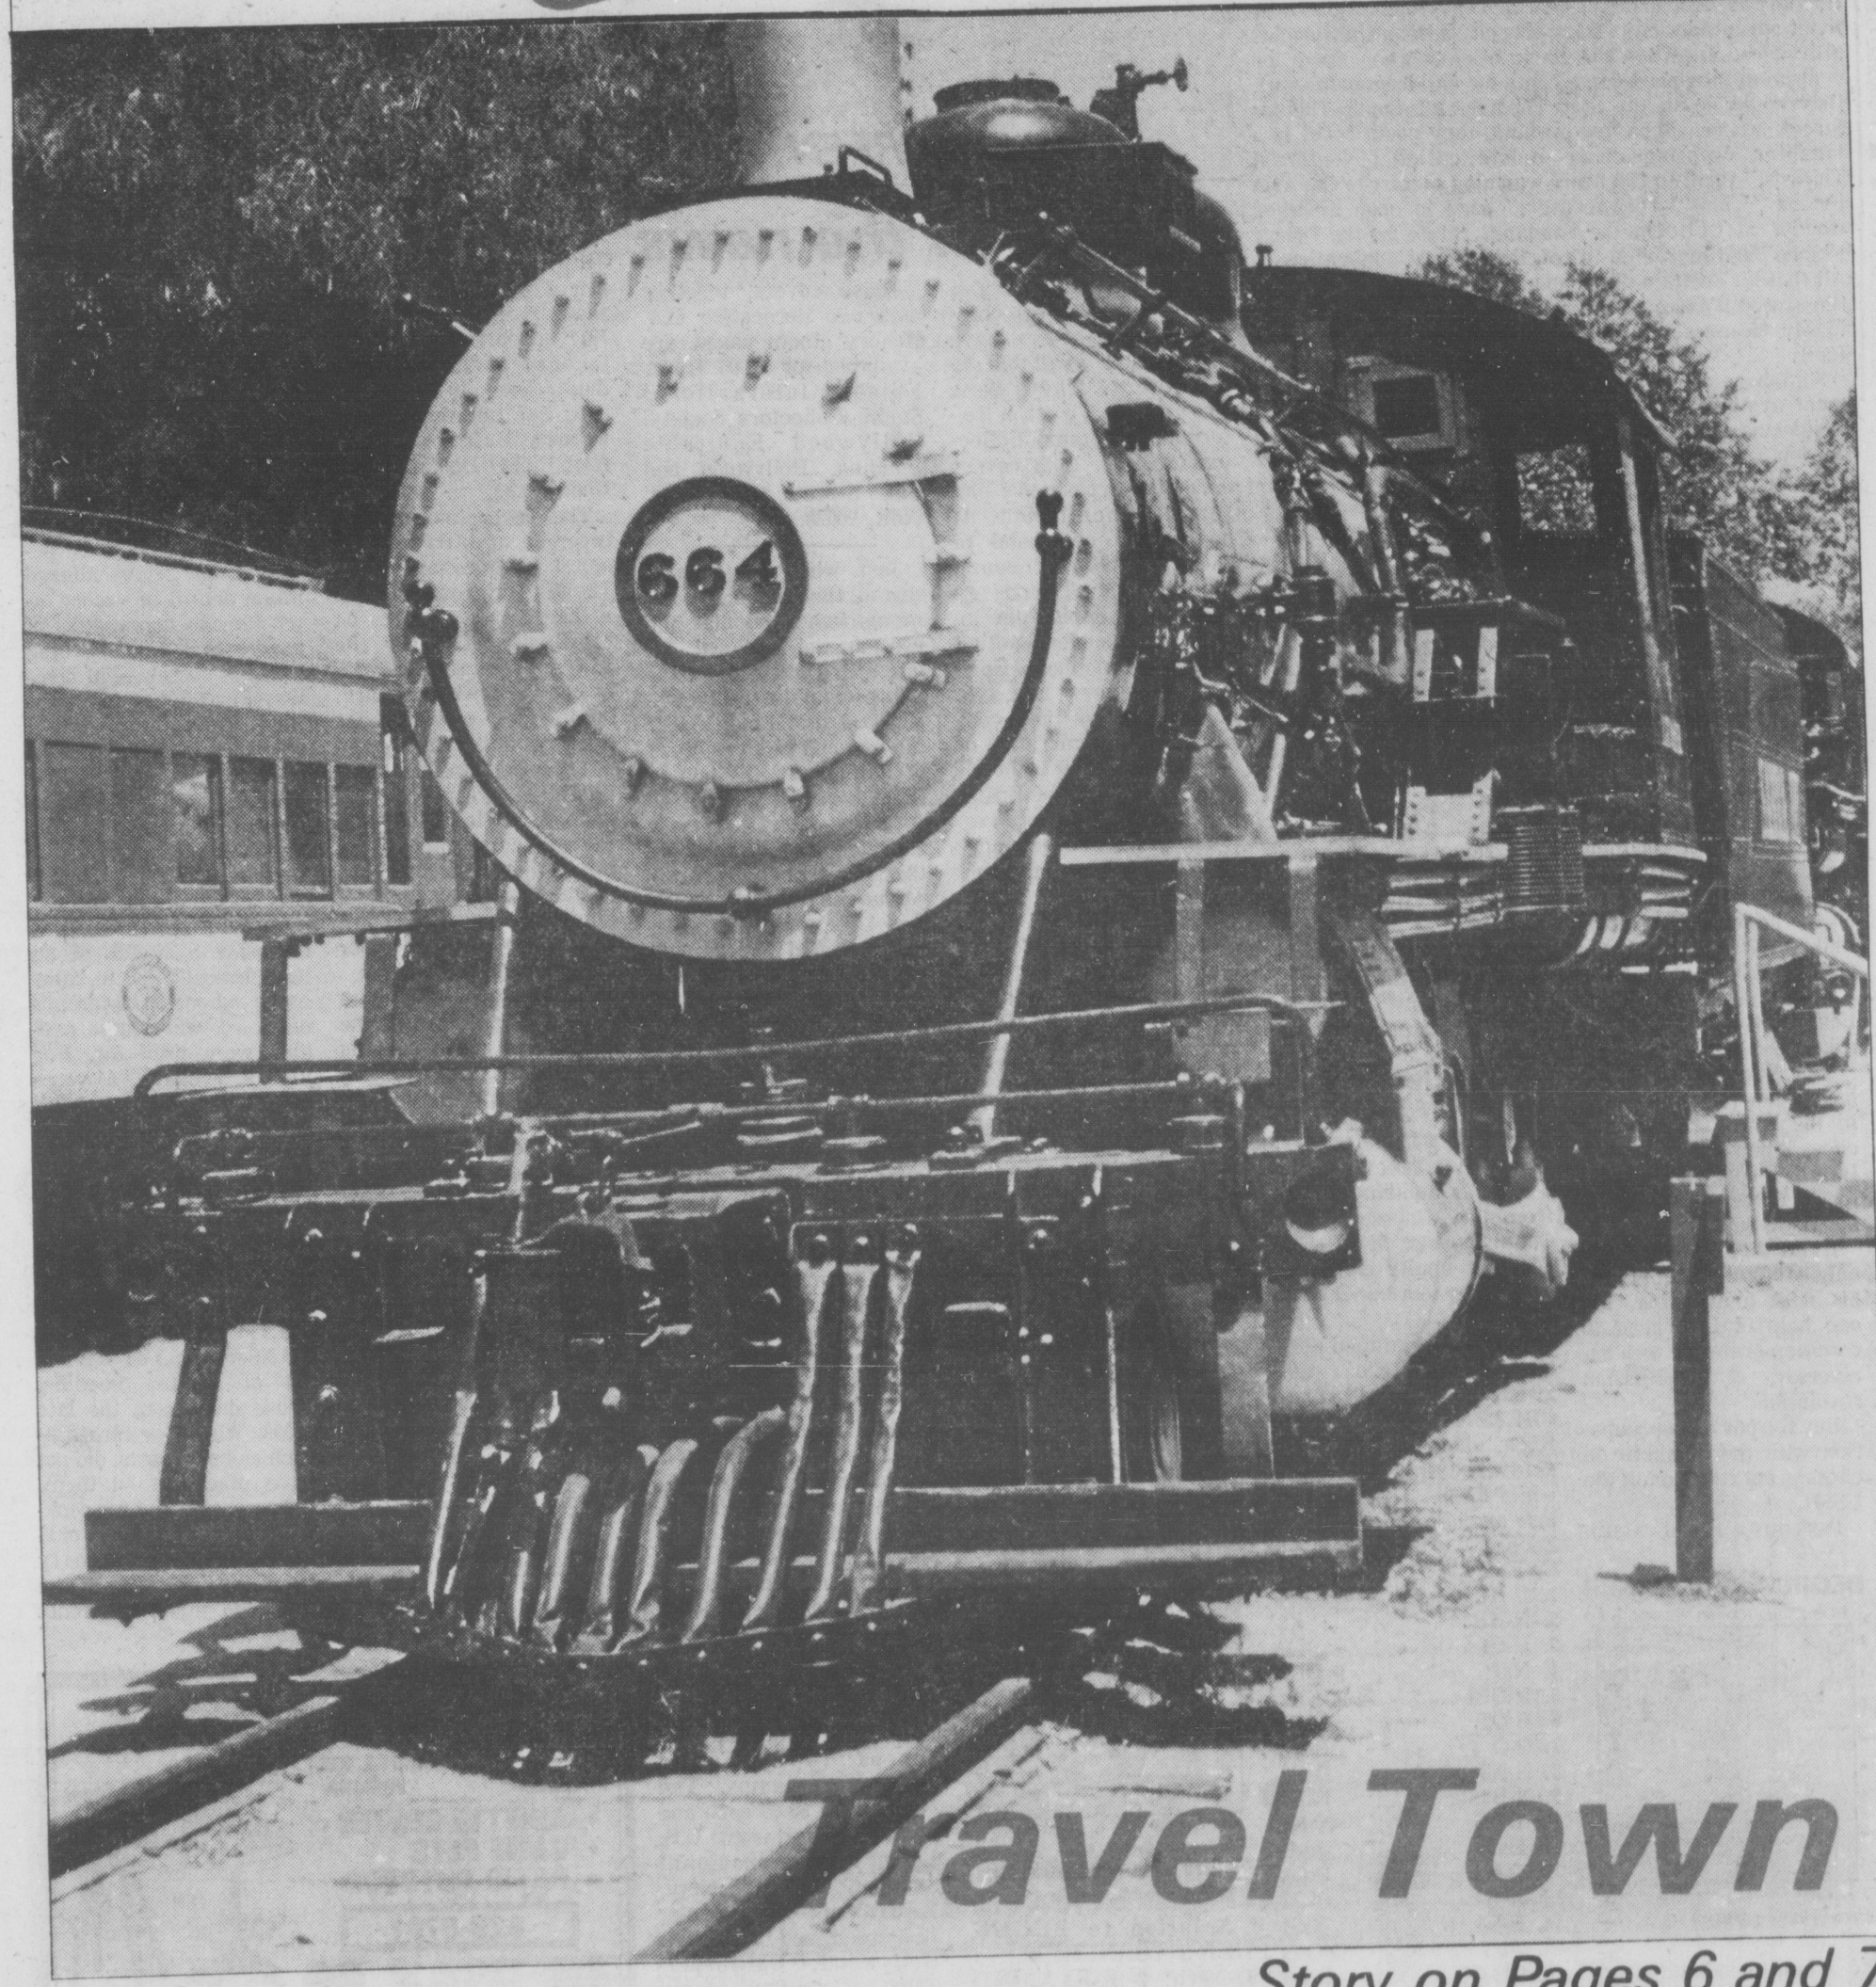
Pomona, California ■ Saturday, August 27, 1977



Travel Town

Story on Pages 6 and 7

Doc Peirsol

It happened in Pomona

Pomona's socially elite were gathered at a garden fete that Tuesday evening in July, 1908, according to The Pomona Progress, where they were listening to some of the new achievements in reproducing the masterpieces of the best singers of the day.

"It was claimed that it was almost impossible to distinguish between Caruso's voice and its reproduction on the Victor graphaphone," The Progress reported the following day. "Caruso is the greatest living tenor and several of his records are owned by Pomona people."

But while Pomona's High Society was attending that garden fete, drinking pink punch and listening to Caruso on the Victor graphaphone, were Pomona's Peons just sitting idly at home drinking beer and envying the entertainment advantages enjoyed by this city's Beautiful People? Silly question! What was there to envy when, for a ten cent admission price (five cents for children under ten), they could go to the Star Theatre, 282 South Thomas Street, where, all in one evening, they could revel in a laughter creating chase movie called "Nocturnal Thieves," thrill to the heart warming picture, "Our Dog Friends," hiss "The Accuser," gaze in open mouthed wonder at "Life in the Soudan," relate to the "Busy Fiance" and marvel at "Prof. Bric-a-Brac's Inventions." All that for one thin dime, and then for good measure two illustrated popular new tunes, "There's Another Picture in My Mamma's Frame" and "She Was a Grand Old Lady."

Somehow, after reading about the wealth of entertainment available to Pomonans in those days, one gets to wondering who really were the more fortunate. Was it the garden fete, punch drinking Upper Crust or the beer drinking, foot stamping Common People down at the Star Theatre?

CHESS QUIZ

In April I had the opportunity to interview World Champion Anatoly Karpov, who had just returned to Moscow after a brilliant performance in Las Plamas. That victory was on the heels of his history-making first in the USSR Championship.

"What are your ambitions for the future," I asked.

"As World Champion I have been very successful in the sporting aspect of chess," he replied. "In the future I hope, especially, for achievements on the aesthetic side."

Ironically, Karpov could only gain a tie for fourth in his next tournament, the one held in Leningrad to commemorate the 60th anniversary of the Russian revolution.

But Karpov's preoccupation with the aesthetic in chess is not common in the USSR.

Recently, Rasul Gamzatov, an eminent Daghestan poet, described chess as "as absorbing as poetry."

"What is needed is for this remarkable game to enter every home," he declared. "Indeed, the wonderful 64 squares open up for the human brain a whole world which is simultaneously strict and fantastic, complicated and fascinating, and invariably attractive, magnetic to people."

A MACHINE-LIKE VICTORY

Here is another victory from the Minnesota Open Championship by CHESS 4.5, that uppity computer which was tournament victor.

Stamps in the news

To herald the opening of Stamp Expo '77, two commemorative covers have been made available to collectors. They were prepared by the International Stamp Collectors Society. Both covers carry the exposition's pictorial cancellation. It honors the centennial of the invention of sound recording by Thomas A. Edison and depicts the inventor in the opening of an antique gramophone. Each of the covers has two stamps. One is the 3-cent Edison commemorative of 1947 and the other is the 10-cent "200 Years of Postal Service" commemorative.

The printed covers carry tha First Day of Issue cancellations from Washington, D.C. dated March 23 when the Centennial of Sound Recording commemorative was issued.

These covers, together with two decorative U.S. History album pages, are available for $4.95 from: Edison, International Stamp Collectors Society, Hollywood Equitable Building, Hollywood and Vine Streets, Hollywood, Calif. 90028.

Just when we thought that all the Lindbergh commemorative hoopla had ceased, the National Air and Space Museum of the Smithsonian Institution announced that Lindy's 1927 flight would be the subject of its latest Milestone of flight cover.

The distinctively cacheted cover honoring the solo flight across the Atlantic is franked with the new U.S. commemorative stamp issued for the 50th anniversary of the occasion and postmarked with the official first day cancellation.

The price of this cover (No. 51) is $1.25 and can be ordered from: Milestones of Flight, National Air and Space Museum, Smithsonian Institution, Washington, D.C. 20560. The money order remittance should be made payable to the Smithsonian Institution.

Also still available is the attractive July 4 First Day Cover honoring American civilians who helped win the Revolutionary War which was issued by the International Stamp Collectors Society.

The cachet depicts a full-color view of Independence Hall in Philadelphia with a wood chip from one of its original beams inserted. Each cover carries the setenant block of four different 13 c skilled craftsmen stamps. The covers cost $5.95 each and can be obtained from: U.S. History, International Stamp Collectors Society, Equitable Building, Hollywood and Vine Sts., Hollywood, California, 90028. Allow four to six weeks for mailing.

Soup tureen is collector's find

By Dorothy Hammond

QUESTION: The large soup tureen shown here with underplate, was purchased without a ladle. However, there is an opening in the cover for one. These pieces are marked on the underside "Villeroy & Boch." What is such an item worth today? S.E.

ANSWER: If perfect, around the $400 figure.

QUESTION: My question concerns a small creamer which was bought at a recent estate sale — along with numerous pieces of junk. Although its shape is modern, the date 1911 appears on the base, incorporated with the mark. Directly under the date is a buffalo, and the words "Buffalo Pottery EMERALD Deldare Ware Underglaze.

The decoration on this creamer is different than any I have come across. The base or ground color is a medium shade of brownish-green. On the back side there is a window, two bowls, a churn, stool, and a white cat drinking milk. On the opposite side there are three figures — two women and a man. Below the two seated figures there is an inscription that reads "Dr. Syntax with the dairymaid, Come here sweet girl don't be afraid, tell me your cares he softly said."

A dark green with white swag design decorates the rim of this creamer. It is perfect. Any information will be appreciated, including value. I paid $16.50 for the box of items that this pitcher was found in.

ANSWER: Creamers like you have described are presently fetching $225 or more in shops. They are considered a choice collector's item.

Although the bulk of the early Deldare was produced in 1908 and 1909, the only item made in 1910 was a calendar plate. Then in 1911, a completely new and different type was introduced — known as "Emerald Deldare." This series is perhaps the finest and most sought after. Virtually every piece is dated 1911. This ware was discontinued at the end of 1911 — except for a few experimental pieces or special orders — and not reissured for twelve years.

Much of the Emerald Deldare was decorated with Dr. Syntex scenes and humorous verses about Dr. Syntax. These date from the early nineteenth century when they were issued as "Tour of Dr. Syntax in Search of the Picturesque, Tour of Dr. Syntax in Search of Consolation, and Tour of Dr. Syntax in Search of a Wife." The original caricatures were painted in watercolors by Thomas Rowlandson, and the verses were written by William Combe. The scenes used on Emerald Deldare have been reproduced with reasonable accuracy, even though artists copies them from the original books. On occasion, the artists altered minor details in a scene often introducing oddities of punctuation and spelling into the verses — in addition to using some variations from the original coloring. It is not known how the name Emerald Deldare was chosen to identify this ware, but the predominance of green in the decoration no doublt was an infuential factor.

QUESTION: I am enclosing a sketch of an item I would like to know more about. Customers often ask what these needles were used for. For years I have always thought of them as skewers. What is your opinion?

Each of the steel needles range in size from 7-9 inches in length, are pointed at one end and have four slits at the other. The case is made of wood. Mrs. B.S.T.

ANSWER: You have a set of larding needles. These date from the late 1800s. Whenever meats — such as beef roasts, did not have much fat on them, they were larded for cooking. Thin strips of cold bacon were actually "sewed" in and out of the meat, to make the roast more tasty.

Coffee prices dropping, but consumers still reluctant

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer

Drop by drop, coffee prices have started coming down. Supermarkets say sales of the brew are gradually picking up again, although consumers still seem reluctant to buy.

An Associated Press spot survey showed the price of a pound of coffee is generally about $3.50, down from a high of $4 and more in some places in March and April. In a few cities, where prices topped $5 a pound, current levels are still around $4.

Edward Maron of Ralphs, an 82-outlet chain in the Los Angeles area, said the stores ran an ad recently advertising lower coffee prices — $3.49 a pound, 47 per cent higher than the $2.38 level of January, but 13 per cent below the mid-April price of $3.99.

It was the store's first coffee promotion this year and Maron said sales increased slightly. "There is still a supply and demand problem," he said. "I don't think it's as severe as it was six months ago, but it's still with us. We're now in a kind of holding pattern."

Store spokesmen in Atlanta said sales dropped about 20 to 25 per cent in the first half of the year. Recent coffee promotions helped slightly, but sales remain sluggish. "We feel that one reason customers are not buying right now is that they're using up what we call 'pantry stuff' in anticipation of lower prices to come," said Arthur Levitt, coffee buyer for Alterman Brothers, operators of the area's Big Apple chain.

John Friesz, manager of the Main Market at Mandan, N.D., agreed. "Customers are just waiting for the price to come down again," said Friesz, who is selling coffee at $3.98 a pound, down $1.50 from the January level. "Now they're just buying what they need and using up what they have. I think housewives have more coffee than grocery stores have."

A spokesman for a large chain in the Kansas City area said he didn't think sales would ever return to normal. "It's still not cheap," he said, when asked about coffee. "As time goes on, I think they're going to lose coffee drinkers."

The manager of a Food City in Omaha, Neb., said sales have "dropped off a good 75 per cent," with people buying coffee "only when it's on sale." He said prices already have come down — a three-pound can is selling for $10.69, compared to $14 earlier this year — and "will come down some more, but won't ever be back to where they started."

Corwyn Wenke of Falley's, an independent retailer in Topeka, Kan., said a pound of coffee is selling for $3.79, down from a high of $4.49. He said customers seemed to buy only when coffee was on sale. Shopper Genevieve Merryman agreed. "We try to catch it when it's on sale," she said, "and we make our coffee a little weaker."

Joyce Steele, manager of communications for the Red Owl stores in Minneapolis-St. Paul, said coffee today is selling for $3.79 a pound, down from a high of $3.99. For the first time since July 1975, she said, the retail price is higher than wholesale.

Retail prices generally have decreased by a smaller margin than wholesale ones, mainly because the supermarket prices rose more slowly as stores sold coffee at a loss to draw customers. Now the wholesale and retail levels are about equal in most areas and, in a few cases, the supermarkets are selling coffee at up to a nickel a pound more than the wholesale price.

Jim Gloth, grocery merchandiser for Albertson's Food Centers Inc. in the Seattle area, said, "You never make money on coffee. You stay with the competition." Gloth, who is selling a pound of coffee for $3.59, down from a high of $4.19, said sales fell about 50 per cent in late spring, but are growing again.

Retailers in Salt Lake City, where a pound of regular coffee is selling at $3.79, compared to $4.59 in January, said sales had dropped about 25 per cent since the start of the year. Promotions have been limited to instant coffee only.

Coffee prices started soaring after a frost in Brazil — the world's biggest producer — destroyed part of that country's 1975-76 harvest and set off speculation about a possible shortage in future years.

Prices for a pound of green, unroasted beans went from 60 cents in July 1975 to $3.33 in April 1977. Retail prices went from $1.27 to around $4 a pound on a nationwide basis.

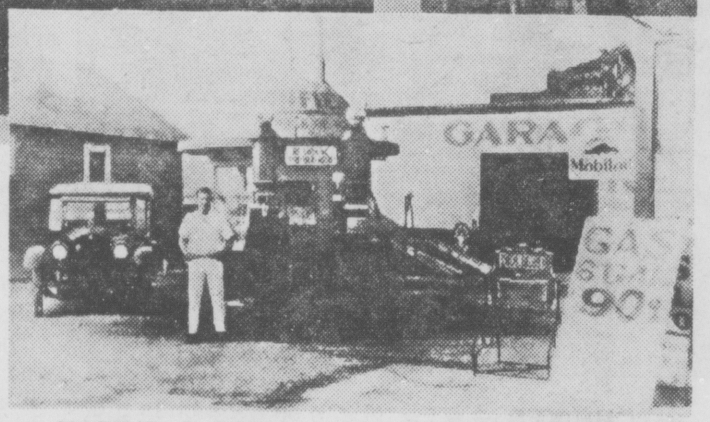
MARK C. BLOOME, located on Holt Ave. just west of Indian Hill, has been serving people for 53 years. It has built a business on a simple philosophy: "Quality tires at the right price."



MARK C. BLOOME, owner, stands in front of the original store which began the Mark C. Bloome Tire Dealer tradition.

MANAGER ART ESTRADA discusses some of the finer points with Jim Hall concerning the use of their auto scan scope for tune ups.

DINO SILVESTRE, left, observes as Jack Piccard mounts a customers tires. Fast, courteous, and professional service is what Mark C. Bloome is noted for.

MARK C. BLOOME . . . 53 YEARS OF SERVICE AND SAVINGS!

Mark C. Bloome has been the leader in the tire industry for 53 years. There is a very simple reason why - customer satisfaction and service.

It all started over fifty years ago with a gas station and a desire to give the public what they wanted and with this Mark C. Bloome has become the largest independent tire specialist in California. This was achieved by concentrating on major name-brand tires and quality service. Mark C. Bloome doesn't offer just one brand of tire, he gives you a choice from among a wide variety of tires with a price to suit your budget and a tire that will best fill your particular driving needs. With names like Uniroyal, B. F. Goodrich, Michelin, Pirelli, Goodyear, Firestone, Dunlop, Bridgestone, Gislaved and more, you see why Mark C. Bloome has had hundreds of thousands of satisfied customers through the years.

According to Art Estrada, Store Manager of the Pomona Mark C. Bloome at 1199 East Holt Avenue, the company satisfies its' customers by supplying their needs for a quality tire at the right price. He said, "We have a guarantee of satisfaction as to price and quality or we will refund your money or exchange your tires within ten (10) days of purchase. Just return your tires for an exchange or refund, it's that simple!"

Jim Hall, Service Manager of the Pomona Mark C. Bloome, says, "We offer fast quality service. We do tune-ups, wheel alignments, wheel balancing, and brakes using only the finest parts and equipment available. We use Quaker State oil exclusively for all of our lube jobs. Our adherence to these high standards is one of the main reasons we have such a high percentage of customers.

Customers wanting custom retreads will find the best tires at the lowest price at the 1199 East Holt Avenue store.

The Pomona Mark C. Bloome store carries a large selection of auto accessories: chrome, mag-type and heavy-duty wheels for autos and trucks, air shocks, regular shocks and even CB radios.

The employees of the Mark C. Bloome store in Pomona, Art Estrada, Manager, Dino Silvestre, Assistant Manager, Jim Hall, Service Manager, and Carlos, Joe, Mike, Marvin, Dave, Fred, Robert and Arnold, Ray, and a friendly crew of tire servicemen eager to serve you.

The store hours are from 8:00 a.m. to 9:00 p.m. daily, on Saturdays from 8:00 a.m. to 7:00 p.m. and on Sundays from 9:00 a.m. to 5:30 p.m.

CHILDREN ARE DWARFED BY 8-FOOT LOCOMOTIVE DRIVE WHEELS

Travel town now 25-years-old

Story and photos by JOSEPH H. FIRMAN, PB Staff Writer

All aboard!

Nestled in a corner of Los Angeles' sprawling Giffith Park is a seven-acre site studded with oldtime steam engines, early-day trolley cars, antique fire engines and modern bombers and fighter planes. This is Travel Town, a mecca for transportation buffs an eye-widening playground and museum for moppets.

A nice thing for youngsters — and their parents — is that this is not a hands-off exhibition, but an authentic collection of vehicles that imaginative small fry can scramble aboard, walk through, play on and crawl under. At the throttle of a mighty 80-ton locomotive , every child is Casey Jones. (The planes and fire engines are on-view but off-limits.)

Travel Town was established in the city-owned park largely through the enthusiasm and zeal of William Frederickson Jr., general manager of the recreation and parks department, who started planning the installation 30 years ago. Officially dedicated on Dec. 14, 1952, the travel exhibition rapidly grew in popularity and today draws half a million visitors a year. New exhibits are constantly being added.

At the heart of Travel Town is one of the world's largest collections of steam engines, 17 well-preserved locomotives ranging from a two-ton saddleback to a giant 110-ton Union Pacific engine. Among them is a Southern Pacific locomotive, circa 1880, that formerly operated in Golden Gate Park and along the San Francisco beaches. There are diners, Pullman cars, coal cars and cabooses, and an old Hawaiian narrow-gauge sugar train from Oahu. Among the oldest of the collection is an 1864 Western Pacific engine.

For oldtimers, a touch of nostalgia is evoked by the old yellow streetcars that were once Los Angeles' chief method of transportation. The cars were originally horsedrawn, then operated by cables and finally electrified and equipped with trolleys.

Another feature of the museum is a handsome collection of fire engines ranging from 1902 to 1937. Star of the show is a 60-year-old hook-and-ladder once drawn by horse and later by a gasoline tractor. The airplane exhibit boasts an F7U-3 Navy jet fighter, a PTV-3 Neptune bomber, and the dreaded German V-1 guided missile that terrorized London during World War II. The museum also displays an 1849 circus wagon, a one-horse shay from 1886, and a tallyho coach of vintage 1895.

Travel Town's lawns and tree-shaded areas offer picnic sites for families and small and large groups. There is a refreshment stand and souvenir shop. A special service provided is birthday parties for small fry, including a decorated cake, ice cream, milk and soft drinks. The youngsters hold their party in the dining cars of the Southern Pacific or Union Pacific railroad lines. Parties may be scheduled on Saturdays, Sundays and holidays and in the early evening hours during daylight saving time. Reservations and additional information can be obtained at (213) 661-9465.

Travel Town is open to the public from 9 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. seven days a week. Admission is free, and ample parking space is available.

Griffith Park is reached from the Pomona Valley by the San Bernardino Freeway to the Golden State Freeway and to the park turnoff.

Despite Carter in the White House

Southern clout on Capitol Hill at low ebb

WASHINGTON (AP) - While Jimmy Carter, flashing his smile from the White House, fills Southern hearts with pride, organized Southern clout on Capitol Hill is probably at its feeblest in 40 years.

Ironically, Carter's election as the first post-Civil War president from the Deep South and the decline of Southern bloc power in the Congress are two aspects of the same historic evolution, the return of the South to the national political and social mainstream.

It was Southern isolation and defensiveness that built a onceeffective third force in a twoparty legislative branch.

As recently as five years ago, six of the 12 major committees in the House, seven of 11 in the Senate, were headed by Southerners.

But there currently is only one Southern chairman in the House, Texan George H. Mahon of the Appropriations panel, and he is retiring from Congress next year.

Next in line to head the purse strings committee is another Southerner, Jamie Whitten of Mississippi. But next in line no longer means automatic succession, and Whitten faces a fight.

The change is less dramatic in the Senate, but the trend is clear. Six of the key chairmanships still are held by Southerners. But only two of these men are under 70 and non-Southerners are waiting in the wings.

When the great civil rights battles of the 1960's were being fought, a cohesive opposing band of about 100 Southern Democratic representatives was led by generals like Howard Smith of Virginia. He commanded as chairman of the Rules Committee, incomparably more powerful and independent then than it is now.

In the Senate, Richard B. Russell of Georgia led a force proportionately as strong.

The Southern Democratic strategists, skilled at trading votes and forming coalitions with Republicans, could not stop the march of civil rights legislation. But they succeeded in slowing it, to the frustration of Democratic presidents and even of the legendary Speaker Sam Rayburn.

Rayburn was the last southern Speaker, and one who came to see the need for legislation to foster social justice and better race relations. His confrontation with Smith and the resulting reconstitution of the Rules Committee was an early milestone on the road to the new House.

Speaker Thomas O'Neill of Massachusetts has much clearer lines of authority and party discipline to help him preside over the Democratic majority. Rayburn operated with personality, prestige and persuasion.

Revitalization of the Democratic caucus and steering committee, subjecting chairmanships to caucus vote — which led in 1975 to the ouster of three Southern chairmen — and conversion of the Rules Committee into an arm of the Democratic leadership are among the changes whose effects are still developing.

But there are more profound forces shaping Congress in the 1970s and their Southern contingents, deep-seated changes in attitude in the country as well as among those who are elected to legislative seats.

Many Southerners in Congress still share a conservative bent, especially in fiscal matters, a commitment to a strong military and a suspicion of foreign policy accommodations.

But there is no overriding passionate issue to weld them together. Southerners can argue persuasively that their region has made its adjustments and that the issue of race relations is much more divisive in cities such as Detroit and Boston than below the Mason-Dixon line.

Carter drew applause from a sweltering audience in Yazoo City, Miss., July 21, when he said:

"In the South we were guilty for many years of the deprivation of human rights to a large portion of our citizens. ...

"I think it was with a great deal of courage that the South was able to face up to that change. I personally believe it was the best thing that ever happened to the South in my lifetime. ...

"Now we white people and the black people who live near us can work together on common problems and share trials and difficulties and seek common solutions. I think it's strengthened the South.

"I would not be here as President had it not been for the Civil Rights Act and for the courage of some leaders — and I don't claim to be one of them — who changed those bad aspects of the South to the present greatness of the South."

The attitudes Carter described are reflected in present-day elections. There are many moderates and some liberals of both races in the current Southern delegations. It would be unthinkable today that only a few could feel free to refuse signing something like the Southern Manifesto of the 60s, which vowed opposition to civil rights legislation.

On other issues Southerners divide much as do representatives of other sections.

Moreover, Democrats no longer count the Southern delegations as their exclusive preserve. The 11 one-time Confederate states sent 27 Republican representatives, five Republican senators and one independent to the current Congress.

Southern conservatives may be able to change their party affiliation without ideological pain. But if they are elected as Republicans they forfeit their hopes for committee chairmanships and majority leadership posts so long as the Democrats continue to control Congress.

It was by electing Democrats, persistently re-electing incumbents and so pushing them up the once inevitable seniority ladder that the South built up its past formidable institutional influence in Congress.

But Southern political savvy is far from dead and individuals from the region may well find greater opportunities open to them with the demise of bloc politics.

There is no better example than Jimmy Carter.

DREDGER'S DELIGHT — Walt Dulaney of Reno has been dredging Truckee River for years in search of wedding bands just-divorced persons toss into the river after obtaining their final decree at nearby courthouse. He and friends have found more than 300 rings.

Mugger's nightmare: she's karate champ

LEWISTON, Maine (AP) — Pamela Wansker is the kind of woman who could give a mugger nightmares. The attractive 23-year-old could not only defend herself but probably would leave the would-be attacker bruised and sorry.

The 5-foot-7, 135-pound former schoolteacher is a skilled practitioner of karate. "It's something you can get excited about getting good at," she said, and she's very good at it indeed. Several weeks ago, she placed first in her class in the Amateur Athletic Union National Karate Championships at Virginia Beach, Va.

Miss Wansker went to the tournament hoping merely to be allowed to compete, and found herself pitted against young women from across the country in the women's advanced black belt division of kumite — freestyle sparring. She won all four of her matches.

"Most of the others I was competing against were black belts (the highest distinction in karate)," she said. But both she and her final opponent in the championship match were only brown belts, "which shows you how much a black belt means."

Miss Wansker, an avid skier and swimmer who was captain of the women's tennis team at Bates College here, has been practicing karate for two years at the Golden Fist Karate School in Lewiston. Her instructor, John Jenkins, himself a black belt, said: "She's quite strong. She can throw someone 250 pounds over her back in a flip."

At the AAU tournament — she also won the Maine AAU women's championship last year — Miss Wansker relied on her favorite maneuver — a "reverse punch" in which she twists her opponent around and gives him or her a quick chop around the midsection.

But contestants were judged primarily on technique and were not supposed to land heavy blows. "You throw kicks and punches to show you have control. ... You're not supposed to touch the face at all," she said.

Nonetheless, she suffered a cut lip and bruised cheek in one match, and still sports a large, ugly bruise beneath her elbow where a man kicked her in a recent workout.

"It happens all the time really," she shrugged. "Most of the time it's not malicious."

Normal weather contributing to drought

WASHINGTON (AP) — Milk and wine trucks began hauling water. The sprinkling of golf courses was curtailed. People were urged to shower together and flush only when necessary.

That was last summer in northern California — a time of adaptation that one man warned would be only a drop in the bucket if it didn't get a lot wetter.

As state, federal and local governments, as well as residents of drought areas try to cope, the National Weather Service reports that the problem right now is normal weather.

"It's pretty hard to get any kind of heavy rainfall in the western states during a normal summer," said Robert Dickson, deputy chief of the Long Range Prediction Group.

And that's the problem. It's a normal, dry summer.

On Jan. 20, the day he left office, then President Gerald R. Ford declared California and Utah in a state of emergency because of the drought.

Ford previously had taken similar action to assist Midwestern stockmen also facing drought conditions.

Today there are 2,031 counties or independent cities across the nation that have been declared drought disaster areas. These include counties in Alabama Vermont and Indiana which were added to the list this week.

In April the federal departments trying to cope with the drought came together in the Interagency Drought Coordinating Committee.

This group, headed by Assistant Secretary M. Rupert Cutler of the Agriculture Department, consolidates the drought activities of his department as well as the departments of Commerce and Interior and the Small Business Administration.

Dickson explained that the dryness is a return to normal weather after two abnormal years which were responsible for creating the drought in the first place.

Everything, he indicated, centers on the westerly winds in the upper atmosphere carrying weather across the country.

In the winter of 1975-76 these winds shifted to the north slightly, and blew in a flat pattern across the continent instead of their normal wave pattern.

This brought plenty of water to the Pacific Northwest, but without the waves to dip south from time to time, the West and Midwest were dry. And most of the country had a mild winter.

Last summer the wave pattern returned to the winds and it was actually a wetter-thanusual summer in California, Dickson said.

For example, San Francisco had 0.67 inch of rain last summer and Eureka, Calif., had more than two inches.

"If this is heavy precipitation ... what must light be," he reflected. "It's hard to make much out of totals of this nature."

Last winter, Dickson continued, was one of extended wave patterns in the atmosphere, with the winds curling north of California carrying away the needed moisture, whipping through Canada and then turning south to bring intense cold to most of the country.

This kept the normal winter rain away from the droughtplagued West again.

And now it's summer, and the wave pattern is back to normal, and so it's dry.

Dickson declined to speculate as to whether normal air patterns will continue this fall and bring water to the parched West, saying his group won't be making a prediction on that until late August.

"Nature is sometimes pretty slow about getting around to correcting these things, but it usually does eventually," he concluded.

In the Midwest, agriculture experts say rainfall has been sufficient in many areas to maintain the crops, but the preceeding drought has depleted water underground and in rivers and streams.

Since current rainfall is needed for crops, the ground water and stream flows are not being replenished and, should the rain fail, the farming areas could be in trouble, officials said.

Interior Secretary Cecil Andrus on Tuesday repeated his pledge to protect farmers and ranchers in disputes involving water rights.

The development of energy resources in the West is expected to create a huge demand for water from utilities. But Andrus said ranchers and farmers will be protected from losing water essential for production of crops.

In its most recent survey of the nation's available water, issued last week, the U.S. Geological Survey reported that problems were increasing in the Southeast and streamflows were well below normal in much of the West and Midwest.

The California drought has already been declared the worst in that state's history and officials said many rivers across the nation are now recording their lowest flows of water in history.

This has been compounded by the growth of dangerous algae in some parts of Montana and by concentrations of chemicals and other contaminants in other shrunken rivers.

The nation's five biggest rivers — the Mississippi, Missouri, St. Lawrence, Ohio and Columbia — drain nearly half of the contiguous 48 states.

In July the combined flow of water in these rivers averaged 714 billion gallons a day, 22 per cent below normal. Only the Ohio was above normal, and that was attributed to the runoff from flooding in Johnstown, Pa.

Jazz festival sets performers

Numerous notables will be among the peformers at the 20th annual Monterey Jazz Festival, scheduled for Sept. 16, 17 and 18.

Art Blakey, powerhouse drummer who formed the Jazz Messengers in 1955, and Horace Silver, pianist who created the soul school of jazz in the late fifties, will be among the headliners for the event planned for the Monterey County Fairgrounds.

Count Basie and his orchestra, with vocalist Joe Williams, will open the first of the five concerts Sept. 16 at 9 p.m.

Both Blakey and Silver have long been considered influential artists and their small combos have been training grounds for jazz performers who later achieved major stature.

The original Jazz Messengers featured Silver; tenor saxophonist Hank Mobley; trumpeter Kenny Dorham; bassist Doug Watkins and Blakey. Through the years the personnel changed frequently and became a proving ground for such jazzmen as trumpeters Donald Byrd, Lee Morgan; saxophonists Jackie McLean, Wayne Shorter, Benny Golson and Johnny Griffin and pianists Junior Mance and Bobby Timmons.

Silver, celebrating his silver anniversary with Blue Note Records and a graduate of the Blakey school, formed his first group in 1956 and became master instructor for a series of jazz artists. Silver alumni include Blue Mitchell, Louis Hayes, Joe Henderson, Randy Brecker, Bill Cobham, Tom Harrell, Woody Shaw and Bob Berg. Silver wed jazz with blues and gospel more than 20 years ago with his own compositions and continues to be a ranking leader in the field of jazz.

The 20th anniversary blowout on Saturday night at 8:15 will feature trumpeter Harry "Sweets" Edison and saxophonist Eddie "Lockjaw" Davis.

Edison began his career in the 1930s with Lucky Millinder and went on to perform with Count Basie. He has performed with Jazz at the Philharmonic, Buddy Rich, Quincy Jones, Louis Bellson, Frank Sinatra and the late Josephine Baker.

Davis, a self-taught musician, has played with Cootie Williams Band, Lucky Millinder, Andy Kirk, Louis Armstrong and Count Basie.

The blowout will also feature trumpeter Clark Terry, saxophonist Benny Golson, pianist John Lewis, bassist Richard Davis, guitarist Mundell Lowe and drummer Roy Burns.

The Airmen of Note, the official U.S. Air Force Jazz Band, will premiere Gerald Wilson's "Happy Birthday, Monterey Suite" Friday night with Wilson conducting and special guest artists. The Airmen will also join pianist Lewis in the premiere of a new work Saturday evening.

Carrie Smith, singer of blues, jazz, torch songs and spirituals, will also be featured on the Saturday night program. The program is completed with a piano duo premiere by Lewis and Hank Jones.

Additional artists for the festival will be announced later.

Common Cause has uncommonly sharp leader in Nan Waterman

WASHINGTON (AP) — When Nan Waterman of Muscatine, Iowa, was interviewed as one of five candidates to head Common Cause, she asked the committee, "Are you practicing by starting with a woman?"

The question may have been in jest. But it is no secret that many people were surprised when the powerful citizen's lobbying organization chose a woman as chairperson.

In the four months since Mrs. Waterman took over the job, she has enhanced her reputation as a level-headed person who sets high standards for herself.

"She asks us to criticize her public performances, such as speeches and press interviews," said Common Cause president David Cohen. "She's constantly asking, 'How can I do better?'

"She's a person who has been tested, who is at home in the kinds of conflicts and combats we are engaged in."

Mrs. Waterman, 57, has red curly hair, accented by wide purple frames on her glasses. Her friendly, easy manner fits right into the campaign-like atmosphere of Common Cause's Washington headquarters.

Her job is part-time and runs for one-year with two opportunities for re-election. It pays $44,000 a year on a pro-rated basis. Under Common Cause founder John Gardner, chairperson was a full-time job. But when he decided to resign, Cohen took over more of the day-to-day responsibilities. It was decided that the chair would be part-time.

Right now, Mrs. Waterman is spending much of her time travelling to meet with the organization's grassroots leaders and find out what they are doing about the issues important to Common Cause.

"In a sense, I'm creating a new job," Mrs. Waterman said. "There was only one John Gardner. I have to think carefully about what the role of chairperson should be. It's very important for the health of the organization to get to members in the field as often as possible."

In an interview in the small downtown Washington offices where she spends about half her working hours, Mrs. Waterman said one of her goals is to see the Equal Rights Amendment approved.

"Its chances are slim, but possible," she said. "Proponents of the ERA have to get their act together. We need one strategy on which we all agree. We each need to take a role and do it.

"We can't afford the time and money to duplicate work that has been done before, such as having three groups survey legislators' positions on the amendment."

The ERA, which would guarantee women equal legal treatment, has been ratified by 35 states and needs ratification by three more by March 1979 to become part of the Constitution.

Mrs. Waterman, a Democrat, took over the organization from Gardner, also a Democrat. He founded Common Cause in 1970 as a force to pressure government on public interest issues outside the partisan context of the political parties.

It has grown to a membership of about 255,000. Each member pays least $15 a year in dues, but most pay much more. In return, they receive two publications that brief them on the issues. Mrs. Waterman said the average dues now is about $21.

Common Cause gained much of its reputation doing battle with administration of former President Richard M. Nixon. The organization filed the lawsuit that forced Nixon to disclose the contributors to his 1972 re-election campaign.

That disclosure revealed a number of illegal corporate gifts.

One of Common Cause's biggest victories was the passage of post-Watergate election reforms which it pushed, including limits on donations and spending, rigid reporting by candidates and public financing of presidential elections.

The group lost a battle recently to extend public financing of federal elections to Senate races.

Some of those who know Mrs. Waterman say she is particularly interested in social reform issues, such as income assistance for the poor, welfare reform and housing.

"It would be nice if Common Cause became more involved in these issues because of her leadership," said Peggy Lampl, executive director of the League of Women Voters, where Mrs. Waterman spent 14 years before she joined Common Cause's board in 1972.

Common Cause officials say that in the immediate future, chances of this are slim. "It's just not what our members want," one administrator said.

Mrs. Waterman, a native of Duluth, Minn., is the daughter of a building contractor whom she decribes as a "civil libertarian."

"We were the kind who always had a picture of the candidate inthe window and a campaign sign on the front lawn," she said.

Mrs. Waterman's husband, a furniture salesman, has a master's degree in political science and juggles his schedule to travel with her as much as possible. They can do this, Mrs. Waterman said, because their four sons, ages 18 to 30, no longer live at home. "We decided that the job was important to me, and we would do everything we could over the next few years to see that it works," she said.

HIGH STANDARDS — Nan Waterman, who heads Common Cause, the powerful citizens' lobbying organization, has enhanced reputation as a level-headed person who sets high standards for herself.

Pomona School Board holds special session

31 portable classrooms approved; bond issue proposed

By DAN NIEBRUGGE
PB Staff Writer

Speculative discussion of a bond issue for Pomona schools as early as next March arose Friday evening as the Pomona school board — in a special meeting — approved the purchase of 31 relocatable classrooms for the 1977-78 school year on a 3-2 vote.

District Supt. Charles Carpenter recommended the purchase of the classrooms despite what had been fairly broad support on the board for looking into the possibility of constructing permanent buildings at the now overcrowded Pomona and Ganesha High School campuses.

In a memo to the board, however, Carpenter recommended the purchase of the 31 buildings as opposed to the earlier request for 33. Carpenter recommended that the board concurrently direct the superintendent to devise a five-year master plan for district building needs. He said that a campaign directed toward the passage of a bond measure to finance the proposed building be "mounted" for the spring of 1978. He said that as permanent structures are built with bond money, the new portables be used to replace deteriorated portables now in the district.

Trustee C. Allen Braswell expressed a semantic concern that the bond election not be "mounted" for next spring, but be "held" next spring saying that between now and the end of September the district should decide just what it wishes to include in the bond election.

"A campaign should be decided upon and we should have it underway by Jan. 15," said Braswell. "On a strategy basis a short 45 to 60-day campaign would be best."

While this is the first serious public mention of a bond election, rumors have persisted for weeks that the district will go for a bond measure worth anywhere from $15 to $30 million calling for construction of a high school in Diamond Bar, one or two elementary schools in the Phillips Ranch and massive additions and upgradings of already existing facilities which are suffering maintenance problems. The measure could come before the voters — twice if necessary — by next June with hopes resting on an April or March passage.

Key to the passage would be the groundbreaking of the approximately 2,500 homes in the Phillips Ranch.

Carpenter said he made his recommendation for the purchase of the portables based on the overwhelming need at Pomona and Ganesha High Schools and because of increased special education needs.

He said permanent structures are not feasible for any of these needs and noted that cost differences between permanent buildings and relocatables are excessive. He said to use current district owned portables to effect temporary relief would seriously disrupt ongoing programs.

Carpenter told the board in his report that the district now owns 161 relocatables. In May, he told the Progress Bulletin the district owned 75 portables.

Trustees Eugene Whitlock and Frances Livingston voted to oppose the $1.2 million relocatable purchase with Whitlock stating he felt the district presently had 27 portable buildings which are not being used to their full potential. These, he said, could fill in this year along with rented trailers to provide space while permanent structures are being built.

Carpenter said architectural estimates for permanent buildings ranged anywhere from $630,000 to $674,000 while a comparable number of relocatables would cost $415,000.

Whitlock complained that the staff had not brought back the necessary information telling how many hours each portable is used. He said that in the absence of that information he was forced to vote against the proposal.

Judge nixes Nazi parade in Skokie

WASHINGTON (AP) — Supreme Court Justice John Paul Stevens refused Friday to permit Nazi demonstrators to parade with swastikas in Skokie, Ill., a Chicago suburb in which about 7,000 survivors of World War II death camps reside.

Stevens rejected an application by the National Socialist Party of America for a stay that would have cleared the way for such demonstrations while a lower-court order banning them is being appealed.

The Illinois Supreme Court has set arguments on the appeal Sept. 20.

"I am confident that the Illinois Supreme Court will make its decision without any unnecessary delay," Stevens said.

"Considering ... that the entry of the stay would be tantamount to a decision on the merits in favor of the applicants, it seems clear that a stay should not be granted."

The party, represented by attorneys of the American Civil Liberties Union, is appealing a ruling by the Illinois Appellate Court that under the circumstances, the display of the Nazi emblem would be "an epithet of racial and religious hatred."

The party and its leader, Frank Collin, have argued that the state court order is an unconstitutional interference with "symbolic speech."

The party originally planned to parade in Skokie on April 30, but the demonstration has been held in abeyance by court orders.

In the meantime, local ordinances have been passed in Skokie requiring $350,000 insurance for public demonstrations and imposing other restrictions.

'HATCHET JOB' SAYS BEAME

Mayor Abraham Beame of New York speaks to newsmen Friday at Police Headquarters in New York as he comments on a Securities and Exchange Commission report critical of his role in the city's fiscal crisis. Beame termed the report a "hatchet job" and a "shameless, vicious political document." The report claims Beame misled the public in order to sell a record $4 billion in short-term city securities to keep New York afloat in 1974 and 1975.

Victims were young; shot near jogging path

HACKETTSTOWN, N.J. (AP) — The son of a former town councilman shot and killed six persons Friday on a bicycle path, then killed himself as officers and bloodhounds closed in on him, police said.

The gunman, identified by a local policeman as Emil Benoist, died of wounds from a .44-caliber rifle at Community Hospital in this usually quiet town of about 11,000, in northwest New Jersey near the Pennsylvania border, state police said.

Identities of the victims, most of them in their teens or early 20s, were withheld pending notification of relatives.

There was no known motive for the shootings, police said.

Three of the victims, each shot several times, were found about 300 yards behind an abandoned tannery here after police received a call at 5:36 p.m. about a shooting near the bicycle path adjacent to railroad tracks.

Ten minutes later, three other gunshot victims were sighted in adjacent Mansfield Township — about a half-mile away — by the crew of a westbound ConRail train, police said.

The suspect apparently hid behind bushes near the railroad tracks and popped out to shoot persons he encountered along the route, police said.

The railroad bend is used by residents for jogging, bike riding, walking dogs and as a shortcut.

"It appears he kept darting back into the bush, working his way to Mansfield, periodically jumping out to ambush another victim," a state policeman said.

The gunman shot himself in the head at about 9:10 p.m. as he was about to be captured, state police said.

One resident told reporters she heard 15 shots.

The gunman also took random shots at passing cars along Rock Port Road but there were no injuries, police said.

Benoist's friends said his father was Pierre Benoist, who they said had been a Hackettstown councilman.

One friend, who asked not to be identified, said Benoist, who was in his 20s, liked to hunt and served with the U.S. Marines at Parris Island.

"That really messed him up," his friend said.

Benoist also boxed recently in the Golden Gloves tournament, his friend said.

"He was bottled up and no one would try to understand him. No one would listen to what he had to say," the friend said.

Benoist worked for New Jersey Department of Transportation.

A state police helicopter, hundreds of police officers from neighboring communities, about 30 state troopers and bloodhounds from the Morris County Sheriff's office were used in the search, police said.

Lack of water to combat fires may curb Chino building

By BOB SWETNAM
PB Staff Writer

Building activity in the Chino area — already slowed because of inadequate sewage treatment capacity — may come to a stop in some areas due to a lack of water for fire protection, said fire officials.

County Fire Marshal Leo Beeson of the Chino Rural Fire District said some Chino Valley areas lack adequate water for fire protection.

Noting that San Bernarino County supervisors have adopted an ordinance requiring land developers to get letters from water agencies which certify adequate service capacities exist before granted building permits, Beeson said development in some areas may be stopped completely until enough water can be provided.

Areas affected are the Sleepy Hollow area of Carbon Canyon, the Mountain View area east of Carbon Canyon, and an area of the Chino Hills near the Corona Expressway.

Other potential problem areas are the north and west areas of the City of Chino.

"The problem is not that there isn't enough water, but rather getting water to certain areas," said Beeson.

A Public Utilities Commission rule requires minimum fire control water flow standards for all residential, commercial and industrial properties.

And the areas cited by fire department officials currently don't meet the state standards, said Beeson.

Until water mains are increased in size or water storage facilities are built, no more construction will be allowed in the shortage areas, he said.

Beeson estimates the number of building permits that might be affected by the state mandate would amount to only 2 per cent of all building activity in the Chino Valley.

"This is basically a short-term problem that can be remedied by developers," he explained.

Voyager II 'does its own thing'

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — Voyager 2 used a mind of its own Friday and refused to obey a command from Earth, so scientists still don't know whether the craft's scientific instruments are ready for a nine-year probe of the outer solar system.

With a stubbornness not unlike that of Hal, the rebellious computer in the movie "2001: A Space Odyssey," Voyager 2's computer abruptly canceled an order to eject a dust cover from the end of a 7½-foot arm loaded with scientific equipment.

Spokesmen at Jet Propulsion Laboratory said they had no idea why the computer, known as HYPACE for Hybrid Programmable Attitude Control Electronics, balked at the command.

"They're still scratching their heads trying to figure it out," said JPL's Voyager spokesman, Don Bane.

But they still trust the computer, he said.

"I guess I'd have to say it did the right thing. We just haven't figured out why it was the right thing," Bane said.

Blaze breaks out on 3 floors of U.S. Embassy in Moscow

MOSCOW (AP) — Soviet firemen and U.S. Marines battled a fierce and stubborn blaze on the top three floors of the U.S. Embassy Friday night and early today. No injuries were reported but a Marine security guard was treated for smoke inhalation.

Twenty Soviet firetrucks rushed to the scene at the first report. Three hours after the fire began at about 10:30 p.m. — 3:30 p.m. EDT — the embassy said it was "superficially under control," then flames flared on parts of the roof for the first time and the Russians sent in more units.

The building is a 10-story mustard-colored structure built in the early 1950s. An embassy official said there had been a routine fire inspection recently.

"I would say without really being there that the eighth and ninth floors are pretty gutted," U.S. Ambassador Malcolm Toon said.

Toon, who arrived in formal clothes from a dinner at the Romanian Embassy, told newsmen the embassy building, which also contains 40 residential apartments, had been completely evacuated. The ambassador has a separate residence.

The Marine who suffered smoke inhalation was identified as Cpl. Wayne Ekblad. His home town was not known.

Asked about a possible security risk from Soviet firemen inside classified areas of the building, Toon said: "We're taking all the appropriate steps that are required."

Marines wearing gas masks, members of the embassy's security force of about 15 people, slowed the fire at the outset with their own equipment.

Nixons hurt by hints they kept foreign gifts

WASHINGTON (AP) — Former President Richard Nixon was described Friday as angry and Mrs. Nixon as deeply hurt by implications that they intentionally kept some valuable foreign gifts that belong to the government.

"Right now she is going through stuff in the house, like the boss's jewelry, to see if there are cuff links or stuff like that," Nixon's aide, Jack Brennan, said in a telephone interview from San Clemente, Calif.

Another aide, Ken Khachigian, spoke of "the really crummy implication that they have broken the law in a sense, taking things that belonged to the public."

Nixon's lawyers asked a court Wednesday to bar the government from rummaging through storage boxes for photographs, lists or other clues about foreign gifts presented to Nixon and his family while he was president. The law requires that any gift worth more than $50 be turned over to the State Department and such items usually end up as displays in presidential libraries.

A federal judge refused to halt the search, which will begin next week.

On Monday, the Washington Post said some government officials believe some gifts are in the Nixons' custody. The newspaper listed some "missing" items as a carpet, watches, antiquities, an oil painting, a silver box, a gold necklace and bracelet, several other bracelets.

The value of state gifts to Nixon and his family in the 5½ years he was president has been estimated at $2 million and there have been published allegations that the value of "missing" items may be as much as one-fourth of that.

Any allegation that the Nixons purposely kept such valuable gifts "is utterly false," Khachigian said. He would not rule out that some items may have been packed in crates sent into storage in San Clemente.

"If it turns out that any state gifts were inadvertently sent to San Clemente, then we'll return the damn things as soon as we can," he said.

Brown's plan to halt rising hospital costs setback

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Gov. Edmund Brown Jr.'s plan to regulate rising hospital costs suffered a setback Friday when the measure's author angrily dropped the bill and criticized another legislator.

The Democratic governor responded to the development by lambasting the hospital industry's opposition to the bill and saying he would fight to curb "runaway hospital costs."

"The hospital industry is addicted to unlimited spending. This industry is reaching into the pocketbooks of Californians to a degree that is out of control," Brown said in an interview.

Assemblyman Barry Keene, D-Eureka, announced his move dropping the bill in a sharply worded letter to Ways and Means chairman Dan Boatwright, D-Concord, who was the target of his anger.

Keene, the chairman of the Assembly Health Committee, told Boatwright he had been "totally lacking in objectivity" during an Aug. 16 Ways and Means hearing on the bill.

Both the California Hospital Association and the California Medical Association opposed the bill at that hearing.

On Friday Jack Smith, a California Hospital Association spokesman, denied the CHA ever "tried to kill the bill" and said it was waiting to see if a federal bill on the issue wins passage.

At the Aug. 16 hearing, where the bill was sent to interim study until January, Boatwright called the legislation, which had been approved by Keene's Health Committee, a "schlock" measure.

Keene's measure would create a Public Utilities Commission-style regulatory commission to regulate hospital rates. The commission would be appointed by the governor.

Hospital costs in California are 16 times higher than they were in 1950.

Boatwright said through an aide he hoped to work out something with Keene. Brown said he had tried to persuade Boatwright to vote for the measure and had failed.

Approval given to transit service between airport, Orange County

But West End will supply no funds

By MAE TATE
PB Staff Writer

West End officials gave a final nod to a transit service line between Orange County and Ontario International Airport this week, but made it clear no funds would be given to the service.

The general consensus of the West Valley Transit Service Authority (WVTSA) board was that the line would primarily benefit Orange County by relieving congestion at the Orange County Airport, getting the pressure off the Board of Supervisors about curtailment of activities at the airport and providing an alternative airport service to north and central Orange County residents.

"I don't see this (service) as of any particular benefit to San Bernardino County residents. It's a convenience for Orange County people to get to the Ontario airport," said Mayor Harold Hayes of Montclair.

Supervisor Joe Kamansky of Upland reiterated previous remarks by his colleague Bob Townsend which opposes any allocation of funds within San Bernardino County for the airport service line.

Wes McDaniel, executive director of the San Bernardino Associated Governments (SANBAG), reported final steps for implementation of the service route are underway. The Airport Transit Co., a private operator with the Public Utilities Commission rights for such an inter-county service and with considerable previous experience in the field, has been selected as the logical operator for the route.

The private company quoted a backup guarantee figure of $300,000 annually to operate the line, and said that figure represents a 25 per cent passenger load factor per basis in order to break even. The owner is asking that if he is able to go beyond that breakeven point, that the $300,000 need not be paid by the county.

Kamansky was quick to ask "which county?"

"The Orange County Board of Supervisors is in the driver's seat," McDaniel responded. "They agree that the hand to be played is theirs initially, and are willing to pick up the total tab. They agree that they should pay out the first funding and then evaluate the service later."

McDaniel said two alternate routes had been suggested. One goes from the Orange County Airport to the Saddleback Inn in Santa Ana to Disneyland to the Orange Freeway to Brea Shopping Center and into San Bernardino County.

The routing for the portion in San Bernardino County is broken into two alternatives. One travels along the Pomona Freeway to Central Avenue to Euclid Avenue and up to Holt Boulevard and the downtown Ontario Civic Center before going eastward to OIA. It takes 60 minutes.

The other route in the West End — and the one given first priority by the WVTSA board — would take the Orange Freeway to the San Bernardino Freeway, stop at the Montclair Plaza, go back on the freeway to Vineyard Avenue and south to OIA.

Councilwoman Eileen Carter of Chino said the San Bernardino Freeway route was the "logical linkage for Omnitrans, Southern California Rapid Transit District, Amtrak and other services in the West End. It also serves more people."

McDaniel said the second route takes only three minutes longer and is "easier and smoother for the rider." He added that it also meets the interconnect point at the Montclair Plaza bus terminal.

The service will be implemented following action by the Orange County Board of Supervisors on the funding.

League of Women Voters issued mandate

Court rules on water bond election

By JACK BURSON
PB Staff Writer

The Claremont League of Women Voters Friday was granted an alternative writ of mandate in Pomona Superior Court which ordered either that its argument in oppositon to an upcoming $26 million water bond election issue accompany the sample Nov. 8 ballot, or that reasons it should not do so be presented to the court Sept. 2.

The action was ordered by Judge Roberta Ralph and concerns a special election which seeks money for a water project endorsed by the Pomona Valley Municipal Water District. The league opposes the project. A similar bond issue, seeking $35 million, was defeated in 1975.

William C. Leech, PVMWD president, said the money would be used for the construction of new treatment, storage and transmission facilities to provide eight member agencies with an adequate supply of improved quality water for the next 10 years.

The argument in support of the issue, which will accompany the sample ballot, reportedly was written by four members of the board of directors.

The argument in opposition was written by another board member, C.H. Thatcher, according to the petition.

It is that argument which the league feels is improper and for which it seeks to substitute its own. The league, through Claremont Attorney Stephen I. Zetterberg, claims in its petition that on June 7, 1977, at a regular meeting of the board, Thatcher said he was behind the board's choice (for relocation of the water plant) 100 per cent and would actively support the decision. The league claims that a copy of the board's minutes shows that Thatcher said at that meeting, "I'm for the whole enchilada."

The league's petition named the district, individual board members, Wlliam Leech, president, and Los Angeles County Registrar-Recorder Leonard Panish as respondents.

Youth with knife who stalked shoppers jailed

A 16-year-old Pomona youth put a Bowie knife with a 12-inch blade to the throat of a woman shopper in the parking lot of Buffums in Pomona Friday noon and ordered her from her car.

Immediately the car was surrounded by members of the East Valley Burglary Investigation Team and the youth was placed under arrest.

He was taken to Pomona Police Department where he was held in custody before being transferred to Juvenile Hall, Los Angeles.

Pomona Det. Ronald Kelly and Officer Charles Rosales made the arrest at 12:40 p.m.

Team members had been watching the juvenile, who had been reported as a possible suspect stalking victims in the parking lot after leaving the store, with a possible robbery motive.

The surveillance began at noon.

Detective Kelly said he and Rosales watched as the youth moved about the parking lot and customers walked between the lot and the store.

They saw the victim come out of the store, walk to her car, get in and turn on the key.

The youth "stalked" her in the lot, Kelly said. As she started the car, he pulled the knife, placed it at her throat and demanded the keys. She got out of the car on the passenger side, and the officers moved in.

The East Valley Burglary Investigation Team is a federally-funded program which involves police from all cities in the San Gabriel Valley, including Pomona, and the Los Angeles County Sheriff's Department.

For speeding

'Tickets' run in the family

An Ontario couple had something in common Friday, and it wasn't just the family laundry.

Both were cited for speeding by the same radar traffic officer at the same location — only 17 minutes apart.

John Valdez, owner of the J & J Tire Co., Ontario, was driving to work and going over the Mountain Avenue overpass near Holt Boulevard about 8 a.m. when the officer stopped him and gave a citation.

The officer then returned to his location. A short time later, Mrs. Valdez drove over the overpass and was also stopped.

When checking her driver's license, the officer almost apologetically asked, "What's this, a family affair?"

The officer, Bill Smith, then explained he had just written a citation for her husband on the same violation.

Husband and wife met a short time later, without a need for explanations.

Chino man critical after car accident

A 21-year-old Chino man remains in critical condition this morning in Chino General Hospital with injuries suffered in a single-car traffic accident on Carbon Canyon Road near Peyton Drive in Chino.

California Highway Patrolmen said that a car, driven by David Bernard Baca of 16825 Hay Drive, Chino, went out of control after passing another vehicle on Carbon Canyon Road about 8:30 p.m. Thursday. The car began fishtailing and plunged over an embankment before rolling over. Baca was the most seriously injured and admitted to the Chino hospital. His three passengers, Sidney Cox, 16, of 13075 Oaks Ave., Chino; Toney Gallegher, 17, of 13225 19th St., Chino; and William Rogers, 18, of 16780 Hay Drive, Chino, were also injured, but treated and released from San Antonio Community Hospital in Upland.

Patrolmen said the driver may have passed one vehicle and was forced to swerve right to avoid hitting several oncoming vehicles before losing control of the car.

Guard open house set

The Army National Guard unit in Pomona will hold an open house today at the armory at 600 S. Park Ave.

The open house will also serve as a reunion for former members of the unit.

Enlistment information will also be available.

L.P. man killed

STEAMBOAT SPRINGS, Colo (AP) — A La Puente, Calif., man has died in a two-car accident about 10 miles east of this Rocky Mountain resort town, the Colorado State Patrol reported Friday.

The patrol said Terry Van Sickle, 32, was injured fatally when the car in which he was riding skidded against a rock embankment and rolled on its side on Rabbit Ears Pass Thursday

Citrus College's oldest employe keeping busy

By VONNE ROBERTSON
PB Staff Writer

Citrus College's oldest employe is also one of the school's most enthusiastic boosters.

She's Mae Kime, whose 90th birthday in May turned into a one-week celebration involving the college band, city and college officials and as many as 400 guests at one party.

Mrs. Kime, who says "Just call me Mae," was asked to join the college's community services staff in the spring when her enthusiasm caught the eye of President Robert D. Haugh.

Best described as the valley's "Mother Dexter," Mrs. Kime stands less the 5 feet tall, has an infectious laugh and sparkling eyes and more energy than most of her coworkers.

Her introduction to the campus came last spring when she joined a tour comprised of fellow residents in a senior citizen community in Duarte.

"Thirty of us signed up, but only 15 appeared when the bus came to get us," says Mrs. Kime. "Then some of those attending were so lazy they didn't want to see half of the campus.

"There seemed to be as many guides as tourists. Fortunately, I got Dr. Haugh as my guide. Imagine — the college president — how about that!

"I was absolutely intrigued with all I saw — tennis courts, a planetarium, a theater, a cosmetology department and so much more."

College officials, on the other hand, were fascinated with the 90-year-old woman's enthusiasm and intelligence.

John Andrews, community services coordinator, suggested the college investigate the legal aspects of placing someone her age on the staff on a part-time basis. She was interviewed and hired.

"When I got a phone call that the college wanted to talk to me, I was sure I'd done something wrong during my visit," relates Mrs. Kime.

"One of my jobs had been to talk with people in senior citizen centers and invite them to the campus and encourage them to enroll in classes," Andrews says. "But I'm 22 years old, and sometimes felt I wasn't getting through to the senior citizens.

"But I knew that Mae could."

Mrs. Kime now spends her time visiting all of the senior citizen clubs, community centers and residential areas in the cities of Azusa, Claremont, Duarte, Glendora and Monrovia.

She is paid for 10 hours a month, but puts in many more, Andrews says.

"I encourage senior citizens to sign up for the college's Gold Card program which offers reduced-price or free admission to many events on campus.

"I also encourage older people to enroll in courses on the campus," continues Mrs. Kime.

"The first time I approach a group, I may appear as a stranger, but when I go back, it's like I'm a life-long friend."

She says the college sends buses to centers to pick up groups for tours of the campus and for attendance at performances if 15 adults are signed up.

Andrews and Mrs. Kime are enthusiastic about the new programs at the college which cater to the senior citizens in the district.

The board of trustees voted to waive the fees for persons over 60 enrolled in classes on the campus.

In addition, if 15 or more persons request a special class off the campus, it can be set up and a professor arranged.

Among the special courses for senior citizens being offered on the campus is "Psychology of Retirement," taught by a former college president.

The college has already presented "Great Religions of the World," a three-unit credit course at a Duarte resident center. It was so well received by the 15 students — none of which dropped — that two other courses, in Spanish and psychology, will be offered at the same location this fall.

Working is nothing new to Mrs. Kime. She's been a career woman most of her life and intends to continue her activities for a long time.

Born May 19, 1887, in St. Louis Mo., she spent 25 years working for Burroughs Adding Machine Co. in St. Louis before moving to California and continuing in the same line of work.

"I flew all over the country teaching salesmen to sell the adding machines. Then I went to companies and taught their employes how to use them," she says.

"I've always worked with men and find them much more interesting than women. Women, especially older ones, just want to be entertained and spend too much time fighting with each other."

Mrs. Kime's birthday party featured the college's special marching band unit, the Citrus Serenaders, who came parading up the street to entertain her.

"That sure shook up the rest of the people where I live," she laughs.

The delightfully witty woman confesses to two "vices." She has a passion for attending mass at various Catholic churches, usually two or more each Sunday.

She also likes to sip margueritas, but is unhappy because she hasn't been offered a strawberry one yet.

New hot meal program

Senior citizens to join children

By JON MORRIS
PB Staff Writer

Elderly residents and school children will be eating lunch together under a new hot meal program to be launched in the San Dimas area on Oct. 3.

The noontime meal — sponsored by the City of San Dimas and the Bonita Unified School District — will be served at Ekstrand School, 400 N. Walnut Ave., Monday through Friday.

Residents over 50 years old may pay $1.25 for a meal, which includes an entree, vegetable, salad, bread and butter, dessert and beverage.

A key part of the program is that senior citizens will be sharing their lunch tables with children in first through fifth grades.

"The association is vital for the senior citizens and the children," said Pat Gore, city administrative coordinator. "Older people enjoy the conversation and children are seeking a grandparent."

The program will provide "soul food" through the special contact, added Mrs. Gore.

Through the joint effort of the city and school district, the meals for senior citizens are offered "at cost."

The city had attempted to obtain federal funds for the project but was unsuccessful because of the small number of elderly residents involved and the "high economic level" in the area, she noted.

With federal funds not involved, senior citizens do not have to "qualify" for the meals.

The city and school district will operate the program on a non-profit basis and will absorb overhead costs, said Mrs. Gore. The school district is providing the facility, equipment, personnel and utilities. The city will offer "staff time."

Menus will be provided in advance, and senior citizens will be encouraged to make reservations for the lunches.

The new program is different from the already successful San Dimas "Meals on Wheels" project which is geared mainly to those confined to their homes.

"This program is for the persons who can walk, drive or be pushed to the school in a wheelchair," said Mrs. Gore.

Persons wanting to help with the program or want more information may phone Mrs. Gore at 599-6713.

About 30 junior aides from the Claremont Red Cross will earn themselves a trip to Disneyland by compiling 50 hours of volunteer time in helping tiny tots to swim in Claremont's summer swim program at El Roble swimming pool. Enjoying the pool are, from left, Chad Keegan, 12, Allan Markham, 4, Kelly Carter, 15, aide, Clay Weaver, 3½, Shelley Grant, 15, and Ricky Muehlich, 3. Five aides at the Crippled Children's Society on Indian Hill Boulevard, Claremont, also earned themselves a trip to Disneyland.

Rotary Club members drumming up support for Tokyo convention

Two Claremont Rotary Club members have been visiting some of the 46 clubs in District 530 to stir up support for Rotary International's convention in Tokyo May 14-18, 1978.

Oliver (Jolly) Batcheller, district governor-nominee, and John Ilsley don "On to Tokyo" headdress and kimonos and invade local Rotary meetings from Pasadena into Southern Nevada to spur the membership to plan to attend the worldwide organization's convention next year.

Batcheller said that Rotary International has 800,000 members in 153 countries, and that 26,000 delegates are expected to attend the Tokyo convention.

The pair said they have enjoyed attending other Rotary Club meetings to push the convention, and hope to cover all clubs.

Both said that they are planning to go to Tokyo in 1978.

Public hearings on voluntary legal aid begin

The State Bar of California will hold a series of public hearings beginning Tuesday on proposals for a voluntary program of donated legal assistance for persons in need.

The hearings, which will be held in six cities throughout California, were ordered by the bar's board of governors. The board set the hearings during its June meeting after receiving a report on unmet legal needs. The report was the result of a year-long study by the board committee on legal services and a special committee of the bar's legal services section. The report recommended creation of a state-wide voluntary program for state lawyers.

The committee study was aimed at seeking a voluntary alternative to mandatory service proposed to the state Legislature last year. State Bar President Edward Rubin issued a statement urging participation in the hearings.

"As many attorneys and interested members of the public as possible should attend and make their wishes known so that an effective voluntary program can be devised and put into effect," he said.

The hearings will be held in Los Angeles Tuesday at 1 p.m. at the state bar office, 1230 W. Third St.; in San Bernardino Wednesday at 1:30 p.m. at the at 303 N. E St.; in Fresno Sept. 14 at 1:30 p.m. at the Hilton Hotel; in Sacramento Sept. 20 at 1:30 p.m. at the Community-Convention Center; in Oakland Sept. 21 at 1:30 p.m. at the Oakland Airport Hilton; and in San Diego Sept. 25 at 3 p.m. at the Convention Center.

Harvey-Mudd students to reveal the results of conservation study

Ever wonder about some practical and economical ways to use and conserve valuable energy?

Scientists and engineering students at Harvey-Mudd College in Claremont have for several months been exploring methods that the homeowner, local government and businesses can use to reduce their energy consumption.

The results of their energy conservation study will be made public Sunday at 10:30 a.m. in the Unitarian Society of Pomona Valley church, 9185 Monte Vista Ave., Montclair.

Two Claremont professors and a team of students from the Harvey-Mudd College Engineering Clinic — under contract to the City of Claremont — will present their findings on how local citizens can conserve energy.

Information will be presented to let residents know how to better insulate their homes, plan their use of utilities, build or rennovate their homes to maximize energy conservation and how to change their energy consumption habits.

Jean F. Kaufman, chairman of a social concerns committee for the Unitarian Society, says the program will be the first public presentation by the engineering clinic of its suggestions.

A written report by the engineering group will soon be submitted to the Claremont City Council, which funded the study through city redevelopment project funds.

Over a period of several months, Professor Thomas Woodson, director of the engineering clinic at the college, had met with Claremont City Manager Norm King to discuss ways that the group could be of benefit to the city and its citizens.

Help sought to find man

An Ontario family has made a public appeal for help in locating 29-year-old Jim Ferrell, who has been missing since last Sunday.

The man requires care, suffers blackouts and is on medication, his family said. They emphasize that he is not an alcoholic or drug user.

They say Ferrell undoubtedly is confused and does not know where he is.

Ferrell was wearing plaid Bermuda shorts, a yellow tank top and his glasses when he walked away from his home. He had no money and no identification on him.

He is Caucasian, 6 feet tall, 190 pounds with brown, curly hair about ear length.

Anyone seeing Ferrell, or knowing his whereabouts, is asked to call the Pomona Police Department at 620-2155 or the Ontario Police Department at 986-6711.

Supervisor wants L.A. County to train its own physicians

By BOB NAGEY
PB Staff Writer

Incensed over the $550,000 paid last year to nine doctors for testifying at Municipal and Superior Court trials, Los Angeles County Supervisor Kenneth Hahn wants the county to train its own courtroom physicians.

Hahn claims the doctors go from courtroom to courtroom from Santa Monica to Pomona serving as expert witnesses in medical cases, mostly involving psychiatry and narcotics.

He said one physician was paid $145,000 last year, $101,763 in 1975 and $68,275 in 1974.

Another physician received $112,000 last year. Seven other physicians collected court fees ranging from $27,400 to $60,500 in 1975.

The supervisor pointed out that the average salary for a district health officer for the county is $48,000 a year.

"The county presently has classifications for psychiatrists, surgeons, mental health director and district health officers," he said. "Perhaps we should create a new classification of courtroom doctor instead of employing private physicians to be expert witnesses in court cases."

He said the persons designated as courtroom doctors could receive some special training in court procedures and legal matters and then could be hired by the county at the same rate and hours as other physicians.

But Douglas Steele, assistant administrative officer of the county, told Hahn that it was cheaper in the long run to use the nine doctors than to train specific ones for witness work.

He said the nine doctors are generally considered to be "career court doctors" who devote most, if not all, of their practice to court work.

"They are available to give testimony when needed, are accepted by both the defense and the prosecution, are at ease in the courtroom situation and know their their ways through the court bureacracy," Steele said.

This results in savings of witness fees and in quicker and more efficient trials, he claimed.

Hahn contended that the county could hire and train 10 of its own doctors more cheaply than the cost of court fees.

"They (the career doctors) go from court to court at lightning speed," he shook his head. "They don't even carry the traditional little black bag with them."

Hahn tried to gain passage for a resolution Tuesday that would implement his courtroom doctor idea, but the rest of the supervisors tabled his motion.

Hahn vowed to bring it back again.

'Rest home' owner jailed

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A woman charged with falsely imprisoning 13 mentally and physically disabled persons in Texas was arrested Friday at a relative's home in the Watts area of Los Angeles, authorities said.

Lillian Gobert, 42, who also operated a boarding house in Van Nuys, Calif., had become the subject of a multi-state search after Wharton, Tex., lawmen raided a filthy, roachinfested "rest home" and found mentally disabled persons locked in a garage.

Miss Gobert was arrested at a sister's home and was held in lieu of $120,000 bail on 12 Texas warrants charging false imprisonment.

Texas authorities alleged that Miss Gobert had transported the victims — some of them war veterans — between California and Texas and cashed their government pension checks while holding them prisoner.

She was scheduled to appear in Municipal Court Monday.

Pony survives 4 years in hell

By Associated Press

DURHAM, N.H. (AP) — Veterinarians are laboring to repair the deformed hooves and legs of a Shetland pony confined for four years in a nailedshut stall piled high with manure.

"I've seen a lot, but that still shocked me," said Peter Saunders, an investigator for the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty (SPCA) to Animals, who examined the pony shortly after he was found two weeks ago in the town of Plaistow, near the Massachusetts border.

"The pony's hooves are enormous, about a foot and a half long and curved back until they almost touch his knees," Saunders said.

The deformity is called laminitis, and some veterinarians said they had never seen such a severe and painful case. The pony's legs were also damaged because of the distortion of the hooves.

In addition, the pony had "hay belly," a distension caused by a diet of all hay and no grain.

"That pony must have one hell of a will to live," said Saunders.

King, a 10-year-old gold-colored pony with a light mane, was found in a garage after an SPCA investigator received a tip that some type of animal was being kept in the building.

"I couldn't believe what I saw," said Plaistow Animal Control Officer Don Sargent. "I looked into a small window and saw a pony standing on top of a pile of manure as high as the window.

"I can't believe that anything could live in that filth. We pried the boards off the stall so we could get the pony out and the maggots and flies just swarmed out."

The pony was owned by a woman named Barbara Reed, but police and the SPCA are refusing to say where the woman lives or why she locked up the animal because of distress over the incident in the town of about 5,000 persons.

They fear that publicity might prompt some "overzealous animal lover to take some rash action against the woman." The SPCA now owns the pony.

At the stable, King balked at being led into a stall. Saunders said he could understand why the horse didn't want to enter the building, but after several minutes of gentle prodding the pony limped into his new home.

SOME LOBSTER — Amateur diver Joe DiFebo of Wilmington, Del., displays 23-pound lobster he caught 10 miles off Barnegat Light, N.J. The huge lobster still is alive. "I hate to think of killing it," DiFebo said. He is attempting to donate the behemoth aquatic critter to the University of Delaware's marine laboratory, but so far has not heard from officials there.

New cancer detector

NEW YORK (AP) — A medical researcher at the Downstate Medical Center in Brooklyn says he has developed a technique for detecting cancer by radio frequency scanning.

Dr. Raymond Damadian says it would eliminate the need for X-rays or conducting a surgical biopsy.

However, he admitted at a news conference Wednesday that he has not used the technique on a cancer patient, and other cancer experts are skeptical of the technique.

Dr. Damadian's technique is based on medical evidence that the water content of cancerous body cells can be as much as 90 per cent, while normal cells are about 66 per cent water.

The doctor said that results of his latest studies involving tests on 1,000 specimens of cancerous and non-cancerous tissues would be published in forthcoming issues of three magazines — the British Journal of Cancer, Cancer, and Physiological Chemistry and Physics.

Astrographs

By Bernice Bede Osol
For Sunday, Aug. 28, 1977
Your Birthday, Aug. 28, 1977

Large organizations, clubs or groups will be very lucky for you this coming year. If you don't belong to any, you'd be wise to get a few application blanks.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) You're on very shaky ground when you deal with others on a one-to-one basis today. Be extremely careful not to be arrogant or dictatorial. Learn more about yourself by sending for your copy of Astro-Graph Letter. Mail 50 cents for each and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to P.O. Box 489, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019. Be sure to specify your birth sign.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Should there be something that you're bound to do today by honor or duty, don't neglect it. It could crop up later and cause a real brouhaha.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) You'd be smart to let others share the stage with you socially today. Allow all the characters to have at least a few lines.

SAGITTARIUS (Noc. 23-Dec. 21) Outsiders and in-laws are outlaws today where your family affairs are involved. They might well try to tell you how to run the show.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Someone with a forceful personality might attempt to downgrade your ideas today. Don't be intimidated just because this guy has a big mouth.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Don't be outmaneuvered today when it's time to pay the check. Have another cup of coffee and wait until the staller picks up his share.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Your mate may think he has all the answers today and must make all the big decisions. Let him know you, too, are entitled to a voice.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Don't put any extra strains on your health today. Observe sensible eating and drinking habits and avoid overindulgence.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Complications with friends could develop today if one or both is too insistent on having his or her own way. If a pal is rigid, you should be flexible.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) You can be led today, but not pushed. Unfortunately, someone is prodding you to do something that'll benefit them more than you.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Be careful that a friendly discussion on philosophy or politics doesn't turn into a fracas with both parties getting hot under the collar.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Joint ventures could pose a problem for you today if you feel the other party is not contributing equally, financially or intellectually.

SEC report on N.Y. ills criticizes Beame

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Securities and Exchange Commission's report on New York City's finances, which is being released less than two weeks before the city's Democratic mayoral primary, heavily criticizes Mayor Abraham D. Beame and other officials, published reports said today.

The study being released this afternoon is the product of a 20-month investigation. It had already become a hot campaign issue before announcement that it would be released today.

The New York Times quoted administration officials as predicting that the 800-page report would say that Beame and other city officials knowingly failed to inform investors of the city's perilous financial condition when the city was selling a record amount of short-term securities in 1974 and 1975.

In another development, a top official of Chemical Bank in New York was quoted in the New York Daily News as having told the SEC that the bank tried to sell off city securities it held one month before the city's credit line was cut by local banks.

That was the move, in early 1975, which brought to public attention a financial crisis which nearly resulted in the city's bankruptcy.

Beame, 71, worried that the report could damage his reelection chances in the Sept. 8 primary, questioned the impartiality of the SEC in its conduct of the investigation and in its timing in releasing the report.

He charged the SEC with meeting "a political deadline" by announcing its findings so close to the primary.

The Times said irregularities alleged in the SEC report include failure to disclose relevant facts relating to the issuance of securities and a considerable understatement of the city's debt.

The newspaper quoted one administration official as saying that some investors bought short-term city notes without knowing that before the notes became due the city would be refused further long-term borrowing.

This official said the city went on selling these short-term notes even though it knew that the banks had decided against underwriting any further long-term borrowing by the city.

The Chemical Bank official, Vice President Herbert Charbonneau, reportedly told the SEC that the bank decided to sell its city securities because it feared it would be unable to sell them if the city's true financial condition became known.

The SEC investigation was said before its release to focus on possible misleading statements in material given potential investors that could prevent them from knowing the true soundness of bonds sold by the city and the Municipal Assistance Corporation. The MAC was created to ease the city's financial plight.

Preliminary reports suggested there could be a case of fraud if the SEC found that city officials, its banks or bond underwriters tried to make the securities appear more attractive than they were.

The agency also had looked into the city's accounting practices and its ability to meet financial obligations.

Hoping to blunt the report's impact, Beame said there may be a conflict of interest in the investigation because an SEC lawyer, Robert J. Haft, once worked for a law firm Beame said actively supported one of his six primary opponents, New York Secretary of State Mario M. Cuomo.

Cuomo accused Beame of using "tawdry, McCarthy-like smear tactics" and denied that Haft had ties to his campaign.

SEC Chairman Harold M. Williams, appointed by President Carter, accused Beame of maligning the commission's integrity out of political motivation.

The release of the report was in part the result of a lawsuit filed by Joel Harnett, a longshot rival of Beame and Cuomo for the nomination.

Federal Judge Vincent L. Broderick in Manhattan then ordered the SEC to give him its material. While that ruling was under appeal, the commission decided to make the report public.

The Sept. 8 primary will determine the Democratic nominee for the November general election only if one candidate gets at least 40 per cent of the primary vote.

The other Democratic primary candidates are former Rep. Bella Abzug, the apparent frontrunner but by a narrow margin; Reps. Edward L. Koch and Herman Badillo, and Percy E. Sutton, the Manhattan borough president.

Postal Service delays decision on ending Saturday deliveries

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Postal Service, which seemed ready to end Saturday mail deliveries a few months ago, is taking another look at whether the public would accept the cutback.

Postmaster General Benjamin F. Bailar said that before any decision is made to reduce service, "We intend to do a comprehensive study of what the public wishes."

The Postal Service still is considering the cutback, but will delay its decision until a new public opinion survey is completed, Bailar said.

Last spring, the Commission on Postal Service recommended that Saturday service be eliminated, saving the financially troubled Postal Service an estimated $400 million a year.

Bailar praised the study group at the time and said the service was considering the move.

Then, in late June, the agency put the proposal on its agenda for a July meeting of the Postal Service's governing board. But when the meeting was held, the item was passed over.

Bailar's speech to a convention of the National League of Postmasters in San Juan, Puerto Rico, was the first public explanation of the delay.

A survey conducted by the A.G. Nielsen polling organization for the study commission found 79 per cent of the public would be willing to forego the sixth delivery day if it would help hold down postal rates.

But now the Postal Service is having second thoughts about that study.

"The results of subsequent surveys ... have differed enough with the Nielsen figures to make us want to more thoroughly analyze the public's acceptance of this move," Bailar said Thursday.

A spokesman, explaining the "subsequent surveys," said results from a new poll commissioned by the Postal Service are confusing.

Softball and volley ball games will be played. A frisbee-throwing contest will be judged for style, accuracy and distance. Winners will be awarded prizes.

The day will begin with a picnic lunch at 11:30 a.m. Families are invited to bring their own picnic basket to eat on the lawns, or they may purchase food from some of the many booths serving hamburgers, hot dogs, melons, Chinese food and soft drinks.

Other booths will invite browsing. They will have antiques, rummage and books.

An assortment of children's rides will be operated. At 4 p.m. a talent contest will be held. Persons interested in entering the contest are invited to contact the church office at 599-6767. At 7 p.m. a full-length family film will be shown in the drive-in area.

Teen-ager to report on work

Diana Griffiths will report on her summer in India under Teen Missions, Inc., Sunday at the 11 a.m. worship service at Bonita Avenue Church in La Verne.

Miss Griffiths spent eight weeks in Pallawokkam, a village near Madras, India, as part of a 30-member team constructing a church building for a new congregation.

A Bonita High School graduate and daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Griffiths of Wrightwood, formerly of La Verne, Miss Griffith is assistant superintendent of the Sunday school at the church.

Teen Missions, Inc., is a missionary service organization which sends hundreds of teen-agers each summer to various parts of the world to work on mission projects. Each team member raises his own support and takes two weeks of intensive camp training at Merritt Island, Fla., before being sent abroad. Miss Griffiths' team, the first ever sent to Asia, constructed the Pallawokkam church under the auspices of the Advent Christian Conference of India and the Department of Missions of the Advent Christian General Conference of America.

Aparteid rejected

DAR ES SALAAM, Tanzania (AP) — The Lutheran World Federation, representing most of the Lutherans around the world, has urged its white member churches in southern Africa to work for universal suffrage in South Africa, and "publicly and unequivocally reject the existing apartheid system."

At its assembly, the inter-Lutheran body also sharply protested the "continuing threat to human dignity and the manifold violations of human rights by the white minority in South Africa, Namibia and Zimbabwe (Rhodesia)."

Serving size

With so many styles of steak for the barbecue it's easy to match up all tastes and budgets with just the right cut of beef. Whether buying deluxe individual steaks or economical family size steaks, figure amount to purchase on lean edible beef — usually ¼ to ⅓ pound per serving depending on individual appetites and the menu.

Samaritans stave off extinction

TEL AVIV (AP) — Since Joseph begat Ephraim and Manasseh, history has been an ingrate to the Samaritans, caught in a free-fall toward oblivion. The hint of a respite from the dark line downward is appearing only now.

The descendants of the sons of Joseph and the Biblical Good Samaritan, who Jesus revered for his rescue of a wounded man ignored by priests and Levites, have barely managed to set up camp on this side of extinction.

One hundred twenty-six generations ago, according to their chronicles, there were 750,000 Samaritans in what is modern Israel. Today, four families, the Danfis, Cohens, Marchivs and Tsedakas, 470 people in all, maintain the sect's rites and traditions, half of them living in a grubby Tel Aviv suburb called Holon and the others in Nablus, near the Samaritan holy site of Mount Gerizim where Joshua blessed his people.

Nablus is in occupied Jordan and in the 10 years since the Six Day War, the Samaritans have fallen on the windfall of free passage between the formerly separated communities to meet, marry and beget. Since the war, 102 Samaritan children have been born, increasing the world's Samaritan population by almost a quarter. But for the sect's historian, the births are barely a jot on a graph of precariousness 20 centuries long.

Benyamin Tsedaka, a 125th generation descendant of Manasseh who runs a bi-weekly Samaritan newspaper, takes the development without much excitement. "We shall see," he says, a man with little trust in stability.

"It took about 19 centuries for the Christians to get interested in what had happened to us," he said, referring to a British consul in Palestine who tried to assist the Samaritan community when it numbered 146 near the turn of the century.

"The good Samaritan story never did us a bit of good. Between the fourth and sixth centuries the area was under Byzantine Christian rule.

"They wanted us to become Christians and we were destroyed. Then there was pressure to convert to Islam.

"More died. Many more. It is not a story that builds your trust in anything."

Tsedaka maintains that the Samaritan Community, described by a chief rabbi in Jerusalem as a "branch of the Jewish people" was equal in size to the Jews—descendants of the tribe of Judah for the Samaritans — at the time of Jesus.

He interprets Jesus' fondness for the Samaritans as based on similar differences with the Jews on matters of law and religion. The Samaritans assisted Jesus in Samaria, Tsedaka said, "but Jesus' disciples didn't understand the situation, thinking he wanted us to be Christians. We wanted to remain ourselves and they turned against us."

The Samaritans believe in one God and the prophet Moses, but differ from the Jews in considering Holy writ to be composed of only the first five books of Moses. Talmudic law is excluded and Mt. Gerizim rather than Jerusalem is the central holy place.

REV. & MRS. RAY COATNEY

Church nearing 100th birthday

After researching the archives and drawing on members' memories, the Rev. and Mrs. Ray Coatney, pastors of Echoes of Calvary Christian Center, Montclair, have determined the church is nearing its 100th birthday.

It began as Narod Union Church, remembers Lonnie Jones of Montclair, who said one pastor picked up children in a horse-drawn buggy. For many years the church was dependent upon traveling ministers.

Later, it was known as the Little White Church, then Montclair Pentecostal Church and recently, Echoes of Calvary Christian Center.

Long-standing members of the church will be recognized during the 10 a.m. service Sunday when the congregation observes Old Timers Day.

Wanda Learned, of the First Baptist Church in Dallas, Tex., will speak at 4 p.m.

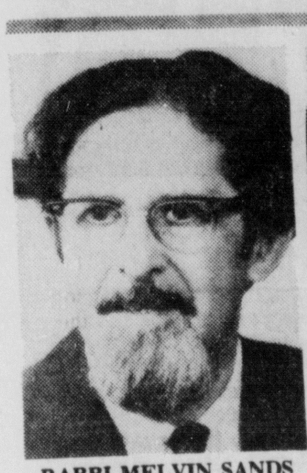
2 valley rabbis get lectureships



RABBI MELVIN SANDS

RABBI IRVING MANDEL

Two valley rabbis will be among 10 participants in resident lectureships which have been endowed by the Jewish Chautauqua Society in Southern California for the 1977-78 academic year.

Rabbi Irving Mandel of Temple Beth Israel in Pomona will teach a course in honor of J. Robert Arkush at Chapman College in Orange.

Rabbi Melvin Sands of Claremont Men's College will teach at the Claremont Colleges and at Southern California School of Theology.

Four courses endowed by the Jewish Chautauqua Society in honor of Rabbi Edgar F. Magnin will be taught at Cal State campuses at Fullerton, Los Angeles and Riverside.

Other courses will be presented at the Hebrew Union College in Los Angeles, Loyola-Marymount College, and Occidental.

The society, the educational project of the National Federation of Temple Brotherhoods, endows accredited courses in Judaic Studies for the purpose of promoting a better understanding of Judaism among people of all faiths.

Founded in 1893, the society to date has endowed 206 courses, enlisted the services of 600 rabbis who lecture at 2,208 colleges, donated 90,000 Jewish reference books to college libraries, and produced 40 films for network and private broadcastings.

Bishop will judge TV series

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (AP) — "Soap," ABC's controversial new comedy series, will be previewed by the Catholic bishop of Providence before the local affiliate decides whether to run the show.

WPRI-TV, ABC's affiliate here, agreed to let the Most Rev. Louis E. Gelineau watch the first three episodes, which include an attempted seduction of a priest in a confessional.

Edwin W. Pfeiffer, WPRI-TV's vice president and general manager, said his station probably will run the series but he is withholding final judgment pending the bishop's comments.

"I don't see anything that would justify keeping it off the air," Pfeiffer said. "But, of course, the bishop has his own responsibility to make his views known."

Bishop Gelineau said he asked for a chance to preview the show "so I will be able to express my views after seeing the program firsthand."

ABC said it was toning down some of the opening episodes of "Soap," which drew criticism from the United States Catholic Conference for alleged irreverence toward the Eucharist as well as their treatment of sex, homosexuality and ethnic and racial themes.

Some affiliated stations have refused to carry some episodes of the series and at least two advertisers have withdrawn plans to sponsor the show.

Pfeiffer said the previewing would be held at the diocesan chancery office, which has a video cassette player, "whenever they give me the word."

Diocesan officials said they were trying to find a time for viewing the show in the schedules of both Bishop Gelineau and the Most Rev. Kenneth A. Angell, auxiliary bishop.

Korean evangelist starts tuna fleet

MAGNOLIA, Mass. (AP) — Korean evangelist Sun Myung Moon has launched a small tuna fishing fleet off the New England coast. A spokesman for his Unification Church says the catch is sold to Japan, where raw tuna costs $8 a pound.

A church spokesman says the enterprise is the start of a long-range attempt to solve the world's food shortage with fish.

"We view the ocean as being very important," said Adrian Barry, director of the church's operations in New England. "It contains the main food resources to actually feed the world for the next 20 to 30 years."

He said 60 to 100 tuna, which are shipped to the Unification Church in Japan, have been caught this summer.

The fish, which often weigh more than 500 pounds, are a delicacy in Japan and bring premium prices, according to the fishermen. No American taxes are paid on the catch, because the religious organization is tax exempt.

Moon often accompanies the crew, who are church members, as they land their valuable catch on Middle Bank between Gloucester and Provincetown.

The largest of the church's boats is the 48-foot New Hope.

Barry said the fishing serves a spiritual as well as financial purpose.

"The Rev. Moon considers this excellent training for our leaders in our church, to actually have this kind of experience, to work together, to wait together, to pray and meditate a long time and finally to try to land a fish when it is caught," said Barry. "It's a very exciting process."

Barry said Moon has spent several weeks this summer at the rented house, which was recently put up for sale by its owner for $285,000.

JEWS FOR JESUS — Moishe Rosen of San Rafael is the leader of Jews for Jesus, a movement interlocking traditional Jewish practices with a belief in Jesus. Its ranks have swelled to some 15,000 to 30,000 believers in the past five years, most of them reared and educated in Judaism. "Because of their belief in Jesus, they feel more Jewish than ever, more loyal to Judaism and more committed to Jewish causes," explains Rosen.

Chino United Methodist

The Covenant Players, a repertory company from Los Angeles, will perform at a worship service at the Chino United Methodist Church Sunday at 10:45 a.m.

In addition to the presentation of the sermon in dramatic form, the group will dramatize other parts of the liturgy.

The Covenant Players have done chancel drama in all parts of the United States. The Rev. David Lull will conduct the liturgy.

Barnard brothers in death pact

CAPE TOWN, South Africa (AP) — Dr. Christiaan Barnard, who perfomed the world's first human heart transplant, says he and his brother Marius have agreed to a pact that if one becomes terminally ill and despondent, and suicide is impossible, the other will "help him to die."

Marius Barnard also is a surgeon.

'Marius and I decided that we would never let the situation happen where we became terminally ill and lost the will to live but could do nothing about ending our lives," Barnard said, according to the South African Press Association. "Our agreement is that if that happens to either of us, the other will help him to die."

Christiaan Barnard, 54, made his comments Wednesday in a speech at a publication luncheon for his new novel. He is co-author with Siegfried Stander of "In the Night Season," a book dealing in part with euthanasia, or mercy killing.

Christiaan said earlier this year that he and Marius gave doctors permission to let their 92-year-old mother "die peacefully."

Mrs. Maria Elizabeth Barnard, who had a stroke 10 years ago, died in Cape Town last February. Barnard said that shortly before her death his mother could no longer feed herself, although her life could have been prolonged by pushing feeding tubes down her throat.

The surgeon has said previously he does not support "active euthanasia," but believes people whose conditions are beyond hope should be allowed to die in peace.

Church group takes on multinationals

World Council calls for strikes, boycotts

GENEVA (LENS) — The World Council of Churches wants Christians to take on the multi-national companies. On Aug. 6 the WCC's central committee adopted a resolution in Geneva calling on its members to oppose the multinationals' "controversial" policies in the West and in the Third World. No mention, uncuriously, of the communist world, whose governments tolerate no protesters, churchy or non-churchy, against the capitalist multinationals with whom they do excellent business.

The World Council of Churches is against multinational companies on the ground that they are accomplices of "repressive states, predatory local elites and racism" and thus pillars of a system that "oppresses, excludes and exploits."

The Geneva churchmen are working on something called a "theology of liberating change." Until that has been got on the road, the WCC's 293 member churches — which do not include the Roman Catholic one — are urged to exert moral pressure on Christians working for the multinationals and help strikes and boycotts against the companies. The withdrawal of church funds from some of the companies may be recommended by the WCC's permanent staff in Geneva when its new study of the problem is complete.

How effective would a WCC-led anti-multinational crusade be? To judge by its previous campaign against racism, not very. Since 1970, it has disbursed about $2 million to various guerrilla movements and militant groups — mainly in Africa — under the heading of humanitarian aid. A further $530,000 was allocated in Geneva last week to 35 bodies in 14 countries: the biggest slice to Swapo, the guerrilla movement in South West Africa.

Neither this financial help nor other measures, such as withdrawal of church funds from firms operating in or trading with southern Africa, seem to have had much effect in Africa, though they have irritated some western churchmen.

All the same, some of the multinationals could be hurt by a concerted campaign of the sort the WCC seems to have in mind. In Third-World countries, the campaign could encourage local hostility and discourage locally recruited members of the staff. That was probably why representatives of four large multinationals — Nestle, Philips, Shell and Unilever — turned up at a WCC discussion on the subject in Geneva in June. The WCC is said to have needed some prodding to invite them to attend; and at least one of the multinationals' representatives came away feeling that it wanted to provoke a confrontation with the companies, not work out an agreement on how to make them work better.

Many people, not all of them left-wing, have serious reservations about some aspects of the multinationals' work, and believe these huge and powerful bodies need to be kept under close scrutiny. But a generalized onslaught of the WCC kind is unlikely to help its intended beneficiaries. There is already far too much underemployment in many of the world's poorer countries; a crusade against the multinationals is liable to mean less investment and therefore cause even more unemployment.

An Irish churchman said in Geneva last week that Ireland — unemployment rate 9-10 per cent — would be reluctant to push that figure even higher by militancy against multinationals.

Unliberated timidity, in the view of the WCC's Geneva activists. But the component churches of this body contain 1.2 billion people, and it would be interesting to know how many of them agree with the campaign the Genevites are asking them to join.

Dodgers hold off Cards

By DON BRADLEY
PB Staff Writer

LOS ANGELES — Rick Rhoden worked his magic Friday night and the Dodgers hung on to edge the St. Louis Cardinals, 5-4.

The win enabled the Angelenos to maintain their 8½ game lead over the Cincinnati Reds who defeated the Phils, 4-2.

Going into Friday night's contest, Rhoden had made 25 starts this year and the Dodgers had scored 123 runs. That averages to 4.92 runs per game.

So it adds up to an average outing for Rhoden (15-8) and the Dodger hitters.

Johnny Oates launched the Dodgers with his third homerun to lead off the home third.

But it was Ron Cey who supplied the big punch. He slapped a two-run roundtripper in the fourth. It was his 24th homer and 96th and 97th runs-batted-in.

The little third baseman, who has averaged under .200 since July 4, also had a single.

"It's been very aggravating, very frustrating," he said of his experience. "I've hit the ball well, but I haven't gotten many hits.

"I've never gone through a period like this before. It's quite unique. I'd hit a line drive to leftfield, a line drive to rightfield, a two-hopper to third and a two-hopper to short . . . just pound the ball all day and have nothing to show for it.

"It was really frustrating."

Rhoden departed after yielding nine hits and four runs in 5&1/3 innings.

But he kept the Redbirds away from the plate the first three innings while giving up only one hit.

Oates' blast in the last of the third gave Rhoden a 1-0 lead. The Cards tied it in the fourth on Jerry Mumphrey's single, a walk and Keith Hernandez' double.

The Dodgers came back with three in their half of the inning.

Reggie Smith walked and Cey picked on a 1-0 pitch by Eric Rasmussen (10-12) and smashed a towering drive into the stands down the leftfield line.

The third run of the inning came on singles by Steve Garvey and Rick Monday and Dusty Baker's infield out.

Lee Lacy provided the heroics for what was actually the winning run.

Lacy beat out an infield hit to lead off the Dodger half of the inning. Gary Templeton made a great play on the ball on the first base side of second, but threw wildly allowing Lacy to advance to second.

When Bill Russell faked a bunt and Cardinal third baseman Kenny Reitz took a couple of steps toward the plate, Lacy broke for third and beat the throw from catcher Ted Simmons who had to wait for Reitz to get back.

Smith's sacrifice fly then scored Lacy.

"It was good to see Penguin (Cey) and Garv (Garvey) hitting the ball," said manager Tommy Lasorda. "Monday is swinging better, too. If we get Monday, Garv and Cey going, we're going to score some runs.

"That was a real heady play by Lee Lacy. Not every ballplayer is smart enough to do that."

DODGER DATA — Tonight is Hollywood Stars Night. The Stars will face a media team at 6:30 p.m. with the Dodgers-Cards game following at 8 p.m.

Among the luminaries listed for the event are Bob Newhart, Telly Savalas, Walter Matheau, David Soul, Ed Asner, Mike Connors, Glen Campbell and Dick Benjamin, to name a few.

Burt Hooton (9-7) and John Denny (7-5) will do the pitching tonight. In Sunday's series finale, Don Sutton (11-8) and Bob Forsch (16-5) will go head to head again.

Irwin's 62 gives him big lead

PINEHURST, N.C. (AP) — Hale Irwin had a feeling things were going to change.

"I'd felt for a long, long time that I wasn't playing as poorly as my record would indicate," Irwin said, "and my record indicated poor play."

To that feeling he added a generous dash of grim determination and spiced it with his trademark, a career domination of the toughest golf courses this country has to offer.

The result was a spectacular, nine-under-par 62 on famed No. 2 at the Pinehurst Country Club, a 36-hole total of 127 that's the best in more than a decade of tour competition and just one stroke off the all-time record, and an imposing, five-shot lead halfway through the $250,000 Hall of Fame Golf Classic.

"I came in here with a must-win situation," Irwin said Friday after posting his incredible 15 under par total on the 7,007-yard layout in the Carolina sandhills that has long been known as one of America's premier courses.

"It's very, very gratifying to go out and play the kind of golf I've played, not just today, but for two days."

He paused and added, "This tournament has a special meaning to me."

It means a spot in next week's prestigicus World Series of Golf. It's a sore point with Irwin, and a considerable embarassment to the PGA Tour. Irwin was told he'd gained a place in the World Series after the spring portion of the tour closed with his victory in the Atlanta Classic May 29.

Irwin, content in that knowledge, arranged his schedule accordingly, taking some time off. Six weeks later he was told there had been a computer error in compiling statistics. He hadn't made it. Graham Marsh was in, and he was out.

Now he has to win here to make it. And he took a major step in that direction with his effort that matched the course record for 18 holes set in 1973 and was just one stroke off the all-time tour mark for two rounds set in 1948.

Bonds' 31st HR gives Halos win

DETROIT (AP) — Bobby Bonds drilled a two-run homer into the lower right field seats in the 11th inning Friday to give California a 7-4 victory over the Detroit Tigers.

It was the 31st homer of the season for Bonds, tops in the American League.

The Angels addded an insurance run later in the inning when Don Baylor scored on Gil Flores' two-out double.

The Tigers had tied it in the ninth when John Wockenfuss scored on Aurelio Rodriguez' two-out double.

Angels second basemen Jerry Remy also had a homer, a fifth inning blast off the facing of the upper deck in right field.

Dave LaRoche, working in relief of starter Frank Tanana, got his eighth victory against five defeats. Steve Foucault, 45, took the defeat. He was the fourth Detroit pitcher.

Detroit got on the board first when Ron LeFlore led off the Tigers' first with a single, went to second on Dave Chalk's wide throw to first and scored on Tito Fuentes' sharp double to left. The run was unearned.

California evened it in the second when Tony Solaita singled, took second on a groundout and scored on Rance Mulliniks' double.

The Angels got two more in the third. Thad Bosley, who had three singles for the night, was forced home when Morris issued a bases-loaded walk to Solaita, then Baylor's forceout got Remy home.

The Tigers narrowed it to 4-3 in the eighth when rookie Bob Adams, pinch hitting for shortstop Tom Veryzer, hit his second home run of the season into the lower leftfield seats. Staub then hit a two-out double and scored on Kemp's single to short left.

Teddy Martinez lost for year

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Dodger reserve infielder Teddy Martinez will have surgery on his left knee sometime next week and will be lost for the rest of the season, a spokesman for the National League team said Friday.

Martinez was hurt in a collision at second base in Thursday's game at Pittsburgh, suffering torn ligaments in the knee.

To replace Martinez on the Los Angeles roster, the Dodgers called up Rafael Landestoy from their Albuquerque, N.M., farm club. Landestoy was batting .277 for the Dukes in 131 games, and had stolen 58 bases. He was slated to join the Dodgers for Friday night's game against the St. Louis Cardinals.

May records another first

SOFIA, Bulgaria (AP) — Darlene May, who is also the womens' athletic director for Cal Poly Pomona, continued to make basketball history Friday as a referee.

May became the first woman to officiate a men's international basketball game when she worked the Italy-France encounter. The Americans emerged victorious, 85-69, in their contest.

American men's and women's basketball teams shoot for their own spot in basketball's record books today, the final day of competition at the World University Games.

Although U.S. men's basketball teams have long dominated world tournaments, American women have never won a major international title. Victories by both would be a rare gold medal double.

While the U.S. men rolled over Czechoslovakia, the U.S. women upset Bulgaria, 87-84, to reach the finals against teams from the Soviet Union.

The Soviet men edged Canada 73-68 to set up a rematch with the U.S. team that beat them in the semifinal round of the 31-nation tournament. The Soviet women stayed undefeated by routing Cuba 93-45. They beat the U.S. women earlier this week.

American swimmer Bonnie Glasgow celebrated her 18th birthday Friday by winning her third gold medal of the student games in the women's 200-meter medley.

Although Miss May's officiating of the men's consolation round basketball match between Italy and France didn't earn her a medal, it was perhaps the most remarkable female performance of the day.

Last week, the brunette ended an all-male monopoly on refereeing at major amateur basketball competitions by calling the fouls in a women's game. Some doubted that she could contend with male players, but on Friday she dispelled all skepticism.

"When I walked out on the court, some of the guys from the Italian team gave me that 'Is she going to do our game?' look," Miss May said. "But they didn't question it. I just drew back a bit. I thought it was kind of funny."

Sharing officiating with a Danish man, Miss May immediately established her authority over both male teams. The 5-foot-7 woman started the game by tossing up the ball at the opening jump, and less than a minute later she whistled down a Italian player for fouling a Frenchman under his own basket.

The Italian team, one of Europe's best amateur squads, won the game.

"It was a clean game and easy to call," Miss May said. "The only thing difficult to contend with is that they are bigger and get down the court much quicker than women.

"The guys argued with me on a couple of calls, but I pointed and explained to them and they understood. They're out to fight for their case, and I for mine. But there were no serious complaints."

Miss May was the first American woman to be sanctioned by the International Basketball Federation to officiate at the international level. She earned the classification in 1975 but didn't have a chance to show her ability until this tournament.

Does she consider her officiating a breakthrough for women's equality?

"That's what I feel," she said. "I think we've now proven that there are some women capable of refereeing at the international level. We do have some qualified people."

Four other American women also have the international classification, and there are several from other countries waiting in the wings.

Antonoplis in Jr. net finals

PORT WASHINGTON, N.Y. — Maria Fernandez, 16, of Torrance upset second-seeded Sheila McInerney of Rome, N.Y., Friday to advance to a showdown with Glendora's Lea Antonoplis in today's finals of the International Young Masters Tennis Tournament.

The fifth-seeded Fernandez scored her upset when she scored 6-2 and 7-5 victories over McInerney.

Antonoplis advanced to the finals by defeating No. 3 seed Barbara Hallquist of Arcadia, the women's U.S. Intercollegiate champion from Southern California, 6-2, 6-2.

Shoemaker rides Teller to victory

DEL MAR, Calif. (AP) — Teller coasted to a 3-length victory in the $11,000 San Diego Convention and Visitors Bureau Purse at Del Mar Friday.

Teller, ridden by Bill Shoemaker and carrying 113 pounds, covered 1 1-16 miles in 1:41 3-5 and paid $7.20, $5 and $4.60. Kaskee, with Thomas Chapman up, finished second and returned $5.60 and $4.60. Trust Up, with Marco Castaneda aboard, paid $6 to show.

Nine horses entered the event for 3-year-olds and up. Favored Master Elbow, ridden by Fernando Toro, finished fourth.

Teller led nearly all the way, holding a 6-length advantage at one point in breezing to the easy win.

Shoemaker, Castaneda and Chuck Baltazar rode two winners apiece Friday before a crowd of 12,983.

Violence in NFL secondaries will not change: Elmendorf

FULLERTON, Calif. (AP) — Los Angeles safety Dave Elmendorf, a six-year National Football League veteran, says violence is the name of the game in the defensive secondary. The commotion over the George Atkinson-Lynn Swann incident will not change that.

"That thing was really blown out of proportion," said Elmendorf, dean of the Rams' defensive backfield. "People seem to suddenly forget how many times receivers come out and nail guys in the secondary with crack-back blocks. You're out there as opponents, guys hitting each other."

Elmendorf particularly disagreed with Pittsburgh Coach Chuck Noll's comment about there being "a criminal element" in football after Swann, a Pittsburgh wide receiver, received a concussion when hit by Oakland defensive back Atkinson during a Steelers-Raiders game last year.

"That was a stupid statement," Elmendorf said. "All of a sudden I'm a criminal element. Defensive backs are criminals. It's guilt by association.

"There have been other shots to the head, other concussions in pro football; that was not the first time it happened nor will it be the last."

Elmendorf added that he believes the rules on a football field differ from the rules off it.

"If the same thing happened to me," he said, "a blocker hit me like that, I wouldn't make a big deal out of it. To me it's a football game and that's the way it is."

Despite crack-back blocks and all the other physical punishment defensive backs are subjected to, Elmendorf said he loves his work.

A Texas A&M graduate who was a scholar—3.84 average out of a possible 4.0—as well as a talented baseball and football player, the 28-year-old Elmendorf said he likes playing football now even more than he did in his earlier years with the Rams.

"I really enjoy it more now than I used to," he said. "I know I'm getting to the point where I can see the end of my career, another four or five years, and I know I have to get the most out of it while I can."

Elmendorf, who has 19 career interceptions, said his six years of NFL experience is both a blessing and a curse.

"You pick up a few new things each year, and it all adds up. You get to know the receivers, get to know each team's keys better. When they're up to something different, you can smell a rat.

"But on the other hand," Elmendorf continued, "you have to be careful not to get too confident when you've been around for a while. You begin to take some things for granted—what the other team will probably do in a given situation, for instance—and lose your concentration, get lackadaisical.

"If you're a safety and you do that, the next thing you know there's some guy behind you catching the football."

Van Winkle leaves Cal Poly position

Allen Van Winkle recently resigned his position as assistant basketball coach at Cal Poly Pomona to take a similar position at West Texas State.

ALLEN VAN WINKLE

Van Winkle's resignation, effective Aug. 15, ended a four-year stint as assistant to Bronco head coach Don Hogan. During that time, the 29-year old coach played a key role in recruiting athletes for the Cal Poly program.

He will perform in the same area for West Texas State as well as working in the promoting the Buffalo basketball program, which is headed by Ron Ekker.

One of seven interviewed for the post and one of the 40-odd applicants, Van Winkle impressed Ekker, according to an article in a Texas newspaper, "with his ability to sell himself, but not oversell. He did a good job of communication. I liked his knowledge of recruiting. He'd sell the school well. He's persistent."

By joining Ekker and fifth-year assistant Rick Starzecki, Van Winkle's contract is for a reported $16,500.

No information was availiable as to a possible successor to Van Winkle at Cal Poly.

Mickey Thompson suffers injury

RIVERSIDE, Calif. (AP) — Mickey Thompson, already ailing from a crash six days ago in which he broke three ribs, fractured a finger Friday in an accident during qualifying for the SCORE Off-Road World Championships at Riverside International Raceway.

Thompson was involved in another accident later Friday but was uninjured and said he planned to race today.

The Long Beach, Calif., driver came off a jump in his MT Challenger dune buggy and banged into another car that had rolled going over the jump. The other driver was unhurt and Thompson returned to the course and drove more laps in the vehicle after having first aid for the swollen and bloody hand.

He was making a qualifying run again when he bounced hard in a rough section of the two-mile dirt course, and the wheel was wrench out of his weakened hand. The car then rolled over but Thompson was unhurt.

Thompson is entered in the $18,000 Challenge of Champions, an invitational event that has drawn 18 other top off-road drives, including Parnelli Jones, Rick and Roger Mears and Fritz Kroyer.

Rams to start Namath

KANSAS CITY (AP) — The Los Angeles Rams and Kansas City Chiefs will go with their big guns tonight as both teams try to even their preseason records in the National Football League.

The Chiefs, 1-2, were expected to stick with their No. 1 quarterback, Mike Livingston, for the entire game, while the Rams, also 1-2, will counter with Joe Namath in the first half and their No. 1 signal caller, Pat Haden in the second half.

Namath, acquired in the offseason from the New York Jets, complained in the wake of the Rams' 23-14 loss to San Francisco last weekend that he was rusty and needed more action. Haden also asked for more playing time.

Coach Chuck Knox apparently agreed, leaving rookie quarterback Vince Ferragamo from Nebraska watching from the bench tonight against the Chiefs.

Tom Bettis, defensive backfield coach for Kansas City, said he sees Namath as a potent passing force against the Chiefs.

"One thing we can be assured of in playing against Namath. He's not going to scramble with those knees," Bettis said.

The Rams have been experimenting with attention on the tight end as a primary receiver, and it's paid off so far with tight end Terry Nelson leading the club in receptions in three preseason games. Playing behind Bob Klein the past three seasons, Nelson had caught a total of five passes. In three preseason games this summer, he's caught eight passes for 146 yards.

Rams running back Lawrence McCutcheon, who has missed previous preseason action with a pulled hamstring, will see his first action of the summer tonight, lining up with John Cappelletti in the Rams' backfield.

The Chiefs will counter with veteran Mac Arthur Lane and rookie Tony Reed, a No. 2 draft pick from Colorado, in the backfield.

One of the highlights of the game for Big Eight Conference football fans will be their first look at Nolan Cromwell as a professional. Cromwell, a record-setting quarterback his last two years at Kansas, is expected to see a lot of action in a backup role at strong safety and free safety for the Rams.

Kickoff is 7:35 p.m. (CDT).

Navratilova slays Austin

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — Martina Navratilova beat 14year-old Tracy Austin 6-1, 6-2 in the Womens Tennis Classic Friday.

Miss Navratilova moved to the net at will to place smashing passing shots out of the diminutive Miss Austin's reach. Miss Austin won the sixth game of the first set and refused to give up while down five games in the second in the 55-minute match.

"She is so strong and just overpowered me," she said afterward. "I see how much I have to learn."

Miss Navratilova advances to Saturday's semifinals against JoAnne Russell, seeded fifth, who breezed by Bridgitte Cuypers 6-0, 6-1.

Ackermann sets new HJ record

BERLIN, Germany (AP) — Rosemarie Ackermann of East Germany set a world record for the women's high jump Friday at a track and field meet at West Berlin's Olympic Stadium, jumping exactly two meters—6 feet, 6¾ inches.

The Olympic champion, 25, bettered her own world record of 1.97 meters—6-5½ — she had set only two weeks ago in Helsinki.

Turner's Courageous continues dominance

NEWPORT, R.I. (AP) — Courageous, skippered by Ted Turner, continued her domination of the America's Cup final defense series Friday, defeating Ted Hood's Independence by 48 seconds.

The victory gave Turner a record of 8-1 in the final series, while Independence, Courageous' sister yacht, slipped to 3-5. Enterprise, skippered by Malin Burnham, had the day off to do some bottom work and was at 2-7.

Enterprise and Independence were scheduled to race today, giving Courageous a day off.

Independence, with new tactician Steve van Dyck aboard, took the start of the morning race by 11 seconds. But Turner caught a lift on the first, windward leg, tacked twice, found a line to the mark and suddenly was 100 yards ahead of Hood.

Turner, owner of baseball's Atlanta Braves, led by 1:25 rounding the first mark after both boats changed to lighter jib sails in winds that diminished to five knots and shifted almost 180 degrees from northnortheast to southsouthwest before the race.

Racing over a 24.3-mile, sixleg course, Independence made up some time on Courageous over the first reaching leg and, at one point, Hood had closed the gap to about five boat lengths. Independence trailed by 1:09 at the second mark.

Under spinnaker on the second reach, Independence closed the gap to several boat lengths, trailing by 43 seconds at the third mark. Hood forced Turner into a tacking duel on the second beat to windward, but Courageous covered her tack for tack and led by 1:35 at the fourth mark.

On the run, Independence and Courageous got into a gybing duel. This time, Hood came out with the advantage, and by the fifth mark he had cut almost a minute off the deficit, trailing by 40 seconds.

Sverige of Sweden and Australia, the new 12 meter from Perth, had a day off in their best-of-seven final series for challengers. Australia won the first race in the series that will determine which foreign boat will be in the cup series against the United States beginning Sept. 13.

Youngsters key Viking win, 33-7

BLOOMINGTON, Minn. (AP) — Rookie quarterback Tommy Kramer threw his first professional touchdown pass and second-year players Duck White and Sammy White each scored touchdowns as the Minnesota Vikings overwhelmed Miami 33-7 in a National Football League exhibition game Friday night.

The experienced Minnesota defense, which had allowed over 1,000 yards and 79 points in its first three exhibition games, dominated the game which snapped Miami's string of 11 straight preseason victories. The Vikings intercepted four passes and recovered one fumble in the one-sided contest, which was nationally televised.

Miami's frustration climaxed in the final seconds of the game when the Dolphins failed to score in four plays from two yards out.

Defensive tackle Duck White, the Vikings' No. 1 draft pick a year ago, scored on a 31-yard fumble recovery. Wide receiver Sammy White caught a Fran Tarkenton pass for a touchdown early in the second period to give the Vikings a 14-0 lead.

Minnesota, 3-1 in preseason play, scored on Rick Danmeier's 43-yard field goal in the final play of the half and then opened a 24-0 lead early in the third period on Robert Miller's one-yard scoring plunge.

The Dolphins, who defeated Tampa Bay, Washington and Dallas earlier this season, scored their first points midway through the third quarter on Bob Griese's 15-yard touchdown pass to Loaird McCreary.

Taiwan to go with ace

WILLIAMSPORT, Pa. (AP) — The powerful Liteh Little League, which has already breezed past two opponents in the 31st annual Little League World Series, brings its ace out of the hole in Saturday's championship game.

He is 5-foot-5, 143-pound Chiang Chen-jung, who has already given a good impersonation of a 12-year-old Hank Aaron, with three home runs, eight RBIs and an .875 batting average for the tournament.

In the title game, Chenjung will do his Tom Seaver impression against the Western Little League of El Cajon, Calif.

"We will win because he is our number one pitcher. He is very strong and throws a very hard fastball," said Taiwan Manager Hsu Chun-chuan through an interpreter.

"He lost one game last year and worked to improve himself. He is always playing baseball, even in the morning. He works very hard," the manager added.

El Cajon Manager Scotty Ampleton is well aware of Chen-jung's physical abilities. "He's built like a 25-year-old man," he said.

Led by Chen-jung, the Taiwan team is heavily favored to capture the Far East's ninth title in the last 11 years. The Li-teh team has outscored two teams 28-2, outhit them 29-5 while compiling a team batting average of .425 and committing just one error.

"The most important reason for our success is that the players always concentrate on baseball. They listen to what the manager and coaches tell them," said Chun-chuan.

"If we tell them to do something, they do it. If we tell them not to do it, they would never do it," he added.

El Cajon's chances rest on the strong right arm of John Osborne, a 5-foot-6, 130-pound fireballer. Osborne struck out 15 batters and allowed only three hits in an opening-round game. He also whacked a home run.

And Taiwan's strength provides plenty of incentive for the U.S. West champions.

"We came to play Taiwan— that's what we're here for. That's what I told the kids July 1, the first day we practiced," said Ampleton.

"There is no question the Chinamen are extremely strong. They are machine-trained. They do everything letter-perfect. But this is still an American game, and I can't concede to them," he added.

The title game will be televised by ABC-TV.

Smith buried by Connors barrage

BROOKLINE, Mass. (AP) — Jimmy Connors outclassed Stan Smith with a barrage of groundstrokes Friday and earned a berth in the quarter finals of the $125,000 U.S. Pro Tennis Championships.

Connors, the tournament's top seed, played loosely throughout and even let Smith break his serve twice in the first set before he took over and won 6-4, 6-3.

The first set was tied twice before Connors won the last two games handily.

Connors, the top seed who narrowly escaped defeat Thursday against Wimbledon whiz John McEnroe, broke Smith in the third and ninth games of the deciding set as the veteran's game began falling apart.

Throughout the match, Connors appeared to be playing his best tennis only when he wanted. The 30-year-old Smith even broke his serve in a love game.

"We had some good points out there tonight," Connors said. "I thought I moved pretty well. The other day, (against McEnroe) I played when I had to. But tonight I played most of the match the way I wanted to. I'm pretty happy."

Connors added that one of his objectives was to keep Smith pinned in the backcourt so the lanky right-hander would be unable to control the net with his expert volleying.

Andretti sets record

ZANDVOORT, The Netherlands (AP) — With last-minute steering adjustments to his JPS-Lotus, American Mario Andretti shattered the lap record Friday in the first day of trials for Sunday's Dutch Grand Prix.

The 37-year-old Formula I driver from Nazareth, Pa., clocked 1 minute 18.85 seconds at 119 miles an hour on the winding 2½-mile Zandvoort circuit.

U.S. takes Walker Cup lead

SOUTHAMPTON, N.Y. (AP) — Scott Simpson, winner of the NCAA championships in 1976 and again this year, was involved in a pair of lopsided victories Friday to lead the U.S. to a 9-3 advantage over Great Britain in the 26th Walker Cup.

NHL announces rule change

TORONTO (AP) — The National Hockey League's rules committee, in a move it hopes will speed up the game, approved Friday an alteration to the regulation governing onside passes.

Under the new rule, a forward pass from inside the blue-line and across the center line may be successfully completed by a player legally on side at the center line or a player who is preceded by the puck across center.

Yarborough tops qualifiers

BRISTOL, Tenn. (AP) — Cale Yarborough, driving a Chevrolet, and Dodge-driving Richard Petty, who rank 1-2 in the NASCAR point race, qualified for the front row Friday for Sunday's Volunteer 400 at Bristol International Speedway.

Sayers has tumor removed

CARBONDALE, Ill. (AP) — Gale Sayers, recently inducted into the Pro Football Hall of Fame, underwent surgery this month for a benign tumor in his chest, he revealed today.

"It's no problem," said Sayers, who is athletic director of Southern Illinois University.

"I had it taken care of and— again—it's no problem."

Green leads Irish Open

PORTMARNOCK, Ireland (AP) — U.S. Open Golf Champion Hubert Green fired a three-under-par 69 Friday and grabbed a one-stroke lead over three players after two rounds of the Irish Open Championship.

Green, who shot a first round 70, was five-under-par at 139 on this 72-par course followed closely by Australia's Greg Norman, South Africa's Andries Oosthuizen, and Ireland's Jimmy Kinsella at 140.

ACC cage diplomas slipping

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) — Atlantic Coast Conference basketball coaches are worried about a disturbing trend among their players: a declining number end their college careers without a diploma.

The coaches cite a number of reasons:

—Players can't keep their grades up.

—Intense publicity creates an unreal atmosphere in which academic achievement is difficult.

—Professional basketball offers big money to a talented few before they graduate.

—Freshman eligibility brings many students to college with unrealistic expectations of how much they will play in their first year.

Whatever the reason, the statistics for the past 15 years show a marked decline in the number of players who graduate on time and play out their college eligibility.

In the six-year period from 1962 to 1967, the seven ACC-member schools recruited 208 players on basketball scholarships. A total of 125, 60 per cent, both graduated and played out their eligibility. Meanwhile 161, or 77 per cent, eventually got their degrees.

From 1968 through 1973, the ACC recruited 203 players; 106, or 52 per cent, graduated and completed eligibility while 125, or 62 per cent, eventually graduated.

Since 1973, there have been 81 ACC basketball recruits and 26, or almost one-third, already have left campus. Of the 20 incoming freshmen in 1974, only 10 will be entering their senior years next month.

The graduation figure for ACC basketball recruits over the last 15 years is 266 out of 433, or 66 per cent.

North Carolina's Dean Smith has the best record of active ACC coaches in terms of keeping players on campus. He says coaches need to stay in better touch with their players off the court.

Smith, whose tenure spans the 15-year statistical period, has compiled a 332-104 record while graduating 40 or 73 per cent of 55 recruits and coaching 34 or 62 per cent of the 55 through four years of eligibility.

"From the time we start recruiting a player, we hammer away at the importance of academics," Smith said. "We consider grades as part of a player's responsibility. In one-on-one conferences, I spend more time talking about academics than basketball. Players are encouraged to set academic goals for themselves, even to predict their grade-point averages. And if I get word that a player hasn't been attending class, he rides the bench for a while."

The statistics were compiled by The Greensboro Daily News.

The figures show that Virginia, which has graduated 41 of 53 recruits in the last 15 years, leads the ACC with a 77 per cent graduation score. Duke is second with 75 per cent, followed by Carolina's 73 per cent, Wake Forest's 65 per cent, Clemson's 61 per cent, Maryland's 59 per cent and N.C. State's 57 per cent.

N.C. State's Norm Sloan and Maryland's Lefty Driesell both cite the influence of professional contract opportunities for college standouts, despite the odds against actually cashing in big.

"A total of 700,000 youngsters play high school ball," said Sloan. "And 18,000 of them go on to play college ball. But there's only room for 264 players in the NBA. So we try to point out to players that those are unbelievably bad odds and that they'd better concentrate on getting an education to enter some other field."

Driesell said the freshmen eligibility rule has contributed to the problem.

"Most young players expect to come into a college program and get their share of playing time right off the bat," he said. "And when it doesn't happen, they become disappointed and eventually disenchanted."

Kings get home opener

INGLEWOOD — For only the third time in 11 years, the Los Angeles King open the regular season at home meeting the Cleveland Barons Wednesday, Oct. 12 and Detroit Red Wings Saturday, Oct. 15.

The Kings started their franchise at home in 1976-77 with a 4-2 win over Philadelphia and lost the 1973-74 season opener 3-0 to Chicago.

This year's 40-game schedule is almost a complete reversal of earlier years for new coach Ron Stewart. Whereas in the past, long home stands were the rule, they now become the exception. The Kings play seven one-game home stands versus two last season; four two-game, one three-game, two four-game and three five game home stands.

The Kings have 16 scheduled home games on Saturday nights, plus nine on Wednesday, eight on Thursday, five on Tuesday and one each on Sunday and Monday.

Broken down by month, the Kings play four home games in October, eight in November, eight in December, four in January, seven in February, six in March and three in April. The National Hockey League starts a week later this year.

The Kings play their Norris Division rivals — Montreal, Pittsburgh, Detroit and Washington — three times each and the same for Cleveland and Toronto. All other NHL teams come to The Forum twice.

There is a new playoff format this season that will increase the importance of every game. The first and second place finishers in each division qualify for the Stanley Cup Playoffs along with the four teams that earn the highest number of points among third and fourth place finishers. Last season, the top three finishers in each division qualified for post-season play.

Face-off time remains the same with all games beginning at 8 p.m. The lone exception is the Sunday New Year's Day game with Colorado which will begin at 7 p.m. Tickets are priced at $5.75, $7, $8 and $10 and will go on sale the last week of September.

'TWO-TON' TONY — Tony Galento, former heavyweight boxer who nearly upset Joe Louis, is recuperating after part of his left leg was amputated. Galento, 67, now lives in Orange, N.J.

'Two-ton' Tony Galento fighting toughest bout

ORANGE, N.J. (AP) — "Two-ton" Tony Galento, once a top contender for the heavyweight championship of the world, is fighting the toughest bout of his life.

Doctors performed the operation on Galento, also a diabetic, to halt a circulatory problem. He will be fitted with an artificial limb in about two weeks, according to a doctor at the New Jersey Rehabilitation Hospital in East Orange. Meanwhile, he is revuperating at his home here.

"Tony's been a real inspiration to everyone here," said Dr. Terry Carle. "He's always laughing and joking with the other patients. Visitors often will come up to him for an autograph or to talk about his famous bout with Joe Louis" at Yankee Stadium in June 1939.

Louis was the heavy favorite to retain his title. Few expected Galento to last the first round against the champ's vicious lefts and rights. But Galento brought the stadium crowd to its feet in the third round when he caught Louis on the jaw with a sweeping left hook that sent the "Brown Bomber" sprawling to the canvas.

Louis came back in the next round to defeat Galento by a technical knockout. But a legend was born that night.

A stocky, beer-guzzling bartender from Orange, N.J., held his own with Joe Louis and came close to winning the upset of the century.

Galento was an unorthodox boxer. He trained on beer and cigars, never watched his waistline and weighed in at a pudgy 234 pounds.

He didn't have much finesse in the ring but his punches were so powerful he won most of his bouts by knockouts.

"I remember one time in Detroit," Galento said in a recent interview. "I knocked out three fighters in a row. I was 21 then and could have gone a few more rounds if need be."

Galento once flattened an opponent in just four seconds.

"I belted him across the chops with my first punch and down he went like a sack of beans," Galento said. "I fought the best of them like Lou Nova and Max Baer. I kayoed Nova, but busted my left hand on Baer's thick skull and lost by a TKO in the eighth round."

Galento, who hopes to teach area youths the fundamentals of boxing once he recovers, is not too impressed by the current crop of prize fighters.

"Where did they dig these guys up?" he asks. "What happened to fighters with class, like Jack Dempsey, Gene Tunney, or my old friend Rocky Graziano? The fighters today are a bunch of cream-puffs. Why Jimmy Young — he's a big joke."

But Galento saved his most scathing comments for heavyweight champion Muhammad Ali.

Asked how he might perform against Ali, Galento replied with his characteristic candor: "Why I'd moider da bum!"

Mt. Baldy run scheduled

Over 100 of the best distance runners in California will tackle the problems of steep grade, thin air and precarious footing in the 12th annual Mt. Baldy-to-the-Peak Race on Labor Day, Sept. 5.

Starting at 10 a.m. at the parking lot of the Mt. Baldy Ski Lift, the runners, after a brief downhill stretch, will climb 4,000 vertical feet in the next 7½ miles. They will finish at Mt. San Antonio Peak, known locally as Old Baldy, towering a little over 10,000 feet above sea level.

The over-all record for this extremely difficult run is held by Chuck Smead of Oxnard, who won the race in a little over 62 minutes in 1972. Smead has won the race every year since 1971, with the exception of 1974, when he did not run. Smead is the obvious favorite to win the event again this year.

Last year's running saw the breaking of a number of class records. New records were set in the womens' open class, mens' 40-49 years class, mens' 50-59 class, and the boys' 15 and under class. Trophies will again be awarded in these classes, and in the open division, the mens' 16-18 class, the girls' class and the women veterans' class (30 and over). A new class has been added this year, the mens' submasters, for men 35 to 39.

The race, sanctioned by the AAU and supported by the Mt. Baldy Fire Department, is one of the most difficult and demanding races in California, as well as one of the most scenic for runners and spectators. Water and first aid stations are provided by the Fire Department at several points along the course, which runs from the Ski Lift Parking Lot to San Antonio Falls, to the Notch, the Devil's Backbone and finishes at the peak of Mt. Baldy.

The Fire Department has asked that casual joggers avoid attempting this race since the course is very demanding and rescues are difficult in the steep and isolated terrain. Even experienced racers with a solid foundation of conditioning find the race very demanding.

Spectators who are willing to do some waking can find places to view several miles of the race from one location. An extra this year is an offer from the Mt. Baldy Ski Lifts for spectators to ride the lift for $2 for adults and $1.50 for children. Since the regular prices are $4 and $3, this will encourage spectators to watch the race from points high on the course. The Ski Lift is also offering all competitors a free ride down.

While Smead is the favorite to win the race outright, there are other favorites of the crowd. There will be strong representation from the many fine women runners, including Vickie Cook, who set the womens' record last year, and Donna Sanchez, former record holder. In the mens' 50-59 class, Ed Almeida, who knocked 7 minutes off the old class record, is expected to return and try to smash his record. John Montoya, over 60, is expected to return to the mountain for the race. Montoya beats many runners half his age, and runs the shale slopes of Mt. Baldy in a pair of bedroom slippers.

The race is also a favorite of local high school and college runners. Strong representatives from Upland, Ontario and Alta Loma highs are expected to be on hand.

Duran will defend title

NEW YORK (AP) — Roberto Duran of Panama will defend the World Boxing Association lightweight championship against Edwin Viruet of New York in the Spectrum at Philadelphia Saturday Sept. 17, promoter Don King said Thursday.

ABC announced the fight will be televised live on its Wide World of Sports program, beginning shortly after 5 p.m. EDT.

Duran met Viruet in a 10-round nontitle fight Sept. 30, 1975, in Uniondale, N.Y., and won a unanimous 10-round decision.

ABC also said it will televise live King's promotion of Alfredo Escalera's defense of the World Boxing Council junior lightweight championship against Sigfridio Rodriguez of Mexico.

Bullfight card features Arruza

TIJUANA — One of the most important bullfight cards of the summer season in Tijuana is expected to attract the largest crowd of the year Sunday to Major Lepez Hurtado's "Bullring by the Sea."

Carlos Arruza, Jr., the brilliant, young Rejoneador whose horsemanship and personality captured the enthusiasm of the crowd during his appearance of July 31, will open the afternoon's festivities.

Matadores Curro Rivera, Adrian Romero, and Fermin Espinosa "Armillita" will follow, alternating with a herd of six bulls from the well-known Las Huertas ranch.

Rivera, the charismatic Mexican who has spent most of the summer season competing in some of Spain's most prestigious bullfight fairs, was gored, Aug. 12, during a corrida in Palma de Majorca. Yet, he was back in the ring only nine days after the incident.

Romero is a courageous, fiery type of Matador who can boast of a large following amongst Southern California aficionados. Noted for his spectacular placement of banderillas, Romero sometimes allows his enthusiasm to place himself in grave danger. He was painfully gored while placing banderillas during a Tijuana corrida in 1975.

The third sword on the card, Fermin Espinosa "Armillita," is a youngster who has risen swiftly in the world's most dangerous profession. He has impressed aficionados throughout Mexico and Spain. He, too, places his own banderillas, which should inspire some heated competition with Romero.

No less a draw are the bulls of Las Huertas, which have been exceptionally well presented during the past few Tijuana seasons.

In the Los Angeles area, tickets are sold through Murray's Tickets and at Murray's Tickets and at Mission Jewelry. California, tickets are available through Ticketron agencies.

Lakers broadcasts will be aired on KLAC (570)

LOS ANGELES — KLAC Radio (570 AM) will serve as the 1977-78 flagship station for the largest radio network in the history of the Los Angeles Lakers, it was announced jointly today by Laker President Jack Kent Cooke and KLAC Vice-President and General Manager Bill Ward.

The multi-year agreement makes KLAC the focal point of a 14-station network that covers a whopping 160,000 square miles and reaches a potential listening audience of over 12 million. The network will reach North-South from Fresno to San Diego and East-West from Las Vegas, Nevada to the Pacific Ocean. In addition, the Lakers will again be carried by KHVH in Honolulu, Hawaii. Never have so many people in so large an area been able to follow Laker basketball.

"It is with great pride that the Lakers join KLAC for this season and the years to come," said Cooke. "This association gives the Lakers physical coverage that greatly exceeds any that has existed the past few seasons."

Ward, whose station is the number one country music station in all of Southern California, also expressed his great pleasure over KLAC's new association with the Lakers. "Fans throughout Southern California can now enjoy the best in NBA basketball and country music on the same station," he said. "The Lakers will be right at home in 'California Country'."

As usual, all Laker home games will be carried live, while all weekday away games will be aired no earlier than 6 p.m. in order to allow people time to return home from work and hear the complete game.

D.B. has new soccer team

A new youth soccer team is being formed in Diamond Bar, the Patriots. The Patriots will be playing in the Coast Soccer League (CSL) in the under-10 age bracket.

Coach of the Patriots is Dan Worley. The team will be playing its home games at Chaparral Intermediate School in Diamond Bar on Saturdays starting in October. Opponents will include other CSL teams from Orange County.

Team members include Michael Anderson, Brian Barnes, Anthouy Elwart, Issac Garcia, Donald Harshfield, Jason Judge, Craig Lamantain, Ronny Mulder, Brent Robinson, Spencer Rose, Steven Seibert, Tommy Vetlesen, Greg Wood and Brad Worley. Team mothers are Judy Anderson and Lucy Rose.

For further information on the Patriots, contact either Rick Anderson at 595-1526 or Mike Rose at 595-3068.

Baseball attendance hits high with five weeks left

NEW YORK (AP) — Major league baseball's attendance reached 31,384,689 Tuesday, giving the sport its highest total ever with still five weeks left in the season.

The figures released Wednesday by the Commissioner's office have baseball surpassing last year's record total of 31,318,331.

Expansion clubs Toronto and Seattle figured into the increase, but the 24 established clubs still show a 12 per cent boost over last year and an 18 per cent over two years ago.

Major league crowds are averaging 20,702 for every opening. Last season's per-date average was 17,409.

Los Angeles and Cincinnati already have gone over the two million mark at home while 16 other clubs have reached one million.

Sooners ready to run

By J. LEE CARRIER
AP Sports Writer

NORMAN, Okla. (AP) — The 1977 University of Oklahoma football team is hoping it can run its way to a sixth national championship.

The offensive backfield is loaded with speed burners who also happen to be big, and the tentative starting 11 on defense average a stunning 4.67 seconds in the 40-yard dash.

The Sooners' wishbone attack could field a quarterback and two backs who hit 4.5, and another back who has dipped to 4.35. But that's the second string.

The starting backfield will be composed of three 4.4 sprinters and one slow guy who'll trot along at 4.5. They're led by junior Thomas Lott, a 5-foot-11, 200-pounder who became the No. 1 quarterback midway through last season.

Coach Barry Switzer calls him "the best we've ever had." That includes such company as Jack Mildren and Steve Davis. Dean Blevins, a senior, is Lott's backup.

The only concern about Lott is his passing. A true halfback, Lott simply did not know how to pass last year and his statistics bore that out: 12 attempts, two completions, three interceptions.

"But I've worked hard in spring practice and this summer," Lott says. "I'm confident I can get the job done." If not, Blevins is a proven passer and probably will get the nod in obvious passing situations.

ONE OF A SERIES

Besides Lott, there are two other 4.4 sprinters in fullback Kenny King, up from 190 to 210, and left half Elvis Peacock, 205. King, a junior, was the team's leading rusher last year, and Peacock, a senior, had an excellent spring. He may be set for the super year everybody was predicting when he came to OU as a Florida prep star.

At right half, sophomore Bill Sims and junior Jim Rogers will fight it out. Sims is bigger, 210, but Rogers, 190, has the edge in experience.

"I figure by the third game one of us will take over," Rogers says.

The only loss the Sooners sustained out of the backfield last year was Horace Ivory, who was drafted by the New England Patriots.

The offensive line is a plus. Only one starter is gone—AllAmerican tackle Mike Vaughan. His backup, Sam Claphan, a 6-6, 284-pound senior, will take over.

The rest of the line is intact, including tight end Victor Hicks, a 6-3, 250-pound junior who has started since his freshman year. Switzer says he's "the best in the Big Eight."

The major problems come on defense. The end slots are a shambles. Out of the top three prospective starters, two are injured and one fell victim to grades. Whoever starts there when the Sooners open at home against Vanderbilt on Sept. 10 will be inexperienced.

"We're going to take a look at a lot of people there," Switzer says, including Reggie Mathis, a tight end who is almost as good as Hicks.

The secondary is another problem. The starting four will be good, but behind them are freshmen and untested sophomores.

Linebacking should be a strong point, though, with All-Big Eight Daryl Hunt returning. He'll probably team with converted fullback George Cumby, the surprise of spring training. Behind them will be proven seniors Bill Dalke and Obie Moore.

Cumby was recruited as both a linebacker. Injuries have hampered his play on offense since arriving at OU and last year he received a hardship ruling after suffering a broken collarbone. With King solid as fullback, Switzer decided to shift Cumby to linebacker this spring. It was an excellent move.

Cumby quickly shoved Hunt to the other side and the pair could give OU its best duo of linebackers in many years.

"The down linemen should be big, and that'll help," Switzer said.

Reggie Kinlaw should be healthy. A knee injury felled him last year, and he set out spring training to make sure it healed.

Switzer says Kinlaw, a 240-pound junior, "could be our next great defensive lineman."

On either side of Kinlaw will be Paul Tabor, 255, and Richard Murray, 260. Murray is the slowest man on the starting defensive squad, but still manages to trundle through the 40 in 4.9 seconds.

So the assessment is an excellent to possibly great offense, but a questionable and problem-plagued defense that, if injuries stay away, should probably be good enough.

Baseball playoffs will begin earlier

NEW YORK (AP) — Baseball fans won't have to wait long between the end of the 1977 regular baseball season and the start of the best-of-five league championship series.

Since the inception of the playoffs in 1969, the post-season games began the Saturday after the end of the regular season. The last two years, and three of the last four years, the season ended on a Sunday, which left five full days between the end of the regular season and the start of the playoffs.

In order to shorten the break and take advantage of suitable weather, baseball officials announced this week there would be only brief intervals between the end of the regular season and the playoffs, with the World Series starting Tuesday, Oct. 11.

The best-of-five playoff to determine the National League champion will begin Tuesday, Oct. 4. The American League playoff will start a day later.

The schedule was announced at the annual playoff-World Series planning meeting attended by a record 14 clubs. The unusually high number of teams attending was due to close pennant races in three of the four league divisions. American League teams represented were Baltimore, Boston, California, Chicago, Kansas City, Minnesota, New York and Texas. Attending from the National League were Chicago, Cincinnati, Los Angeles, Philadelphia, Pittsburgh and St. Louis.

The first two National League playoff games will be held at night Oct. 4-5 at the home of the Western Division winner. After a travel day, the series will switch to the city of the Eastern Division winner for a day game Oct. 7—and if necessary—a night game Oct. 8 and a day game Oct. 9.

A day game Oct. 5 at the home of the Eastern Division winner will open the AL playoffs. A night game also will be held in the Eastern city Oct. 6. Then the action switches to the Western winner's park for a night game Oct. 7, and, if necessary, a day game Oct. 8 and a night game Oct. 9.

The Saturday, Oct. 8 National League game will be changed to a day game if the Chicago Cubs are the Eastern Division winner because Wrigley Field, the Cubs' home park, has no lights.

In addition, the night game Thursday, Oct. 6 in the American League will be switched to the afternoon if travel to the West Coast is necessary.

The World Series opens the night of Oct. 11 in the American League city and Game 2 will be played at the same site the next night. After a travel day, Game 3 will be played Friday night, Oct. 14, and Game 5 Saturday afternoon in the National League city. If a fifth game is necessary, it will be played Sunday afternoon, Oct. 16, in the National League city.

Games 6 and 7, if necessary, will be played in the American League city the nights of Tuesday and Wednesday, Oct. 18-19.

If the Cubs represent the National League in the World Series, the Friday night, Oct. 14, game will be switched to the afternoon.

NBC will televise all league playoff games, while ABC will televise the World Series games. CBS Radio will broadcast all playoff and World Series games.

Cauthen—from bust to hero in one year

SARATOGA SPRINGS, N.Y. (AP) — Steve Cauthen was a bust when he visited Saratoga Race Course to pursue his career as a thoroughbred horse racing jockey last August.

Things are different this year for the soft-spoken 16-year-old from Walton, Ky.

Although he's second — a close second — to veteran standout Angel Cordero, Jr. this year, Cauthen very well could be the reason the New York Racing Association's upstate New York outpost appears en route to its best season ever.

Last year at Saratoga, Cauthen had only two rides. And as he puts it, "I beat only one horse each time."

But that's how he started his career on May 12, 1976 at Churchill Downs. In that race he also finished next-to-last.

Things started to pick up for the modest youngster, however, when the NYRA's traveling road show ended its four-week stand at Saratoga last year and returned to the downstate New York tracks—Belmont and Aqueduct.

Cauthen started winning races in bunches, at times four and five on a single program. And the winning ways picked up as 1977 began.

With the current racing season just past the halfway mark, Cauthen had already won nearly 350 races, with 225 seconds and 200 thirds. He has ridden about 1,350 horses so far this year.

The youngster has won races with purses totaling more than $3.8 million.

How does Cauthen feel about his success?

"Just great," he says.

How about his other career — as a country and western singer?

Cauthen characterizes his record album as more a publicity stunt than anything else and says he has "no interest" in pursuing that line of work in the future.

Asked about the biggest thrill of his career to date, Cauthen says "everything."

He does not elaborate, apparently preferring instead to savor all of the good things that have happened so far.

Cauthen says he had the advantage of having the best possible teacher — "my dad."

His father is a blacksmith in Kentucky.

Does his dad have hopes of coming to the big New York tracks and achieving the kind of success his son has found?

Emphatically, "no," young Cauthen says.

After he was seriously hurt in a racing accident in New York earlier this year, Cauthen was on the shelf for about a month.

During that time, he returned to Walton.

Asked if his childhood friends treated the conquering hero any differently, Cauthen says "they treated me just like they always did.....and I liked that."

As the interview ended, Cauthen perused the day's racing program.

By day's end, he had added two more riding victories to his total for the season.

Steve Cauthen is a giant in a sport dominated by men noted for their diminutive size.

Bradshaw won't 'erupt'

LATROBE, Pa. (AP) — Terry Bradshaw marched into training camp eight years ago, touted as a man with a golden arm, tabbed as savior of the hapless Pittsburgh Steelers.

Bradshaw has lived up to the billing as well as anyone could. He has led the Steelers out of pro football's wilderness and helped them win five division titles and two Super Bowl championships.

What more could be expected of this blond cowboy from Louisiana who loves to sing, fish, raise cattle—and play football?

Bradshaw knows: When is Terry Bradshaw, the hot-shot quarterback from Louisiana Tech, going to pass for 3,000 yards, become All-Pro and finally live up to his ability?

"Everybody is waiting for me to erupt," Bradshaw said Tuesday at St. Vincent College, the Steelers training camp. "Everybody is waiting for me to get 3,000 yards and 28 TDs like Kenny Stabler (of Oakland). But that's not going to happen. I don't think it can happen and us win."

Bradshaw guides the offense, calls the plays. But the Steelers, under Coach Chuck Noll, are not a pass-oriented team. They do not rely on the pass to win.

And that means Bradshaw plays a different kind of role than Stabler or Fran Tarkenton of Minnesota, who use the pass as a primary weapon.

"I'm not the nucleus of this team," said Bradshaw. "The defense and the running game are. It took me a while to get used to the idea but now I like it.

"I think it's even more of an accomplishment to have 50 per cent completions, have two running backs run for 1,000 yards and win the Super Bowl. If they're waiting for me to erupt ... heck, I may have erupted five years ago."

Then he launched into the Bradshaw grin, looked at his roommate, punter Bobby Walden, and said: "Watch me. I'll probably have a 4,000-yard year and 30 TDs. Wouldn't that be something?"

Bradshaw had his best personal statistics five years ago, passing for 2,259 yards and 13 touchdowns.

"Yeah, and we were 6-8 that year," he said.

In 1975, Bradshaw nearly matched that season with 2,055 yards, but he also threw 18 touchdown passes and the Steelers won their second straight Super Bowl.

Bradshaw has looked extremely sharp in preseason games this year. He completed 13 of 16 passes against the New York Jets last week. He has a 65 per cent average in three games while playing about half the time.

The 6-foot-3, 215-pound Bradshaw attributes his fine start to peace of mind, experience and a change in his passing style.

"I'm excited about this year," he said. "I'm throwing the ball better because I'm taking it up to my shoulder after the snap and not whirling it around like a pitcher like I used to. I'm not throwing it as hard, but I'm throwing it better."

Bradshaw, who went through a divorce several years ago, now is married to ice skating star Jo Jo Starbuck.

"I'm happy. I'm happily married. We don't have much in common, but we have important things in common. We go to church three times a week, we pray together and we love each other. But she doesn't tag along with me and I don't tag along with her.

"She finally went to a cattle sale with me, but then slept through the whole thing. I don't think she'll go again. And I went skating with her one night. She couldn't believe it."

Bionic horse winning

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (AP) — Usually when a horse suffers a broken bone in his leg, he is fortunate to survive—much less compete again. But Mi Marzo Amigo has come back from such an incident to become one of the finest pacers at the current Western Harness Racing meeting at Hollywood Park.

Last October, Mi Marzo Amigo cruised to a five-length victory in a one-mile race with a lifetime-best clocking of 2:00 1-5. But instead of going to the winner's circle, the chestnut 5-yearold had to be taken away in an ambulance with a broken leg suffered during the race.

The injury was diagnosed as a split pastern—the bone connecting the foot and ankle on a horse.

Owner Richard Allen of Torrance, Calif., had risked the horse in a $20,000 claiming race that night but said "I didn't really want to lose him.

"In fact I was so afraid someone would claim him I spread the word around that Marzo had a bad right leg," continued Allen. "But there was nothing wrong with him, at least there wasn't before the race.

"To this day I'll bet some people think I was levelling when I said he had a bad leg before that race."

After examination, veterinarian Robert Rose suggested surgery to insert screws to hold the broken bones together.

Mi Marzo Amigo has won five of his first nine races this year, including a pair of swift 1:563-5 efforts at Golden Gate Fields.

Hudson gains ground on Roth in PBA money race

AKRON, Ohio (AP) — Tommy Hudson gained a bit of ground this week on leader Mark Roth in the Professional Bowlers Association money earnings race.

Hudson of Akron picked up $2,000 earlier this week by finishing fifth in the PBA event at Trenton, N.J. Roth was eighth, earning $1,600.

Roth of New York has won $81,048 for the year, compared with Hudson's $75,608. They are followed by Earl Anthony of Tacoma, Wash., with $63,940; Marshall Holman of Medford, Ore., $51,240; Mike Berlin of Muscatine, Iowa, $40,515; Ed Ressler of Allentown, Pa., $38,638; Steve Neff of Sarasota, Fla., $37,165; George Pappas of Charlotte, N.C., $33,990; Mike Durbin of Chagrin Falls, Ohio, $31,708, and Pete Couture of Windsor Locks, Conn., $31,650.

The $7,000 Steve Westberg of Cottage Grove, Ore., picked up in winning last weekend's PBA tournament gave him $21,000 for the year, well behind the top 10.

PUBLIC NOTICE

RESOLUTION NO. 1710
A RESOLUTION OF THE CITY COUNCIL OF THE CITY OF WALNUT FIXING THE RATE AND LEVYING TAXES FOR THE FISCAL YEAR BEGINNING JULY 1, 1977

WHEREAS, the City of Walnut previously elected to assume financial responsibility for services provided by the Consolidated Fire Protection District and for the County Free Library pursuant to Section 43073 (a) of the Government Code of the State of California.

NOW, THEREFORE, THE CITY COUNCIL OF THE CITY OF WALNUT DOES RESOLVE AS FOLLOWS:

Section 1. That for the purpose of raising the sum of money necessary to be raised by taxes upon the taxable property of the City of Walnut as revenue to support its departments and to pay for the government and other business of the City, as well as other indebtedness of the City, except the cost of the Fire and Library Services as set forth in Section 2 of Resolution NO. 1709 for the fiscal year beginning July 1, 1977, the rate of taxes for the City of Walnut is hereby fixed, and the taxes are hereby levied on all taxable property in all portions or parts of the City of Walnut in the amount of forty-five cents ($.45) upon each $100 of the assessed valuation of said property assessed by the County Assessor and equalized by the State Board of Equalization.

Section 2. Pursuant to Section 43073 (b) of the Government Code, the tax rate of the City of Walnut shall be increased by an amount equal to the amount of the tax rates set by the Board of Supervisors of the County of Los Angeles for the Consolidated Fire Protection District and the Los Angeles Free Library for the 1977-78 fiscal year.

Section 3. The County Tax Collector, County Assessor, or County Auditor, as the case may be, is hereby authorized to raise by taxation upon the taxable property of the City of Walnut the amount of revenue necessary to support the departments and to pay for the government and other business of the City, as set forth in Section 1 of this Resolution plus the amount of revenue necessary to pay to the District as defined in Section 43073 of the Government Code for Fire and Library services, and is therefore authorized and directed by this Resolution to fix and levy a total City of Walnut tax rate on all taxable property in all portions or parts of the City for the fiscal year beginning July 1, 1977, in the amount set forth in Section 1 of this Resolution plus the amount authorized to be determined under Section 2 of this Resolution, upon each $100 of the assessed valuation of said property assessed by the County Assessor and equalized by the State Board of Equalization.

Section 4. The City Council hereby declares it would have passed this Resolution sentence by sentence, paragraph by paragraph, and section by section, and does declare that the provisions of this Resolution are severable, and if for any reason, any sentence, paragraph or section shall be held invalid, such decision shall not affect the validity of the remaining parts of this Resolution.

Section 5. The City Clerk shall certify to the adoption of this Resolution and shall cause the same to be published as required by law.

Section 6. This Resolution shall take effect immediately upon adoption. The City Clerk shall, prior to September 1, 1977, transmit to the Los Angeles County Auditor a statement of the tax rate so fixed, and a certified copy of this Resolution.

PASSED, APPROVED AND ADOPTED this 10th day of August, 1977
R.A. Laughter
MAYOR

I hereby certify that the foregoing resolution, being Resolution NO. 1710, was approved and adopted by the City Council of the City of Walnut, at a regular meeting held August 10, 1977, by the following roll call vote:

Dick Roberts

Pollen is the dusty yellow grains that can be seen in most flowers. The flowers use it in making the seeds that will grow into new plants.

Plants make pollen in the saclike anthers of their flowers. Pollen grains are so small that they look like tiny specks.

With a microscope, you can see that some are smooth, and others are covered with spines or knobs. But all pollen grains are alike in the same plant.

Before a seed can form, a flower must be pollinated. This means that a grain of pollen must get into a part of the flower called the pistil.

Flowers are often pollinated by insects. They land on the flower, seeking nectar or pollen.

Pollen sticks to the insect's body. At the next flower, some rubs off the insect and on to the flower's pistil.

The pistil contains tiny ovules, the beginnings of seeds. The pollen grains join with the ovules to grow into seeds.

Asthmatic benefit

A variety and fashion show to benefit asthmatic children will be presented at 1 p.m. Sunday at Taylor Hall, 1717 N. Indian Hill Blvd., Claremont, by Beth-Ann's School of Modeling and Dance in Upland.

The proceeds of "A Breath of Fall" go to the Lung Association of San Bernardino County's "SCAMP Camp" fund. The fund provides camperships for asthmatic children, ages 10 through 14. The camp has special medical staff, program, and diet for young asthmatics.

Admission for adults is $3.50, and $1 for children. Free dessert will be served during the show. Tax-deductible tickets may be purchased from Beth-Ann's, at 1033 W. Foothill Blvd., Upland. The telephone number is 985-6444.

Awareness workshop

How to deal effectively with human sexuality, death, depression and anger will be discussed at a free, 10-week workshop in Upland and Ontario in September.

The workshops, sponsored by Chaffey College Adult Education, are being taught by Hugh Pendleton. Classes at the Ontario library will begin Sept. 12 and will be held on Mondays from 6 to 9 p.m. Classes at the Upland library will begin Sept. 15 and will meet on Thursdays from 6 to 9 p.m.

Off-peak power rates

Time-of-day pricing of electricity rates for the Southland's large industrial customers has been approved by the California Public Utilities Commission (PUC) in a major effort to effect further conservation of energy.

Under plans approved for both Southern California Edison and San Diego Gas and Electric, electricity will be priced lower for large industrials when used during off-peak periods and higher during peak periods.

The pricing policy is designed to shave peaks by offering financial incentives to use electricity when demand is relatively low and in the long run to reduce the necessity of building new generating units.

Family films

The Ontario City Library continues with its Wednesday night free movies at 7 in the downstairs multi-purpose room.

The following will be shown during September:

On Sept. 7, "The March of the Wooden Soldiers," a full-feature film with Laurel and Hardy as apprentice toy-makers; "Huelga!" (Spanish for "strike"), Sept. 14, to coincide with Mexico's Sept. 16 holiday; Sept. 21, Laurel and Hardy in "Any Old Port" and "Chickens Come Home;" and "We are Women," Sept. 28.

Powder permit

The Fire Prevention Officers' Section of the California Fire Chiefs Association is concerned with the changes in federal regulations which allows an individual to possess 50 pounds of black sporting powder without a permit from local authorities.

State regulations allow an individual to possess five pounds. There are indications that attempts will be made to increase the allowable amount, without permit, to 50 pounds in California.

Attempts were made by the fire services to have these increased amounts rejected at the time the legislation was introduced. However, their efforts were defeated primarily due to the lack of documentation of the hazards of possession, transportation and volatile nature of these larger amounts.

Park parking plan

Responding to the problem often experienced by owners of recreation vehicles in finding an attractive, safe place to park overnight, Herbert Rhodes, director of the state Department of Parks and Recreation, has announced a new overnight parking plan.

Overnight parking permits at $25 each are available now for use beginning Thursday at three state beaches in Southern California and one on the Northern California coast.

The parking will be available only to "self-contained" recreation vehicles with a special permit, which will be good only from one hour before sunset to 9 a.m. and will not be good during summer months.

The four parks at which the permits may be used are Torrey Pines and Carlsbad state beaches in San Diego County, Huntington State Beach in Orange County, and Half Moon Bay State Beach in San Mateo County, south of San Francisco.

Best speakers

Dick Johnson of Pomona won the top award for his speech, "The Drill Instructor is Out to Win Your Heart" at the Pomona Toastmaster Club 12 program held recently.

Wilson Gillingwaters of Claremont and Pat Nicholson of Pomona tied for "tall tales." Don Remer of Claremont was the table topics winner.

Dodger night

Pomona Jaycees will sponsor Dodger Night Tuesday at 7:30 p.m. for the Los Angeles Dodgers vs. the Chicago Cubs game.

In promoting this game, the Jaycees provide a chance for needy boys in the Pomona area to attend the game and cheer the team.

Weavers at plaza

The Basket Weavers, young adults who perform as a basketball team challenged by a skateboard team, may be seen at Montclair Plaza Wednesday through Sept. 3.

A halftime exhibition features the Basket Weaver Cycling Band and Stunt Riders.

An announcer and a referee are part of the show.

Show times are flexible. Shows may last from 15 minutes to an hour.

Annual breakfast

Pomona Valley AZA will hold its annual breakfast Sunday morning at Temple Beth Israel, 3033 N. Towne Ave., Pomona.

The AZA, a chapter of B'nai-B'rith Youth Organization, will start the day at 10 a.m. and end it at 1 p.m.

Paul O'Leary, a licensed clinical social worker, will conduct a program on child abuse at 11 a.m.

Interested persons may attend. Breakfast will be served buffet style. Donations of $2 for adults and $1.50 for children under 12 will be accepted.

Hospital trying to stop nurses picketing

Administrators at San Antonio Community Hospital said they will take all available "legal, judicial and administrative" remedies to halt striking nurses from the Kaiser Hospital from picketing the Upland hospital on Monday.

"The United Nurses Association of California has filed notice of their intent to picket this hospital along with 12 others commencing Monday at 7 a.m.," said John Howard, San Antonio Hospital's administrator.

"This action is being taken to bring maximum attention to their negotiation problem with Kaiser Hospital. They have no grievance with this hospital except that a few critically ill patients that would have been hospitalized in Fontana are being cared for here because of the strike conditions there."

Howard said legal counsel for the Upland hospital has advised the nurses association its proposed action is illegal and should picketing occur, the hospital will pursue all available remedies.

"It is not anticipated if the pickets, should they appear, will cause any disruption of our ability to continue to provide care for our patients," he said.

JOSEPH C. ASHER

Chino meat market opens

Joseph C. Asher, owner and operator of the Meat Cleaver in Garden Grove, has opened a Meat Cleaver market in the County Fair Shopping Center, 12071 Central Ave., Chino.

Asher said butchers will custom-cut choice meat orders in the old-fashioned way.

He stocks an assortment of local and imported fresh and frozen fish and seafood.

A delicatessen section includes lunch meats, imported and domestic cheeses and features a take-out-sandwich section.

Asher also offers a line of freezer budget packs.

Another section specializes in catering party trays.

Lawyers opposed to advertising, according to poll

A majority of attorneys in the East San Gabriel Valley and the Pomona area say they would lose respect for lawyers who advertised their services, fees or expertise, according to a West Covina advertising agency owner.

Micheal Stover, the agency owner, revealed the results of a questionnaire during an address presented before the Eastern Bar Association, a group of attorneys who practice in that area.

"The Supreme Court's decision allowing lawyers to advertise has been greeted by stiff opposition by the legal profession," Stover said. "Almost half of the lawyers we surveyed reject outright the possibility of ever advertising," he said.

Stover said six out of 10 attorneys he contacted disapprove of advertising their services, fees or specialties. Two-thirds disagree with the legal basis cited by the court to permit such advertising, he said.

Stover said he sent questionnaires to 100 attorneys listed in the yellow pages of the Covina and Pomona telephone books. More than half responded.

According to Stover's findings, there is widespread disbelief in the inevitability of advertising by a majority of lawyers; almost two-thirds fear that advertising will adversely affect their net income by increasing the cost of doing business without winning new clients; and legal clinics will gain from such advertising and the speciality areas of personal injury and family law will be advertised the most.

Political arena

ASSEMBLYMAN BILL MCVITTIE, D-65th Dist., Upland, has pushed his bill cracking down on the child pornography business through the Assembly.

It now is being considered in the Senate and, being an urgency bill, would take effect upon approval by the Governor.

The measure makes it a felony to employ or use any person under the age of 18 in the production of smut.

It also bans the sale, distribution, exhibition, publication or printing of pornographic material featuring juveniles engaged in specified sexual activities.

"The pandering of filth and the willingness of pornographers to degrade and exploit youngsters in the pursuit of a buck is indefensible," said McVittie.

"We are flatly not going to condone this kind of activity in California.

"There's a very clear difference in my mind between child abuse and the right to free expression. The people who lure kids in front of a camera to perform sexual acts are going to go to state prison."

REP. JOHN H. ROUSSELOT, R-26th Dist., San Marino, said the federally-funded Re-Employment Action Committee (REAC) is placing 120 persons a month into jobs from offices at 130 E. First St., Pomona; 12010 Ramona Blvd., El Monte; 266 E. Angeleno Ave., Burbank; and 515 N. Azusa Ave., Azusa.

Rousselot said open house would be held Thursday from 2 to 4 p.m. at REAC offices in El Monte.

SEN. WILLIAM CAMPBELL, R-33rd Dist., Hacienda Heights, will chair a meeting of the Senate Select Committee on Fire Services to look into costs of suppressing the Marble Cone fire at Big Sur.

Date and place of the hearing will be announced later.

The Marble Cone fire blackened nearly 187,000 acres of forest land. It was the second largest fire in California's history. Fireman fought 18 days to control the fire which caused serious damage to valuable watershed, timber and recreational areas in the Los Padres National Forest.

The hearing is being held at the request of Sen. Robert P. Nimmo and Assemblywoman Carol Hallett, Republicans from Atascadero.

Ontario man beaten, robbed in his home

A 20-year-old Ontario man was attacked, beaten with a rock and robbed in his home by two men claiming to be undercover officers Thursday night in the 1100 block of west Holt Boulevard.

The victim told police that two male Latins had followed him home about 9 p.m. He said as he got to his door the two men suddenly grabbed him and one said, "We're undercover officers . . . where's your stuff?"

The victim told officers the men then pushed him inside his home, took his wallet and keys and then began ransacking the rooms.

He said the men took a quantity of heroin he had in the home and then struck him over the head several times with a four-pound rock.

Police said the victim was treated for head injuries at Ontario community Hospital and later released.

Police said there were no undercover officers working in that area that night.

The victim was not placed under arrest pending further investigation, police said.

Shooting, beating didn't occur at Los Olivos Housing Project

A related shooting and beating incident reported Monday in the Progress Bulletin as occurring in the Los Olivos Housing Project of Upland was incorrect.

The shooting incident that left a 22-year-old Upland man hospitalized with a gunshot wound of the back and the beating that left a 34-year-old Cucamonga man in San Bernardino County Hospital actually occurred about two blocks north of the Los Olivos Housing Project, according to housing project officials.

Upland police said one man from Upland is now in custody in the case and three others, one from Upland and the other two from Chino, are being questioned. Police said there was no apparent motive for the two incidents.

Seamen killed

Over 6,000 merchant seamen were killed and over 600 merchant vessels were sunk during World War II.

Fraudulent statements result in conviction

Samuel J. McPhail, 56, San Gabriel, has been convicted on three felony counts of making false and fraudulent statements to the Social Security Administration.

A. Lorraine Brannen, Pomona district manager, said McPhail's statements enabled him to unlawfully receive $6,000 in Supplemental Security Income (SSI) payments.

McPhail pleaded guilty Aug. 15, before U. S. District Court Judge William P. Gray in Los Angeles to a charge of concealing income from a union pension of approximately $336 a month, and assets of several thousand dollars in a savings account.

He faces a maximum sentence of 15 years in prison, and $30,000 in fines, or both. He will be sentenced by Judge Gray on Sept. 6.

The SSI program pays benefits to needy aged, blind or disabled persons who have little or no income and very limited resources, said Mrs. Brannen.

The investigation and referral to the Department of Justice of potential SSI fraud cases is an ongoing effort of the Social Security Administration. It is aimed at assuring proper eligibility for SSI payments, said Mrs. Brannen.

Burglar hunt on

Chino police this morning were contiuining their search for burglars who broke into Porter Equipment Co., 5052 F St. in Chino Friday and made off with several thousand dollars worth of business machines and power tools.

The burglars gained entry to the business by forcing open a door on the south side of the building.

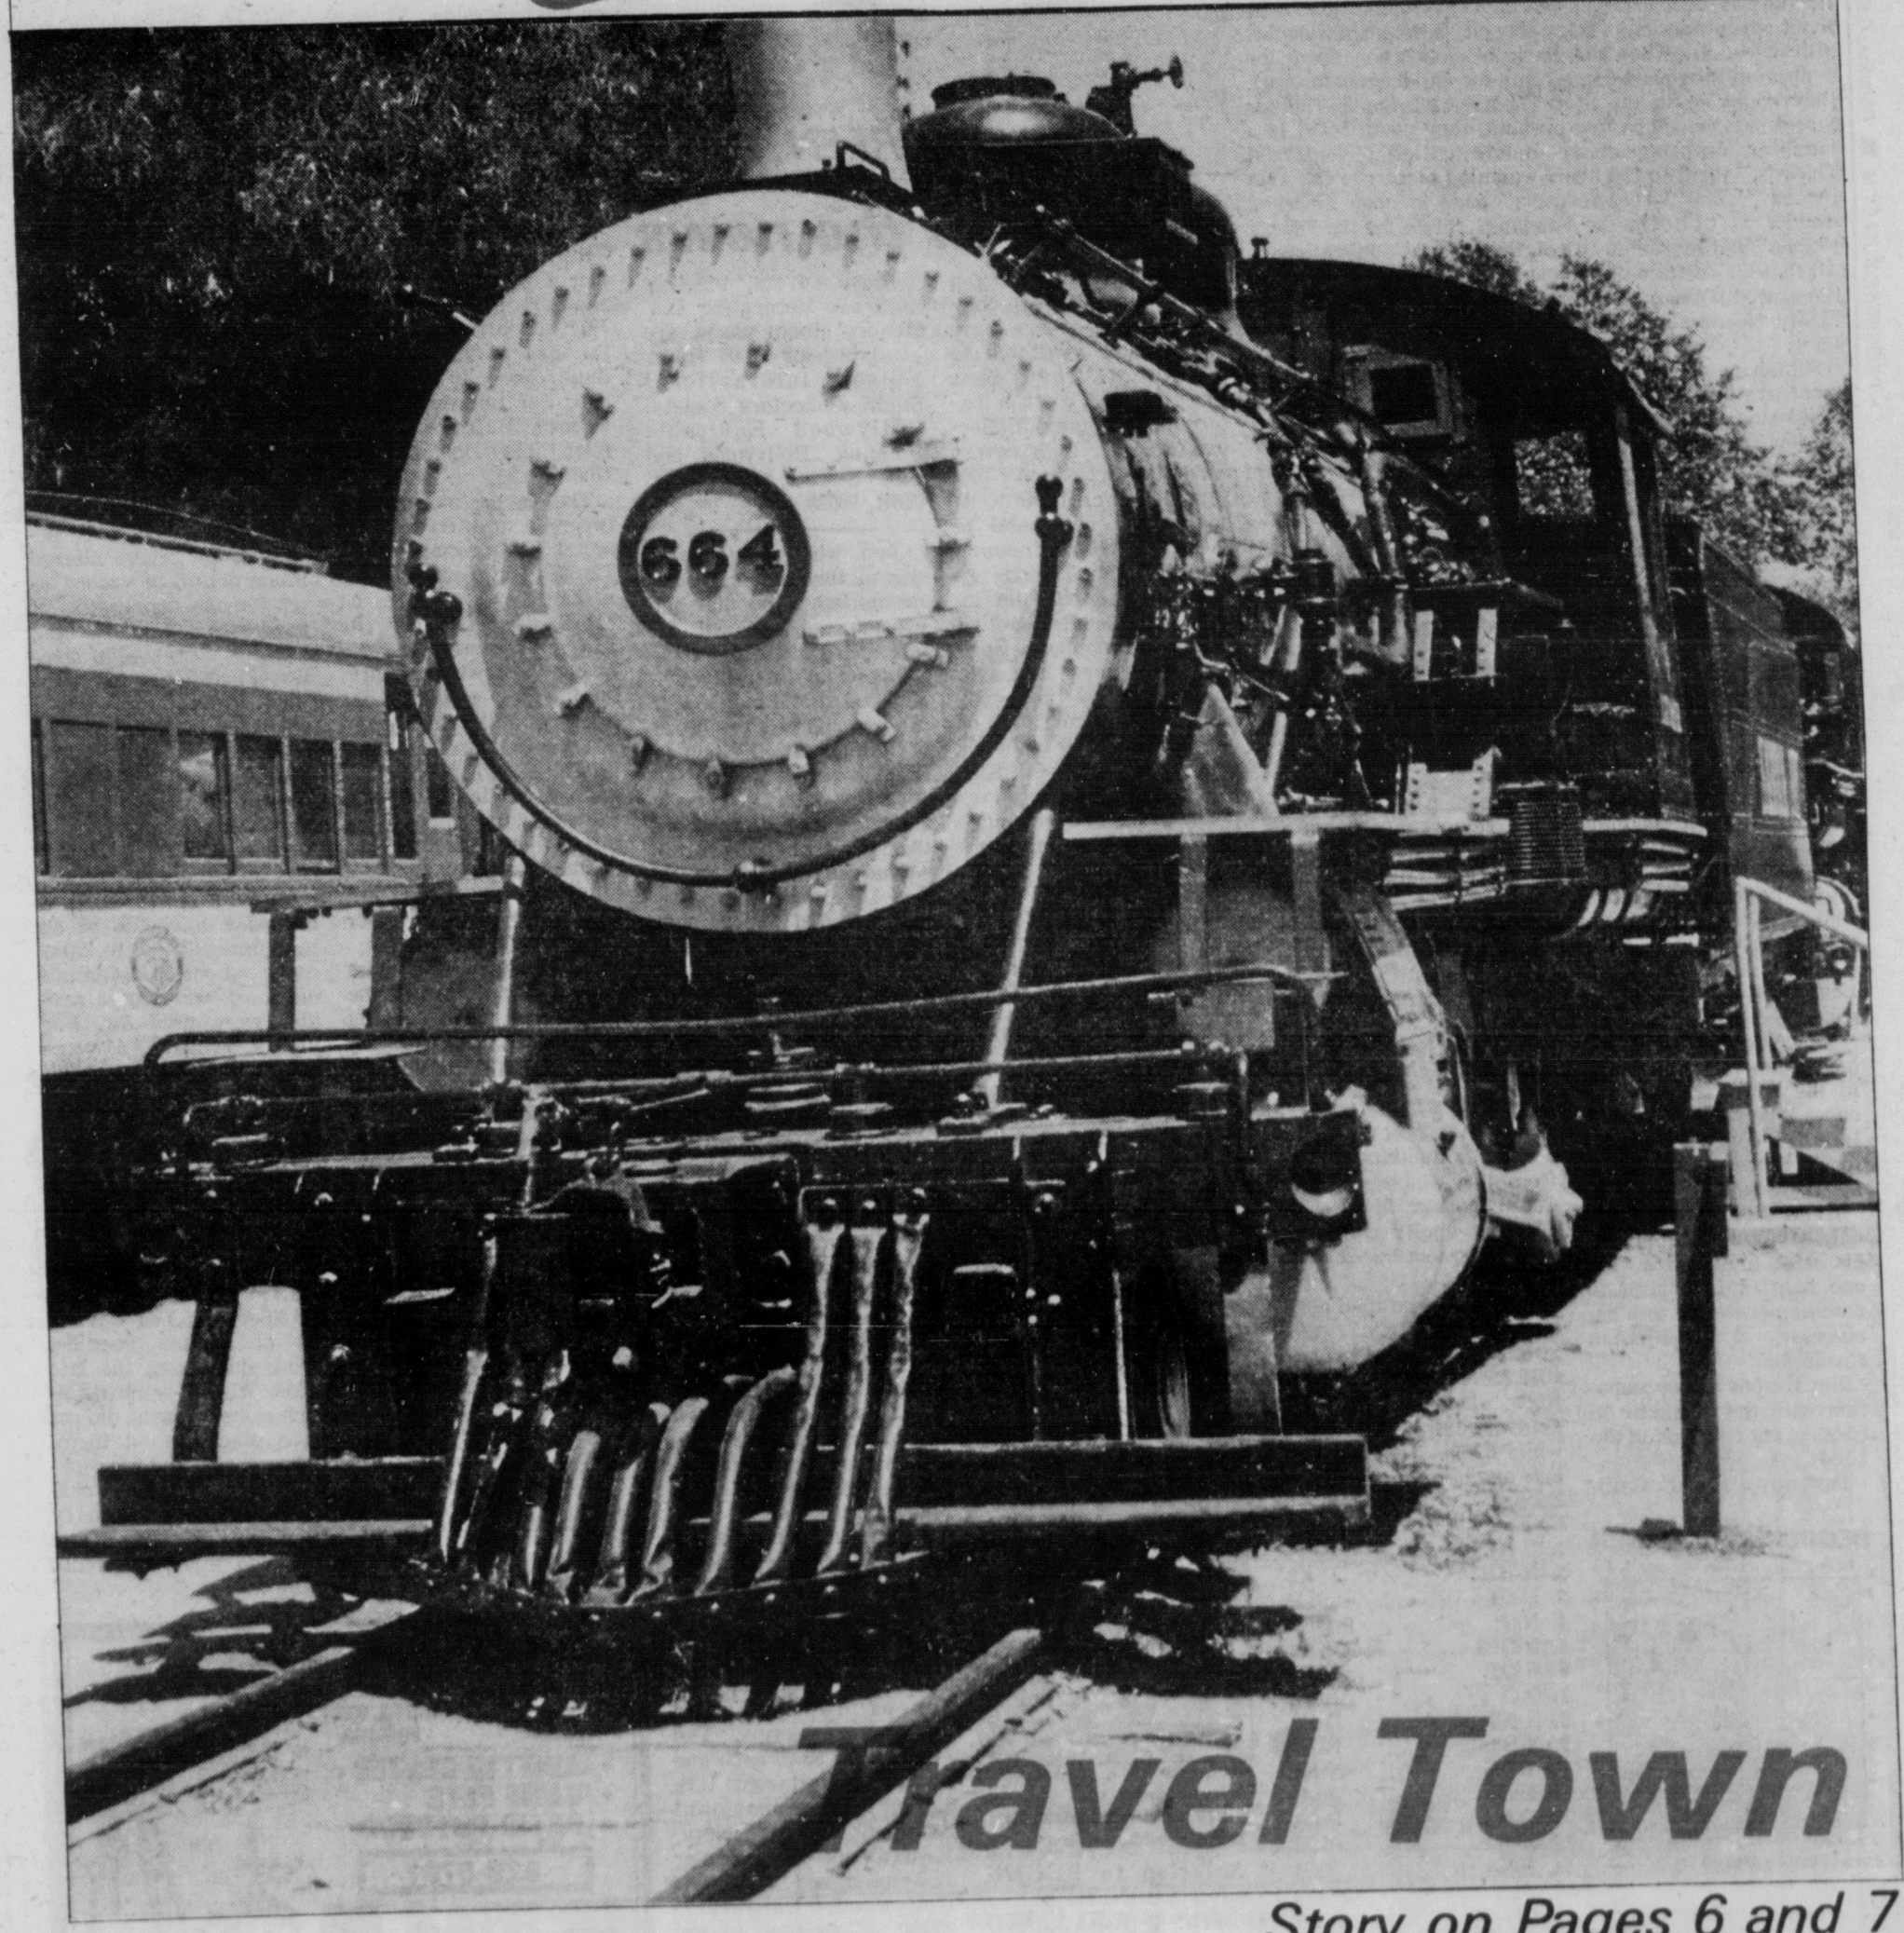
Pomona, California ■ Saturday, August 27, 1977



Travel Town

Story on Pages 6 and 7

Doc Peirsol

It happened in Pomona

Pomona's socially elite were gathered at a garden fete that Tuesday evening in July, 1908, according to The Pomona Progress, where they were listening to some of the new achievements in reproducing the masterpieces of the best singers of the day.

"It was claimed that it was almost impossible to distinguish between Caruso's voice and its reproduction on the Victor graphaphone," The Progress reported the following day. "Caruso is the greatest living tenor and several of his records are owned by Pomona people."

But while Pomona's High Society was attending that garden fete, drinking pink punch and listening to Caruso on the Victor graphaphone, were Pomona's Peons just sitting idly at home drinking beer and envying the entertainment advantages enjoyed by this city's Beautiful People? Silly question! What was there to envy when, for a ten cent admission price (five cents for children under ten), they could go to the Star Theatre, 282 South Thomas Street, where, all in one evening, they could revel in a laughter creating chase movie called "Nocturnal Thieves," thrill to the heart warming picture, "Our Dog Friends," hiss "The Accuser," gaze in open mouthed wonder at "Life in the Soudan," relate to the "Busy Fiance" and marvel at "Prof. Bric-a-Brac's Inventions." All that for one thin dime, and then for good measure two illustrated popular new tunes, "There's Another Picture in My Mamma's Frame" and "She Was a Grand Old Lady."

Somehow, after reading about the wealth of entertainment available to Pomonans in those days, one gets to wondering who really were the more fortunate. Was it the garden fete, punch drinking Upper Crust or the beer drinking, foot stamping Common People down at the Star Theatre?

CHESS QUIZ

In April I had the opportunity to interview World Champion Anatoly Karpov, who had just returned to Moscow after a brilliant performance in Las Plamas. That victory was on the heels of his history-making first in the USSR Championship.

"What are your ambitions for the future," I asked.

"As World Champion I have been very successful in the sporting aspect of chess," he replied. "In the future I hope, especially, for achievements on the aesthetic side."

Ironically, Karpov could only gain a tie for fourth in his next tournament, the one held in Leningrad to commemorate the 60th anniversary of the Russian revolution.

But Karpov's preoccupation with the aesthetic in chess is not common in the USSR.

Recently, Rasul Gamzatov, an eminent Daghestan poet, described chess as "as absorbing as poetry."

"What is needed is for this remarkable game to enter every home," he declared. "Indeed, the wonderful 64 squares open up for the human brain a whole world which is simultaneously strict and fantastic, complicated and fascinating, and invariably attractive, magnetic to people."

Stamps in the news

To herald the opening of Stamp Expo '77, two commemorative covers have been made available to collectors. They were prepared by the International Stamp Collectors Society. Both covers carry the exposition's pictorial cancellation. It honors the centennial of the invention of sound recording by Thomas A. Edison and depicts the inventor in the opening of an antique gramophone. Each of the covers has two stamps. One is the 3-cent Edison commemorative of 1947 and the other is the 10-cent "200 Years of Postal Service" commemorative.

The printed covers carry tha First Day of Issue cancellations from Washington, D.C. dated March 23 when the Centennial of Sound Recording commemorative was issued.

These covers, together with two decorative U.S. History album pages, are available for $4.95 from: Edison, International Stamp Collectors Society, Hollywood Equitable Building, Hollywood and Vine Streets, Hollywood, Calif. 90028.

Just when we thought that all the Lindbergh commemorative hoopla had ceased, the National Air and Space Museum of the Smithsonian Institution announced that Lindy's 1927 flight would be the subject of its latest Milestone of flight cover.

The distinctively cacheted cover honoring the solo flight across the Atlantic is franked with the new U.S. commemorative stamp issued for the 50th anniversary of the occasion and postmarked with the official first day cancellation.

The price of this cover (No. 51) is $1.25 and can be ordered from: Milestones of Flight, National Air and Space Museum, Smithsonian Institution, Washington, D.C. 20560. The money order remittance should be made payable to the Smithsonian Institution.

Also still available is the attractive July 4 First Day Cover honoring American civilians who helped win the Revolutionary War which was issued by the International Stamp Collectors Society.

The cachet depicts a full-color view of Independence Hall in Philadelphia with a wood chip from one of its original beams inserted. Each cover carries the setenant block of four different 13 c skilled craftsmen stamps. The covers cost $5.95 each and can be obtained from: U.S. History, International Stamp Collectors Society, Equitable Building, Hollywood and Vine Sts., Hollywood, California, 90028. Allow four to six weeks for mailing.

Soup tureen is collector's find

By Dorothy Hammond

QUESTION: The large soup tureen shown here with underplate, was purchased without a ladle. However, there is an opening in the cover for one. These pieces are marked on the underside "Villeroy & Boch." What is such an item worth today? S.E.

ANSWER: If perfect, around the $400 figure.

QUESTION: My question concerns a small creamer which was bought at a recent estate sale — along with numerous pieces of junk. Although its shape is modern, the date 1911 appears on the base, incorporated with the mark. Directly under the date is a buffalo, and the words "Buffalo Pottery EMERALD Deldare Ware Underglaze.

The decoration on this creamer is different than any I have come across. The base or ground color is a medium shade of brownish-green. On the back side there is a window, two bowls, a churn, stool, and a white cat drinking milk. On the opposite side there are three figures — two women and a man. Below the two seated figures there is an inscription that reads "Dr. Syntax with the dairymaid, Come here sweet girl don't be afraid, tell me your cares he softly said."

A dark green with white swag design decorates the rim of this creamer. It is perfect. Any information will be appreciated, including value. I paid $16.50 for the box of items that this pitcher was found in.

ANSWER: Creamers like you have described are presently fetching $225 or more in shops. They are considered a choice collector's item.

Although the bulk of the early Deldare was produced in 1908 and 1909, the only item made in 1910 was a calendar plate. Then in 1911, a completely new and different type was introduced — known as "Emerald Deldare." This series is perhaps the finest and most sought after. Virtually every piece is dated 1911. This ware was discontinued at the end of 1911 — except for a few experimental pieces or special orders — and not reissured for twelve years.

Much of the Emerald Deldare was decorated with Dr. Syntex scenes and humorous verses about Dr. Syntax. These date from the early nineteenth century when they were issued as "Tour of Dr. Syntax in Search of the Picturesque, Tour of Dr. Syntax in Search of Consolation, and Tour of Dr. Syntax in Search of a Wife." The original caricatures were painted in watercolors by Thomas Rowlandson, and the verses were written by William Combe. The scenes used on Emerald Deldare have been reproduced with reasonable accuracy, even though artists copies them from the original books. On occasion, the artists altered minor details in a scene often introducing oddities of punctuation and spelling into the verses — in addition to using some variations from the original coloring. It is not known how the name Emerald Deldare was chosen to identify this ware, but the predominance of green in the decoration no doublt was an infuential factor.

QUESTION: I am enclosing a sketch of an item I would like to know more about. Customers often ask what these needles were used for. For years I have always thought of them as skewers. What is your opinion?

Each of the steel needles range in size from 7-9 inches in length, are pointed at one end and have four slits at the other. The case is made of wood. Mrs. B.S.T.

ANSWER: You have a set of larding needles. These date from the late 1800s. Whenever meats — such as beef roasts, did not have much fat on them, they were larded for cooking. Thin strips of cold bacon were actually "sewed" in and out of the meat, to make the roast more tasty.

Coffee prices dropping, but consumers still reluctant

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer

Drop by drop, coffee prices have started coming down. Supermarkets say sales of the brew are gradually picking up again, although consumers still seem reluctant to buy.

An Associated Press spot survey showed the price of a pound of coffee is generally about $3.50, down from a high of $4 and more in some places in March and April. In a few cities, where prices topped $5 a pound, current levels are still around $4.

Edward Maron of Ralphs, an 82-outlet chain in the Los Angeles area, said the stores ran an ad recently advertising lower coffee prices — $3.49 a pound, 47 per cent higher than the $2.38 level of January, but 13 per cent below the mid-April price of $3.99.

It was the store's first coffee promotion this year and Maron said sales increased slightly. "There is still a supply and demand problem," he said. "I don't think it's as severe as it was six months ago, but it's still with us. We're now in a kind of holding pattern."

Store spokesmen in Atlanta said sales dropped about 20 to 25 per cent in the first half of the year. Recent coffee promotions helped slightly, but sales remain sluggish. "We feel that one reason customers are not buying right now is that they're using up what we call 'pantry stuff' in anticipation of lower prices to come," said Arthur Levitt, coffee buyer for Alterman Brothers, operators of the area's Big Apple chain.

John Friesz, manager of the Main Market at Mandan, N.D., agreed. "Customers are just waiting for the price to come down again," said Friesz, who is selling coffee at $3.98 a pound, down $1.50 from the January level. "Now they're just buying what they need and using up what they have. I think housewives have more coffee than grocery stores have."

A spokesman for a large chain in the Kansas City area said he didn't think sales would ever return to normal. "It's still not cheap," he said, when asked about coffee. "As time goes on, I think they're going to lose coffee drinkers."

The manager of a Food City in Omaha, Neb., said sales have "dropped off a good 75 per cent," with people buying coffee "only when it's on sale." He said prices already have come down — a three-pound can is selling for $10.69, compared to $14 earlier this year — and "will come down some more, but won't ever be back to where they started."

Corwyn Wenke of Falley's, an independent retailer in Topeka, Kan., said a pound of coffee is selling for $3.79, down from a high of $4.49. He said customers seemed to buy only when coffee was on sale. Shopper Genevieve Merryman agreed. "We try to catch it when it's on sale," she said, "and we make our coffee a little weaker."

Joyce Steele, manager of communications for the Red Owl stores in Minneapolis-St. Paul, said coffee today is selling for $3.79 a pound, down from a high of $3.99. For the first time since July 1975, she said, the retail price is higher than wholesale.

Retail prices generally have decreased by a smaller margin than wholesale ones, mainly because the supermarket prices rose more slowly as stores sold coffee at a loss to draw customers. Now the wholesale and retail levels are about equal in most areas and, in a few cases, the supermarkets are selling coffee at up to a nickel a pound more than the wholesale price.

Jim Gloth, grocery merchandiser for Albertson's Food Centers Inc. in the Seattle area, said, "You never make money on coffee. You stay with the competition." Gloth, who is selling a pound of coffee for $3.59, down from a high of $4.19, said sales fell about 50 per cent in late spring, but are growing again.

Retailers in Salt Lake City, where a pound of regular coffee is selling at $3.79, compared to $4.59 in January, said sales had dropped about 25 per cent since the start of the year. Promotions have been limited to instant coffee only.

Coffee prices started soaring after a frost in Brazil — the world's biggest producer — destroyed part of that country's 1975-76 harvest and set off speculation about a possible shortage in future years.

Prices for a pound of green, unroasted beans went from 60 cents in July 1975 to $3.33 in April 1977. Retail prices went from $1.27 to around $4 a pound on a nationwide basis.

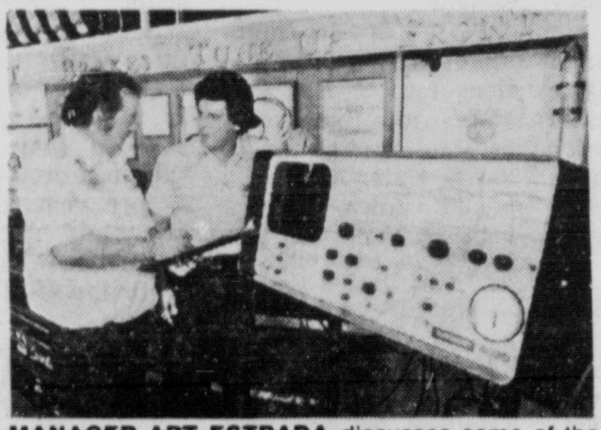
MARK C. BLOOME, located on Holt Ave. just west of Indian Hill, has been serving people for 53 years. It has built a business on a simple philosophy: "Quality tires at the right price."

MARK C. BLOOME, owner, stands in front of the original store which began the Mark C. Bloome Tire Dealer tradition.



MANAGER ART ESTRADA discusses some of the finer points with Jim Hall concerning the use of their auto scan scope for tune ups.

DINO SILVESTRE, left, observes as Jack Piccard mounts a customers tires. Fast, courteous, and professional service is what Mark C. Bloome is noted for.

MARK C. BLOOME . . . 53 YEARS OF SERVICE AND SAVINGS!

Mark C. Bloome has been the leader in the tire industry for 53 years. There is a very simple reason why - customer satisfaction and service.

It all started over fifty years ago with a gas station and a desire to give the public what they wanted and with this Mark C. Bloome has become the largest independent tire specialist in California. This was achieved by concentrating on major name-brand tires and quality service. Mark C. Bloome doesn't offer just one brand of tire, he gives you a choice from among a wide variety of tires with a price to suit your budget and a tire that will best fill your particuiar driving needs. With names like Uniroyal, B. F. Goodrich, Michelin, Pirelli, Goodyear, Firestone, Dunlop, Bridgestone, Gislaved and more, you see why Mark C. Bloome has had hundreds of thousands of satisfied customers through the years.

According to Art Estrada, Store Manager of the Pomona Mark C. Bloome at 1199 East Holt Avenue, the company satisfies its' customers by supplying their needs for a quality tire at the right price. He said, "We have a guarantee of satisfaction as to price and quality or we will refund your money or exchange your tires within ten (10) days of purchase. Just return your tires for an exchange or refund, it's that simple!"

Jim Hall, Service Manager of the Pomona Mark C. Bloome, says, "We offer fast quality service. We do tune-ups, wheel alignments, wheel balancing, and brakes using only the finest parts and equipment available. We use Quaker State oil exclusively for all of our lube jobs. Our adherence to these high standards is one of the main reasons we have such a high percentage of customers.

Customers wanting custom retreads will find the best tires at the lowest price at the 1199 East Holt Avenue store.

The Pomona Mark C. Bloome store carries a large selection of auto accessories: chrome, mag-type and heavy-duty wheels for autos and trucks, air shocks, regular shocks and even CB radios.

CHILDREN ARE DWARFED BY 8-FOOT LOCOMOTIVE DRIVE WHEELS

Travel town now 25-years-old

Story and photos by JOSEPH H. FIRMAN, PB Staff Writer

All aboard!

Nestled in a corner of Los Angeles' sprawling Giffith Park is a seven-acre site studded with oldtime steam engines, early-day trolley cars, antique fire engines and modern bombers and fighter planes. This is Travel Town, a mecca for transportation buffs an eye-widening playground and museum for moppets.

A nice thing for youngsters — and their parents — is that this is not a hands-off exhibition, but an authentic collection of vehicles that imaginative small fry can scramble aboard, walk through, play on and crawl under. At the throttle of a mighty 80-ton locomotive , every child is Casey Jones. (The planes and fire engines are on-view but off-limits.)

Travel Town was established in the city-owned park largely through the enthusiasm and zeal of William Frederickson Jr., general manager of the recreation and parks department, who started planning the installation 30 years ago. Officially dedicated on Dec. 14, 1952, the travel exhibition rapidly grew in popularity and today draws half a million visitors a year. New exhibits are constantly being added.

At the heart of Travel Town is one of the world's largest collections of steam engines, 17 well-preserved locomotives ranging from a two-ton saddleback to a giant 110-ton Union Pacific engine. Among them is a Southern Pacific locomotive, circa 1880, that formerly operated in Golden Gate Park and along the San Francisco beaches. There are diners, Pullman cars, coal cars and cabooses, and an old Hawaiian narrow-gauge sugar train from Oahu. Among the oldest of the collection is an 1864 Western Pacific engine.

For oldtimers, a touch of nostalgia is evoked by the old yellow streetcars that were once Los Angeles' chief method of transportation. The cars were originally horsedrawn, then operated by cables and finally electrified and equipped with trolleys.

Another feature of the museum is a handsome collection of fire engines ranging from 1902 to 1937. Star of the show is a 60-year-old hook-and-ladder once drawn by horse and later by a gasoline tractor. The airplane exhibit boasts an F7U-3 Navy jet fighter, a PTV-3 Neptune bomber, and the dreaded German V-1 guided missile that terrorized London during World War II. The museum also displays an 1849 circus wagon, a one-horse shay from 1886, and a tallyho coach of vintage 1895.

Travel Town's lawns and tree-shaded areas offer picnic sites for families and small and large groups. There is a refreshment stand and souvenir shop. A special service provided is birthday parties for small fry, including a decorated cake, ice cream, milk and soft drinks. The youngsters hold their party in the dining cars of the Southern Pacific or Union Pacific railroad lines. Parties may be scheduled on Saturdays, Sundays and holidays and in the early evening hours during daylight saving time. Reservations and additional information can be obtained at (213) 661-9465.

Travel Town is open to the public from 9 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. seven days a week. Admission is free, and ample parking space is available.

Griffith Park is reached from the Pomona Valley by the San Bernardino Freeway to the Golden State Freeway and to the park turnoff.

Despite Carter in the White House

Southern clout on Capitol Hill at low ebb

WASHINGTON (AP) - While Jimmy Carter, flashing his smile from the White House, fills Southern hearts with pride, organized Southern clout on Capitol Hill is probably at its feeblest in 40 years.

Ironically, Carter's election as the first post-Civil War president from the Deep South and the decline of Southern bloc power in the Congress are two aspects of the same historic evolution, the return of the South to the national political and social mainstream.

It was Southern isolation and defensiveness that built a onceeffective third force in a twoparty legislative branch.

As recently as five years ago, six of the 12 major committees in the House, seven of 11 in the Senate, were headed by Southerners.

But there currently is only one Southern chairman in the House, Texan George H. Mahon of the Appropriations panel, and he is retiring from Congress next year.

Next in line to head the purse strings committee is another Southerner, Jamie Whitten of Mississippi. But next in line no longer means automatic succession, and Whitten faces a fight.

The change is less dramatic in the Senate, but the trend is clear. Six of the key chairmanships still are held by Southerners. But only two of these men are under 70 and non-Southerners are waiting in the wings.

When the great civil rights battles of the 1960's were being fought, a cohesive opposing band of about 100 Southern Democratic representatives was led by generals like Howard Smith of Virginia. He commanded as chairman of the Rules Committee, incomparably more powerful and independent then than it is now.

In the Senate, Richard B. Russell of Georgia led a force proportionately as strong.

The Southern Democratic strategists, skilled at trading votes and forming coalitions with Republicans, could not stop the march of civil rights legislation. But they succeeded in slowing it, to the frustration of Democratic presidents and even of the legendary Speaker Sam Rayburn.

Rayburn was the last southern Speaker, and one who came to see the need for legislation to foster social justice and better race relations. His confrontation with Smith and the resulting reconstitution of the Rules Committee was an early milestone on the road to the new House.

Speaker Thomas O'Neill of Massachusetts has much clearer lines of authority and party discipline to help him preside over the Democratic majority. Rayburn operated with personality, prestige and persuasion.

Revitalization of the Democratic caucus and steering committee, subjecting chairmanships to caucus vote — which led in 1975 to the ouster of three Southern chairmen — and conversion of the Rules Committee into an arm of the Democratic leadership are among the changes whose effects are still developing.

But there are more profound forces shaping Congress in the 1970s and their Southern contingents, deep-seated changes in attitude in the country as well as among those who are elected to legislative seats.

Many Southerners in Congress still share a conservative bent, especially in fiscal matters, a commitment to a strong military and a suspicion of foreign policy accommodations.

But there is no overriding passionate issue to weld them together. Southerners can argue persuasively that their region has made its adjustments and that the issue of race relations is much more divisive in cities such as Detroit and Boston than below the Mason-Dixon line.

Carter drew applause from a sweltering audience in Yazoo City, Miss., July 21, when he said:

"In the South we were guilty for many years of the deprivation of human rights to a large portion of our citizens. ...

"I think it was with a great deal of courage that the South was able to face up to that change. I personally believe it was the best thing that ever happened to the South in my lifetime. ...

"Now we white people and the black people who live near us can work together on common problems and share trials and difficulties and seek common solutions. I think it's strengthened the South.

"I would not be here as President had it not been for the Civil Rights Act and for the courage of some leaders — and I don't claim to be one of them — who changed those bad aspects of the South to the present greatness of the South."

The attitudes Carter described are reflected in present-day elections. There are many moderates and some liberals of both races in the current Southern delegations. It would be unthinkable today that only a few could feel free to refuse signing something like the Southern Manifesto of the 60s, which vowed opposition to civil rights legislation.

On other issues Southerners divide much as do representatives of other sections.

Moreover, Democrats no longer count the Southern delegations as their exclusive preserve. The 11 one-time Confederate states sent 27 Republican representatives, five Republican senators and one independent to the current Congress.

Southern conservatives may be able to change their party affiliation without ideological pain. But if they are elected as Republicans they forfeit their hopes for committee chairmanships and majority leadership posts so long as the Democrats continue to control Congress.

It was by electing Democrats, persistently re-electing incumbents and so pushing them up the once inevitable seniority ladder that the South built up its past formidable institutional influence in Congress.

But Southern political savvy is far from dead and individuals from the region may well find greater opportunities open to them with the demise of bloc politics.

There is no better example than Jimmy Carter.

Mugger's nightmare: she's karate champ

LEWISTON, Maine (AP) — Pamela Wansker is the kind of woman who could give a mugger nightmares. The attractive 23-year-old could not only defend herself but probably would leave the would-be attacker bruised and sorry.

The 5-foot-7, 135-pound former schoolteacher is a skilled practitioner of karate. "It's something you can get excited about getting good at," she said, and she's very good at it indeed. Several weeks ago, she placed first in her class in the Amateur Athletic Union National Karate Championships at Virginia Beach, Va.

Miss Wansker went to the tournament hoping merely to be allowed to compete, and found herself pitted against young women from across the country in the women's advanced black belt division of kumite — freestyle sparring. She won all four of her matches.

"Most of the others I was competing against were black belts (the highest distinction in karate)," she said. But both she and her final opponent in the championship match were only brown belts, "which shows you how much a black belt means."

Miss Wansker, an avid skier and swimmer who was captain of the women's tennis team at Bates College here, has been practicing karate for two years at the Golden Fist Karate School in Lewiston. Her instructor, John Jenkins, himself a black belt, said: "She's quite strong. She can throw someone 250 pounds over her back in a flip."

At the AAU tournament — she also won the Maine AAU women's championship last year — Miss Wansker relied on her favorite maneuver — a "reverse punch" in which she twists her opponent around and gives him or her a quick chop around the midsection.

But contestants were judged primarily on technique and were not supposed to land heavy blows. "You throw kicks and punches to show you have control. ... You're not supposed to touch the face at all," she said.

Nonetheless, she suffered a cut lip and bruised cheek in one match, and still sports a large, ugly bruise beneath her elbow where a man kicked her in a recent workout.

"It happens all the time really," she shrugged. "Most of the time it's not malicious."

Normal weather contributing to drought

WASHINGTON (AP) — Milk and wine trucks began hauling water. The sprinkling of golf courses was curtailed. People were urged to shower together and flush only when necessary.

That was last summer in northern California — a time of adaptation that one man warned would be only a drop in the bucket if it didn't get a lot wetter.

As state, federal and local governments, as well as residents of drought areas try to cope, the National Weather Service reports that the problem right now is normal weather.

"It's pretty hard to get any kind of heavy rainfall in the western states during a normal summer," said Robert Dickson, deputy chief of the Long Range Prediction Group.

And that's the problem. It's a normal, dry summer.

On Jan. 20, the day he left office, then President Gerald R. Ford declared California and Utah in a state of emergency because of the drought.

Ford previously had taken similar action to assist Midwestern stockmen also facing drought conditions.

Today there are 2,031 counties or independent cities across the nation that have been declared drought disaster areas. These include counties in Alabama Vermont and Indiana which were added to the list this week.

In April the federal departments trying to cope with the drought came together in the Interagency Drought Coordinating Committee.

This group, headed by Assistant Secretary M. Rupert Cutler of the Agriculture Department, consolidates the drought activities of his department as well as the departments of Commerce and Interior and the Small Business Administration.

Dickson explained that the dryness is a return to normal weather after two abnormal years which were responsible for creating the drought in the first place.

Everything, he indicated, centers on the westerly winds in the upper atmosphere carrying weather across the country.

In the winter of 1975-76 these winds shifted to the north slightly, and blew in a flat pattern across the continent instead of their normal wave pattern.

This brought plenty of water to the Pacific Northwest, but without the waves to dip south from time to time, the West and Midwest were dry. And most of the country had a mild winter.

Last summer the wave pattern returned to the winds and it was actually a wetter-thanusual summer in California, Dickson said.

For example, San Francisco had 0.67 inch of rain last summer and Eureka, Calif., had more than two inches.

"If this is heavy precipitation ... what must light be," he reflected. "It's hard to make much out of totals of this nature."

Last winter, Dickson continued, was one of extended wave patterns in the atmosphere, with the winds curling north of California carrying away the needed moisture, whipping through Canada and then turning south to bring intense cold to most of the country.

This kept the normal winter rain away from the droughtplagued West again.

And now it's summer, and the wave pattern is back to normal, and so it's dry.

Dickson declined to speculate as to whether normal air patterns will continue this fall and bring water to the parched West, saying his group won't be making a prediction on that until late August.

"Nature is sometimes pretty slow about getting around to correcting these things, but it usually does eventually," he concluded.

In the Midwest, agriculture experts say rainfall has been sufficient in many areas to maintain the crops, but the preceeding drought has depleted water underground and in rivers and streams.

Since current rainfall is needed for crops, the ground water and stream flows are not being replenished and, should the rain fail, the farming areas could be in trouble, officials said.

Interior Secretary Cecil Andrus on Tuesday repeated his pledge to protect farmers and ranchers in disputes involving water rights.

The development of energy resources in the West is expected to create a huge demand for water from utilities. But Andrus said ranchers and farmers will be protected from losing water essential for production of crops.

In its most recent survey of the nation's available water, issued last week, the U.S. Geological Survey reported that problems were increasing in the Southeast and streamflows were well below normal in much of the West and Midwest.

The California drought has already been declared the worst in that state's history and officials said many rivers across the nation are now recording their lowest flows of water in history.

This has been compounded by the growth of dangerous algae in some parts of Montana and by concentrations of chemicals and other contaminants in other shrunken rivers.

The nation's five biggest rivers — the Mississippi, Missouri, St. Lawrence, Ohio and Columbia — drain nearly half of the contiguous 48 states.

In July the combined flow of water in these rivers averaged 714 billion gallons a day, 22 per cent below normal. Only the Ohio was above normal, and that was attributed to the runoff from flooding in Johnstown, Pa.

Jazz festival sets performers

Numerous notables will be among the peformers at the 20th annual Monterey Jazz Festival, scheduled for Sept. 16, 17 and 18.

Art Blakey, powerhouse drummer who formed the Jazz Messengers in 1955, and Horace Silver, pianist who created the soul school of jazz in the late fifties, will be among the headliners for the event planned for the Monterey County Fairgrounds.

Count Basie and his orchestra, with vocalist Joe Williams, will open the first of the five concerts Sept. 16 at 9 p.m.

Both Blakey and Silver have long been considered influential artists and their small combos have been training grounds for jazz performers who later achieved major stature.

The original Jazz Messengers featured Silver; tenor saxophonist Hank Mobley; trumpeter Kenny Dorham; bassist Doug Watkins and Blakey. Through the years the personnel changed frequently and became a proving ground for such jazzmen as trumpeters Donald Byrd, Lee Morgan; saxophonists Jackie McLean, Wayne Shorter, Benny Golson and Johnny Griffin and pianists Junior Mance and Bobby Timmons.

Silver, celebrating his silver anniversary with Blue Note Records and a graduate of the Blakey school, formed his first group in 1956 and became master instructor for a series of jazz artists. Silver alumni include Blue Mitchell, Louis Hayes, Joe Henderson, Randy Brecker, Bill Cobham, Tom Harrell, Woody Shaw and Bob Berg. Silver wed jazz with blues and gospel more than 20 years ago with his own compositions and continues to be a ranking leader in the field of jazz.

The 20th anniversary blowout on Saturday night at 8:15 will feature trumpeter Harry "Sweets" Edison and saxophonist Eddie "Lockjaw" Davis.

Edison began his career in the 1930s with Lucky Millinder and went on to perform with Count Basie. He has performed with Jazz at the Philharmonic, Buddy Rich, Quincy Jones, Louis Bellson, Frank Sinatra and the late Josephine Baker.

Davis, a self-taught musician, has played with Cootie Williams Band, Lucky Millinder, Andy Kirk, Louis Armstrong and Count Basie.

The blowout will also feature trumpeter Clark Terry, saxophonist Benny Golson, pianist John Lewis, bassist Richard Davis, guitarist Mundell Lowe and drummer Roy Burns.

The Airmen of Note, the official U.S. Air Force Jazz Band, will premiere Gerald Wilson's "Happy Birthday, Monterey Suite" Friday night with Wilson conducting and special guest artists. The Airmen will also join pianist Lewis in the premiere of a new work Saturday evening.

Carrie Smith, singer of blues, jazz, torch songs and spirituals, will also be featured on the Saturday night program. The program is completed with a piano duo premiere by Lewis and Hank Jones.

Additional artists for the festival will be announced later.

New Simon play set at Center

The world premiere of Neil Simon's new play, "Chapter Two," will be staged at the Ahmanson Theater of the Los Angeles Music Center Sept. 30 as a benefit for the Music Center Unified Fund.

The fund helps support resident groups at the Music Center whose income from ticket sales covers only a portion of the cost of producing a season. All proceeds from this performance will be matched by one-third through the Performing Arts Council's National Endowment for the Arts' Challenge Grant.

Included in the ticket price is a pre-performance plaza party of complimentary wine and savories provided by the Committee of Professional Women for the Los Angeles Philharmonic Association.

A supper party honoring Mr. and Mrs. Simon will follow the performance on the fifth floor of the Pavilion. Tickets are priced at $75, $50 and $25, and supper party reservations are $50.

Directed by Herbert Ross, "Chapter Two" opens its regular engagement at the Ahmanson Oct. 7 and plays through Nov. 26.

MUSIC MAKER — Neil Sedaka performs in the Universal Amphitheater, Los Angeles, at 8:15 tonight and Sunday. With him will be England Dan, John Ford Coley and guitarist Ry Cooder.

Networks signing actors

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Dennis Weaver and Sally Struthers star as husband and wife in "Battered," an NBC movie about wife beating. . . Character actor Richard X. Slattery, a former New York City policeman, joins NBC's "CPO Sharkey" as Don Rickles' commanding officer.

Common Cause has uncommonly sharp leader in Nan Waterman

WASHINGTON (AP) — When Nan Waterman of Muscatine, Iowa, was interviewed as one of five candidates to head Common Cause, she asked the committee, "Are you practicing by starting with a woman?"

The question may have been in jest. But it is no secret that many people were surprised when the powerful citizen's lobbying organization chose a woman as chairperson.

In the four months since Mrs. Waterman took over the job, she has enhanced her reputation as a level-headed person who sets high standards for herself.

"She asks us to criticize her public performances, such as speeches and press interviews," said Common Cause president David Cohen. "She's constantly asking, 'How can I do better?'

"She's a person who has been tested, who is at home in the kinds of conflicts and combats we are engaged in."

Mrs. Waterman, 57, has red curly hair, accented by wide purple frames on her glasses. Her friendly, easy manner fits right into the campaign-like atmosphere of Common Cause's Washington headquarters.

Her job is part-time and runs for one-year with two opportunities for re-election. It pays $44,000 a year on a pro-rated basis. Under Common Cause founder John Gardner, chairperson was a full-time job. But when he decided to resign, Cohen took over more of the day-to-day responsibilities. It was decided that the chair would be part-time.

Right now, Mrs. Waterman is spending much of her time travelling to meet with the organization's grassroots leaders and find out what they are doing about the issues important to Common Cause.

"In a sense, I'm creating a new job," Mrs. Waterman said. "There was only one John Gardner. I have to think carefully about what the role of chairperson should be. It's very important for the health of the organization to get to members in the field as often as possible."

In an interview in the small downtown Washington offices where she spends about half her working hours, Mrs. Waterman said one of her goals is to see the Equal Rights Amendment approved.

"Its chances are slim, but possible," she said. "Proponents of the ERA have to get their act together. We need one strategy on which we all agree. We each need to take a role and do it.

"We can't afford the time and money to duplicate work that has been done before, such as having three groups survey legislators' positions on the amendment."

The ERA, which would guarantee women equal legal treatment, has been ratified by 35 states and needs ratification by three more by March 1979 to become part of the Constitution.

Mrs. Waterman, a Democrat, took over the organization from Gardner, also a Democrat. He founded Common Cause in 1970 as a force to pressure government on public interest issues outside the partisan context of the political parties.

It has grown to a membership of about 255,000. Each member pays least $15 a year in dues, but most pay much more. In return, they receive two publications that brief them on the issues. Mrs. Waterman said the average dues now is about $21.

Common Cause gained much of its reputation doing battle with administration of former President Richard M. Nixon. The organization filed the lawsuit that forced Nixon to disclose the contributors to his 1972 re-election campaign.

That disclosure revealed a number of illegal corporate gifts.

One of Common Cause's biggest victories was the passage of post-Watergate election reforms which it pushed, including limits on donations and spending, rigid reporting by candidates and public financing of presidential elections.

The group lost a battle recently to extend public financing of federal elections to Senate races.

Some of those who know Mrs. Waterman say she is particularly interested in social reform issues, such as income assistance for the poor, welfare reform and housing.

"It would be nice if Common Cause became more involved in these issues because of her leadership," said Peggy Lampl, executive director of the League of Women Voters, where Mrs. Waterman spent 14 years before she joined Common Cause's board in 1972.

Common Cause officials say that in the immediate future, chances of this are slim. "It's just not what our members want," one administrator said.

Mrs. Waterman, a native of Duluth, Minn., is the daughter of a building contractor whom she decribes as a "civil libertarian."

"We were the kind who always had a picture of the candidate inthe window and a campaign sign on the front lawn," she said.

Mrs. Waterman's husband, a furniture salesman, has a master's degree in political science and juggles his schedule to travel with her as much as possible. They can do this, Mrs. Waterman said, because their four sons, ages 18 to 30, no longer live at home. "We decided that the job was important to me, and we would do everything we could over the next few years to see that it works," she said.

HIGH STANDARDS — Nan Waterman, who heads Common Cause, the powerful citizens' lobbying organization, has enhanced reputation as a level-headed person who sets high standards for herself.
